WALKER WILL RUN AGAIN; 'WHO CAN SAY NO?' HIS REPLY TO THE COMMITTEE OF 682

GETS OVATION AT CITY HALL

Reviews Four Years' Work and Calls It Great Adventure.

DEFENDS RISE IN OUTLAYS

Measures Budget by What It Gives the People, Not in Dollars and Cents.

HECKSCHER LAUDS HIM

Says It Would Be a Calamity if He Did Not Stay to Finish Improvement Program.

James J. Walker will run again for Mayor. He said so formally yesterday before a packed audience in the Board of Estimate chamber in City Hall when a delegation of a citizens' committee asked him to make the race once more as the Democratic candidate.

It was impossible to resist the demands of so many elements in the population, said the Mayor. The leaders of his own party without a dissenting voice had told him they wanted him. What else could he do after listening to August Heckscher, chairman of the citizens' committee of 682 men and women representing a broad cross-section of life in the city, and Cary Van Amringe, the secretary, urge him to seek re-election for the good of the city?

"Who can say no?" asked the Mayor.

Cheers Greet Declaration.

Cheers rang through the chamber as the Mayor concluded his address with those words of affirmation. Mr. Walker stood on the platform, smiling and bowing, and the microphones of WEAF and WOR carried out to the radio audience the surge of noise at the news that the Mayor would run again. Near by on the platform, Mrs. Walker smiled broadly from the seat ordinarily occupied by Julius Miller, Borough President of Manhattan.

It was a gala day at City Hall and friends of the Mayor made elaborate preparations for him to give his answer the proper background. Political, business and civic leaders were there, many of them members of the committee delegation. City officials were out in throngs. Among the commissioners present was Grover Whalen, who had provided a big squad of police to see that all went smoothly. He moved about the chamber to make sure that everything was going according to schedule.

In a chair near the rail was Mr. Heckscher and close to him was Mr. Van Amringe. Along the benches were seated many adherents of Mr. Walker, like Jacob Ruppert, owner of the Yankees baseball club; William H. Todd, shipbuilder; Major William Kenneally, president of the New York Athletic Club, and Mrs. John F. Curry, wife of the Tammany leader.

Smith Not at Meeting.

Former Governor Smith, a member of the committee, was not there—business had kept him away, it was said—but Mr. Smith's friends, William F. Kenny, James J. Riordan and John F. Gilchrist, were on hand. And in the front row was William H. (Big Bill) Edwards, a Hylan supporter in 1925, and in another bench was Barron G. Collier, another former Hylan man.

Stewart Browne of the Real Estate Owners' Association, sometimes a critic of the Walker administration, was present in his regular place, leaning against the end of the rostrum. Mr. Browne beamed when the Mayor in his address paused to bow his respects to his critic and thank "my good friend, Stewart Browne," for help received.

Mayor 20 Minutes Late.

The audience assembled at noon, which was the hour set for the opening of the ceremonies, and the radio began broadcasting the proceedings. Twenty minutes later the Mayor entered. He came in with Charles Hand, his secretary, and he received a warm reception. To Mr. Heckscher was assigned the task of citing the main reasons why the citizens' committee wanted the Mayor to run again.

The committee chairman told of the organization of the committee, and, turning to th career of the Mayor, cited published articles telling of his success as an unofficial envoy of good-will during his tour of Europe. Mr. Heckscher suggested that any party might well be glad to "get Jimmy Walker, at least as Ambassador to Germany." Mr. Heck-

Mrs. Coolidge to Be Sponsor Of the Cruiser Northampton

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 18.—Secretary of the Navy Adams announced today that Mrs. Calvin Coolidge, wife of the former President, has accepted an invitation to act as sponsor for the 10,000-ton cruiser Northampton, which will be launched on Sept. 7 at Quincy, Mass.

The cruiser is named for the home city of Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge and is under construction by the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation. It will be the fifth 10,000-ton cruiser of the program of eight authorized in 1924.

ROOSEVELT ACCEPTS BAR AID ON MANCUSO

Requests Two Associations to Submit Recommendations as to City Trust Chairman.

PROMPT ACTION PROMISED

Committees to Meet Next Week —Lack Power to Inquire Into Judge's Conduct.

Governor Roosevelt asked the Association of the Bar of the City of New York and the New York County Lawyers' Association yesterday to assist him in determining what action he should take regarding Judge Francis X. Mancuso of the Court of General Sessions, who was chairman of the board of the City Trust Company when it failed in February for almost $5,000,000.

In announcing that he had decided to have the two associations help him, Governor Roosevelt made public at New London, Conn., where he has been attending the conference of Governors, telegrams he had sent to Charles C. Burlingham, 27 William Street, president of the Bar Association, and to William Nelson Cromwell, 165 Broadway, president of the New York County Lawyers' Association.

The telegram to Mr. Burlingham, which was in answer to one sent to the Governor on Sunday offering the aid of the Bar Association in the matter of Judge Mancuso's connection with the City Trust Company, was as follows:

Your offer of assistance of Bar Association in studying the Moreland report and testimony with reference to Judge Mancuso and to make recommendations to me concerning action to be taken is accepted. May I ask that you arrange for the cooperation of the New York County Lawyers' Association so that a joint report of the appropriate committees of the two organizations may be made as promptly as possible. I am today sending telegram to the New York County Lawyers' Association.

FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT.

The telegram to Mr. Cromwell was much the same and the Governor said: "I shall appreciate the cooperation of the New York County Lawyers' Association with the Bar Association in this matter."

Mancuso Censured by Moses.

Judge Mancuso's conduct was severely criticised by Robert Moses, Moreland Commissioner, who recently investigated the State Banking Department and its relation to

GOVERNORS SHELVE WICKERSHAM'S PLAN AND DRYS' MOTIONS

Dropping Prohibition as "Controversial," They Vote "Support" to Hoover.

RITCHIE LEADS IN ATTACK

ISSUE WILL ENTER SENATE

From a Staff Correspondent of The New York Times.

NEW LONDON, Conn., July 18.—The proposal of George W. Wickersham, chairman of President Hoover's Commission on Crime and Law Enforcement, for closer cooperation between the States and the Federal Government in the enforcement of the prohibition laws and for a division of authority between these two agencies in the administration of these laws, was sidetracked today by the conference of Governors, together with two resolutions introduced by Southern drys.

Instead, the conference adopted a compromise report of its executive committee, expressing "general approval" and "support" of the President in the suppression of crime and pledging cooperation to him and his commission in this task.

The resolutions sidetracked were one by Governor Richards of South Carolina and one introduced jointly by Governor Gardner of North Carolina and Governor Byrd of Virginia. Both were interpreted by wets as encroaching upon the prohibition issue in their sentiments of cooperation with the Federal Government.

In sidetracking the Wickersham proposal, the conference refused to take action on the suggestion that the States approach the Federal Government with the view of promoting closer cooperation in prohibition enforcement.

Wickersham Plan Not Voted On.

Animated by an obvious desire not to split the conference and guided by the conference rule forbidding the adoption of resolutions on controversial questions, the assembly failed to put the Wickersham proposal to a vote.

The heated debate preceding the adoption of the executive committee's report indicated clearly enough, however, that a majority of the conference opposed the Wickersham plan, the drys because it held out the prospect of modification of the prohibition laws and the wets because they saw in it an affirmation of the duty of the States to help in the enforcement of prohibition.

Opened by Governor Ritchie of Maryland with a bitter attack on the Wickersham plan and on prohibition in general, the debate was largely a demonstration of the feud that divides Democrats on the liquor question.

Pitted against the Maryland Executive, a leading exponent of the wet Democracy, were Governor Richards and Governor Graves of Alabama, both of whom demanded rigid enforcement of the prohibition statutes and expressed uncompromising opposition to any suggestions of modification such as were held out in the Wickersham proposal. They were supported by a number of dry Republican Governors.

Governor Roosevelt, who precipitated the prohibition issue into the proceedings of the conference by his presentation of the Wickersham proposal Tuesday, refrained from taking any part in the debate and at one

Phone Ship 1,500 Miles Out; Paris Folk Connect With Liner

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, July 18.—A telephonic conversation, lasting fifteen minutes, between officials of the International Telephone Company in Paris and members of their staff on board the liner Berengaria, 1,500 miles at sea, took place today.

Communication was established over an ordinary telephone to the wireless station at Trappes, near Versailles, one of the most powerful sending stations in France.

Those conversing were able to hear without difficulty, although it was said by experts that the condition was unfavorable for the test. It is expected, if other tests prove successful, to install telephone booths on the liners for the use of passengers.

11 NEW INDICTMENTS FILED IN CLARKE CASE

County Grand Jury Charges 4 Accepted Deposits Knowing Bank Was Insolvent.

BROTHERS AGREE TO TALK

J. W. Cutler Unable to Explain $82,619 Loans and Payments of $100 a Week to Him.

Shortly after John L. Lyttle, Referee in Bankruptcy, had been informed yesterday that the three Clarke brothers were now willing to answer freely all questions about the $5,000,000 failure of their private banking house, the New York County grand jury voted eleven indictments against each of them and a similar number against John F. Bouker, the fourth member of the bankrupt firm. The true bills allege violation of the State penal laws by accepting money on deposit at a time when they knew their bank to be insolvent. Upon conviction, the maximum penalty is five years in prison and a fine of $5,000 under each indictment.

The announcement that James Rae Clarke, Philip Clarke and Hudson Clarke Jr. would answer all questions before Referee Lyttle on Monday was made by their attorney, Ludlow S. Fowler, following a conference with the referee and William St. John Tozer and Vermont Hatch of counsel for the Irving Trust Company, receiver. Fowler asked for an adjournment of the hearing until Monday, saying that George Gordon Battle, chief of counsel for the Clarkes, would be back from Florida by that time. Unless the adjournment was granted, he said, the brothers would continue to refuse to answer questions on the ground that their answers might tend to incriminate or degrade them. The adjournment was granted.

Meanwhile, the investigation before Garrett W. Cotter, United States Commissioner, in the Federal Building developed testimony that Clarke Brothers had attempted to borrow $500,000, just before their failure, on an unsecured note accompanied by a perjurious affidavit.

This inquiry disclosed also that $82,619 in loans by Clarke Brothers to John W. Cutler, secretary of the Private Bankers' Association of the State of New York, stood on their books at the time of the failure; that none of his notes was secured; that no demand for payment ever had been made, although some of his debts to the bank were outlawed by the lapse of years, and that for several years he had been receiving from Clarke Brothers $100 a week merely for "holding himself in readiness" to perform some service for them. Cutler, a neighbor of James Rae Clarke, at Atlantic Highlands, N. J., said there was "no explanation" of why Clarke Brothers had been so generous with him.

Asked if it had been because, as secretary of the Private Bankers' Association, he had represented himself "as instrumental in preventing any supervision over the private banking house," he answered negatively. He admitted, however, that when the State Banking Department had attempted to examine Clarke Brothers in 1923 the firm had sent for him, and he had explained to the examiner that the State Banking Department was without jurisdiction and had "emphatically" advised the firm not to submit to such supervision.

Tore Ask for Protection.

So intense was the apparent feeling of victimized depositors gathered in the court room that Cutler and Milton C. Quimby, promoter who also owes Clarke Brothers on demand notes for which no demand has been made, asked for protection and were escorted from the court room by a deputy United States marshal. One depositor present threatened to "get somebody," but no violence actually was attempted.

A further development of the day was the announcement by George J. Mintzer, Assistant United States Attorney, that he expected soon to question the woman said to have received not less than $20 worth of flowers each week for a long time from James Rae Clarke. Mr. Mintzer

9 OR MORE KILLED AS COLORADO TRAIN PLUNGES OFF BRIDGE

Flood-Weakened Structure Gives Way Under Rock Island Express Near Stratton.

NEW YORKERS LOSE LIVES

G. F. Carlie, Wife and Daughter Among the Victims in Car Trapped Under Water.

OVER TWO SCORE INJURED

Morris Gest on Train, Escapes Unhurt and Helps in the Rescue.

By The Associated Press.

DENVER, Col., July 18.—Nine bodies had been given up tonight by the flooded arroyo that courses through the tableland three miles west of Stratton, Col., as the known toll of lives occasioned by the collapse of a trestle at 4 o'clock this morning on the main line of the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railroad.

The arroyo, normally dry, had been suddenly turned into a swirling, raging torrent by a wall of water from a cloudburst last night.

Rescue crews reported that all of the bodies recovered were taken from the creek bed during the day by workers who frantically searched the wreckage of an all-steel Pullman car that was hurtled into the water from the crack western passenger train, No. 5, bound from St. Louis for Colorado Springs and the Pacific Coast.

Additional bodies may be recovered before the wreckage finally is cleared away, in the opinion of railroad officials, who tonight were directing rescue operations.

Dead All in Submerged Car.

All of those who lost their lives were in the all-steel Pullman car placed on the train at St. Louis. The car, submerged throughout the day, was not entered until late tonight, the high water having held rescuers back.

The known dead follow:

Mrs. MARY McDONALD, West Palm Beach, Fla.
Mrs. BEN LEWIS, Memphis, Tenn.
HARRY LEWIS, Memphis, Tenn.
G. S. CARLIE, 463 153d Street, New York City.
Mrs. G. S. CARLIE, New York, his wife.
JULIA CARLIE, New York, daughter.
Mrs. JENNIE FOLTZ, Memphis.
Negro porter, believed to be Brooks Cline.
Unidentified negro porter.

More than twoscore persons, who were aboard other cars on the train, were injured. It was believed some would die.

All bodies of the victims so far recovered have been removed to Stratton and thence to Burlington by Coroner Orin P. Penny of Kit Carson County.

The swirling torrent, carrying death and destruction in its wake, completely submerged car 200 of the train during most of the day, and it was nearly an hour after the wreck, survivors in the other coaches said, before it definitely was established that one car of the train actually was missing.

With the collapse of the bridge, which was less than fifty feet wide, over the arroyo eight cars, seven Pullmans and a chair car left the train and were strewn over the countryside. Two of the Pullmans—those at either end of the submerged death car—were left suspended from the track banks, partially submerged. Occupants of these two cars, as soon as they realized what had occurred, made their way to safety from the free ends of the cars.

Another Train Passed Safely.

Many of the passengers, survivors said, were awake at the time of the wreck. They had been awakened but a few minutes before by the taking of a siding a few miles east

RUSSIA AND CHINA MASS BORDER FORCES; MARTIAL LAW IN HARBIN, CIVILIANS FLEE; NANKING LEADERS MEET, SHOW NO CONCERN

WHERE WAR THREATENS IN THE FAR EAST.

The Chinese Eastern Railway, the cause of the controversy, and the area it serves. Both Russia and China are reported massing troops along the Amur River, where the first actual hostilities are likely to occur. Harbin is under martial law. Large bodies of Soviet troops are concentrating at Manchuli and Pogranichnaya.

DOUBT FIRST TEST OF KELLOGG PACT

NO ENFORCEMENT PROVIDED

Situation Lends Force to Demand for the Completion of Treaties, Creating Penalties.

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, July 18.—The crisis between Russia and China offers the first test of the Kellogg pact against war, observers in the British capital declare. Both countries signed the treaty, pledging themselves against war, but the question now arises as to how to start operation of the Kellogg pact.

"What happens next, and how, and when?"

That no clear answer appears automatically to this pertinent interrogation lends strength to the argument that the anti-war treaty needs completion. Its present form is said to be all right so long as there are no international dangers, but it is contended that when a crisis comes the Kellogg pact should be supported by machinery which would direct the contesting nations toward a peaceful method of arranging their differences.

The point is especially clear in the present case because Russia is not a member of the League and that organization cannot call on Russia to observe peace commitments under the covenant of the League. The Kellogg pact alone binds Russia to peaceful settlement of her difference with China, although China, as a League member, could ask the League to invite Russia to accept the offices of the Council.

However, Russia has so consistently shown hostility to the Geneva organization that this method would offer small chance of success. And so the question is all the more pointed as to what effect the Kellogg pact will have in the first real international crisis which has arisen since it was signed.

Will it have any more effect than some thirty-one platonic arbitration

LEAGUE WATCHES FAR EAST MOVES

Cannot Act Without an Official Notice of Threat of War Under Article XI of the Covenant.

REBUFF BY RUSSIA LIKELY

Geneva Circles Argue Kellogg Pact Is Logical Instrument for Preservation of Peace.

By CLARENCE K. STREIT.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

GENEVA, July 18.—Russia's rupture of her relations with China and reports from Nanking that the Nationalist Government will "resist all Soviet threats" are causing growing uneasiness here, though there remains a tendency to doubt whether the dispute will develop into war. Whether or not the situation now constitutes a threat of war as contemplated in Article XI of the Covenant, none of the League members, so far as known, has yet considered it its duty to call the dispute officially to the attention of the Secretariat, which step is necessary if the League machinery for the preserving of peace is to be set in motion.

One explanation advanced for this is the fact that Russia is not a member of the League, which makes the risk of a rebuff great. Another explanation that is gaining ground is that since both Russia and China have signed the Kellogg pact that instrument is logically the one that should first be invoked. How it should be invoked, however, is another question, with the tendency here to look toward the United States for the answer in view of the responsibility it took in promoting the pact.

Geneva Looks to Washington.

Another factor which is turning eyes here toward Washington in this respect is the fact that the United States is outside the League. If the Leaguers intervene they know they may be obliged, before they are through, to resort to a blockade, and they have always been very chary in the use of that weapon, because they do not know whether or not the United States would trade with the League's enemy. The coolness which Congress showed to the Capper and Porter resolutions even after the ratification of the Kellogg pact, has not reassured them in this regard.

Though all this encourages the tendency to await a move by Washington, some remember that Washington's position in the present situation is complicated by its lack of diplomatic relations with Russia.

Meanwhile the Secretariat is keeping in close if unofficial touch with London, and especially with Paris, where, it is recalled with satisfaction, are both the actual President of the Council, Ministers Adatci, the Japanese ambassador to France, and that very handy man in a League pinch, Aristide Briand. The Deputy Secretary General, Joseph Avenol, who has been on vacation, returned today and took charge in the absence of Sir Eric Drummond. M. Avenol recently made an extended trip on behalf of the League through China and Japan, going via Russia, so that he fortunately has a personal knowledge of the background of the present trouble.

Seized Set Precedent.

The fact that M. Briand, as President of the Council at the time of the Bolivia-Paraguay dispute, took the responsibility of causing League intervention has created speculation here as to whether M. Adatci is Great Military Activity Reported.

PEKING, China, July 18 (AP).—Japanese News Agency dispatches from Harbin state that Russian forces are being massed at Pogranichinaya and Manchuli along the Siberian-Manchurian frontier.

Other Harbin dispatches said troops of the Irkutsk (Siberia) army corps had started for the Chinese frontier making the long journey in commandeered trains. Traffic on the Transsiberian line was still interrupted today and all travelers from Peking who had bought tickets canceled their passage.

The transportation of Chinese troops to the frontiers also was reported being rushed.

The Russian Consulate-General in Harbin has been closed and the staff is preparing to leave.

Russian Consular representatives at Peking, Tientsin, Kalgan and at all points in Manchuria prepared to depart and expected final word from Moscow at any moment.

The Russian officials here estimated that there were about 150,000 Russians who were Soviet sympathizers at present in China, the majority in Manchuria.

Martial Law Grips Harbin.

TOKIO, July 18 (AP).—Martial law, according to Japanese news agency dispatches tonight, has been proclaimed in Harbin after announcement of the diplomatic break between Russia and China.

All newspapers, including Japanese, were censored. Business was at a standstill and the streets were heavily patrolled by Chinese soldiers.

General Chang Ching-hui made a proclamation that the death penalty would be enforced on persons spreading alarmist reports. Concentration of Russian troops opposite Manchuli was said to be growing rapidly heavier.

The same dispatches said that hundreds of Chinese civilians were fleeing from the border towns of Manchuli and Pogranichnaya. The latter community was panicky because of Soviet air patrols flying along the border.

The Japanese Consular General in Harbin was crowded day and night by Russians seeking visas to permit them to go to Dairen, which is a Japanese leasehold. It was understood that they were not permitted to go to Japan proper.

Consul General Yagi presided at a meeting today of representatives of the Japanese community to discuss emergency measures for the protection of Japanese lives and property should disorders occur.

Persistent rumors that White Russians were aiding the Chinese were confirmed today with a message to the retired Japanese Major Kinoshi from Ataman Semenov, a White leader at Dairen, whom he served as aide for many years. Semenov

G. F. Baker's Fortune Rises $11,000,000 in Day As First National Bank Stock Gains $500

The aristocrat of all bank stocks—the shares of the First National Bank of New York—soared more than $500 per share in the open market yesterday, and at the close of a day of rather hectic going closed at $7,800 bid and $8,000 asked. There were reports from bank stock traders that as high as $8,100 had been paid for stock during the day. Because of its extremely high price, the deals are generally in small lots, ranging in from one to ten shares. Little of the stock is ever offered for sale.

Calculated on an advance of $500 a share the personal fortune of George F. Baker, the veteran chairman of the institution and its builder, appreciated by about $11,000,000, since he is reported to hold 22,000 shares of the stock. On the basis of the $8,000 appreciation in these shares since Jan. 1, 1929, Mr. Baker's holdings appreciated $66,000,000, and the aggregate market value of his holdings in First National Bank stock at the $8,000 figure, is $176,000,000. Several officers of the First National Bank are reported to be large holders of the shares, but this stock, as well as Mr. Baker's personal interest, is closely held for investment and probably could not be bought at any figure.

One of the stories going about Wall Street to account for the sudden spurt in the shares of First National Bank is that it is eventually to form the nucleus of a huge merger. This story, however, has been repeatedly and authoritatively denied, and nothing further was added yesterday by the officials of the institution, who had no explanation for the sudden demand. The most likely explanation, however, is the fact that the banking institution continues to forge ahead in earnings. For the first half of the year these earnings were more than $100 a share on its capital of $10,000,000, with every likelihood that this sum would be equaled, in earnings, during the final half of the year.

The institution's last statement showed total resources of $497,953,797 and deposits of $340,917,000. It has a surplus of $90,000,000 and undivided profits of $7,775,175. The item of the large surplus has led to repeated rumors of a possible stock dividend. The shares pay a dividend of $100 per annum, and each share also represents ownership of a share of First Security Company, the institution's affiliate, which paid dividends of $80 last year.

The Insurance shares Corporation of Delaware announced yesterday that it is the holder of 200 shares of First National Bank stock on which the appreciation since July 1 has been $400,000.

Women Dominate Arkansas Bootlegging, Say Dry Agents, Arresting Fourteen in Raids

Special to The New York Times.

TEXARKANA, Ark., July 18.—War has been declared on women bootleggers in Arkansas, S. M. Gurley, deputy prohibition administrator for the western district of the State, announced here today. The declaration came after fourteen women, arrested in raids on the first day of the campaign, had been arraigned in Federal court and released on bond.

"Seventy-five per cent of the bootlegging in this State is being carried on by women," Mr. Gurley asserted in court. "The days of Southern chivalry are over so far as women violators of the prohibition law are concerned. We have been carrying on under-cover work in Southern Arkansas for the last six months and before we are through hundreds of women are going to find themselves facing a Federal judge."

Raids were started today and in Miller County late yesterday. They will go on indefinitely, Mr. Gurley said. Seven of the women arrested are white and seven are negroes. They were charged with possession and sale of liquor. Six men also were arrested. All will be subject to prosecution under the Jones act, Federal officers said.

"In the past, prohibition officials, especially in the South, have been inclined to look askance at the women liquor vendors because Federal judges have not favored sending them to such institutions as Atlanta," Mr. Gurley asserted. "Now, with the new prison at Alderson, W. Va., for women prisoners, the situation is changed entirely.

"We realize that the sight of a woman with six or seven children being dragged into jail is not very inspiring, but the laws were made for women as well as men. The male bootleggers, realizing in the past that the law was not so strict in the case of women, have taken advantage of the situation by attempting to hide behind petticoats. We have data to show that 50 per cent of the women engaged in peddling liquor in Arkansas are doing so as agents for their husbands or men friends."

Emergency Parley in Nanking.

NANKING, July 18 (AP).—President Chiang Kai-shek called an emergency conference of Chinese leaders this afternoon to discuss the situation with regard to Russia.

Tonight the Foreign Office announced receipt of the note from Moscow severing diplomatic relations. The text was not made public here.

The conference followed receipt of a telegram from Governor Chang Hsueh-liang of Manchuria reporting that "the situation is extremely grave" because the Russians were concentrating forces along the Manchurian-Siberian frontier.

The Nationalist president talked with the leaders all afternoon, and although no official announcement was made, it is understood that the government had not lost hope of an amicable settlement.

A spokesman for the government said:

"The government is not perturbed. The note was expected. The Nationalist Government is fully prepared to meet any developments likely to materialize."

Sea and Rail Service Stop.

MOSCOW, July 18 (AP).—In consequence of its breaking off all relations with Nanking the Soviet Government today suspended all railroad and steamship communication with China.

American and other travelers now en route to Harbin, will be taken only to the last station on Russian soil, about nine miles from Chinese territory. They will have the choice of walking from there to the first Chinese settlement over the border or of a round-about journey by rail to Vladivostok by way of Chita and Habarovsk, whence they will be able to reach Harbin by way of Japan in about a week's time.

Traffic experts believed tonight that Russia and China would suffer equally in loss of trade, passenger traffic and other advantages but it was expected that Japan would reap considerable profit as the result of the rupture.

Most international merchandise for the Chinese market is likely to go through Japanese ports instead of over the Chinese Eastern Railway lines through Manchuria.

MOSCOW SEES SOVIET ON THE VERGE OF WAR

White Russians in Chinese Territory Are Believed to Be the Obstacle to Peace.

By WALTER DURANTY.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MOSCOW, July 18.—The facile optimism aroused both in Russian and foreign circles here by the first Chinese note in reply to Russia's ultimatum has given way to a feeling that Russia, against its own will, has been brought to the verge of war.

Press editorials today make a gallant attempt to present the rupture of economic and political relations with China as an "act of decisive importance" which may yet bring the Chinese to reason. But everyone here knows that relations practically were broken after Chang Tso-lin's raid on the Soviet Embassy at Peking in 1927 and that the recent seizure by the Manchurians of the Chinese Eastern meant the stoppage of traffic, essentially a rupture of economic relations, to which last night's Soviet note refers.

Public opinion here is greatly stirred and will not be satisfied by sophistries about the "act of decisive importance," which in reality is nothing more than a diplomatic gesture. A gesture of great importance, no doubt, but only in so far as it is penultimate to action of graver nature.

Not for nothing is an editorial in Pravda today, despite its moderate, even pacifist policy, entitled "In Readiness for War."

There is a factor in the situation which seems to be making a peaceful settlement almost impossible, namely the activities of the White (Reactionary or Czarist) Russians on Chinese territory. In a direct dispute with the Chinese the Kremlin doubtless could restrain the Soviet people despite the greatest provocation, but news that Ataman Semenof of sinister memory has been authorized to form a White Guard force of 15,000 men and advance it toward the Soviet border arouses uncontrollable fury.

In heavy type an editorial in Isvestia today concludes:

"It is the question of security on our eastern frontiers which compels the Soviet to take corresponding measures against possible action by the White Guard bandits. The character of these measures will be dictated by the further development of events."

In plain English, this means that peace or war now hangs on a frontier incident which the White Russians, who, at present as in the past, according to opinion here, have utterly misconstrued the sentiments of the Russian people, are doubtless eager to provoke.

There is no thought here of mobilization and volunteers offering by tens of thousands to join the Red Army have not yet been accepted. But Isvestia states significantly "the working masses of the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics can be quite confident that the government is doing everything necessary to protect Soviet interests and the security of its frontiers."

CHIANG HOLDS REINS, SHANGHAI BELIEVES

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

SHANGHAI, July 18.—Nanking is preserving a stony silence on its course since receipt of the Soviet note. About the only news vouchsafed today was that there is a movement of Chinese troops toward Manchuria.

Dr. C. T. Wang, the Foreign Minister, was due from Tientsin today. His absence from Nanking since the beginning of the crisis is explained here by the supposition that control of the situation has passed into the hands of President Chiang Kai-shek.

A Chinese wireless message via Berlin dated yesterday at Moscow states that the Soviet Government is disturbed. Moderates there are said to lay stress on the financial and international risks of war, in view of Russia's present condition, but all are said to be agreed that, if China's answer was unsatisfactory, the continuance of a passive policy toward China would be disastrous.

If war should break out the position of Russians in China, of whom there are 15,000 in Shanghai alone, would become interesting. A vast majority are "White" Russians, opposed to the Red régime, many of whom declare they are ready to enlist for China against the Soviet. Already, it is rumored, White Russian units have been enrolled in Manchuria for service.

As always on rumors of impending war, silver exchange has strengthened, but less than was expected. Gold speculators apparently incline to the view there will be no hostilities. But the dominant factor is Nanking's apparent conviction that China has nothing to fear even if it comes to war.

PEKING, July 18 (AP).—Foreign diplomats here were inclined tonight not to take a very serious view of the Manchurian situation despite the severance of diplomatic relations.

They believe that it is even yet quite possible that an armed conflict can be avoided and thought the question would probably be discussed internationally, especially if Transsiberian traffic on the Chinese Eastern Railway should be suspended for some time or if the Chinese should be unable to maintain peace and order in Manchuria.

The American Legation is closely watching the developments, as are representatives of other powers.

The American Minister, John Van A. MacMurray, was due to leave for the United States on Monday. It was not known if he had decided to postpone his departure.

CHINESE QUELL REDS IN RIOT AT HARBIN

By HUGH BYAS.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

TOKIO, July 18.—Japanese news agencies continue to receive short messages from Harbin.

Rail passengers by international trains have been obliged to change cars at Manchuli to proceed to Vladivostok by the Ussuri line. The Russian consulate at Harbin is busily preparing its withdrawal.

Russian employes of the railroad assemblage works are excited and held a riotous meeting which Chinese soldiers quelled.

Two troop trains were reported leaving for Pogranichinaya. China's military authorities at Taitathar have telegraphed Harbin asking for military trains. The general atmosphere is one of obvious uneasiness, colored by alarms and speculations.

A most impressive feature of the whole situation is the universal disbelief here in war. The basis of this conviction, which emanates from Japanese high military circles and is shared by very well-informed foreign observers, is that the Russians will not risk a campaign. Their troops might win battles, but for many reasons the Russian Government is not considered willing to face the prospect of a long war.

It seems certain that no communications have passed between the Russian and Japanese Governments regarding the crisis.

Break Surprises Tokio.

Japanese officials were surprised today by newspaper reports which gave the first intimation of Russia's rejection of the Nanking note in reply to the Russian ultimatum.

Discovery that the situation, which had been thought to be improving, actually had become worse was more than disconcerting, but it has not seriously shaken the Japanese belief that peace can be maintained. The latest step, it is said, simply tightens up an existing state of affairs.

The Japanese Foreign Office declares that even if war breaks out Japan will not send troops to Manchuria.

The Soviet Embassy, which also doubts the prospect of war, says the steps taken are not to be read as foreshadowing punitive measures.

The wire closure and stoppage of rail traffic between Manchuria and Siberia, it is said, will cause loss and inconvenience to Manchurian farmers, but an economic blockade is quite impossible, as Manchuria's goods can still be carried by the South Manchurian Railroad to Dairen. An active government, it is declared, could counteract the effects of Russia's action by cheap freights over the railway lines in Manchuria to the Japanese railhead.

Tokio Considers Interventions.

TOKIO, July 18 (AP).—Although the Japanese Government is maintaining an attitude of watchful waiting on the Manchurian situation since Russia broke with China, it was indicated this afternoon that there was a possibility of Japan making representations to both China and Russia with a view to the maintenance of peace.

Premier Hamaguchi and Foreign Minister Shidehara, although not informed officially as to the break, conferred on the subject today, after receipt of press reports of the situation.

A foreign office spokesman said the time was not yet ripe for positive Japanese action, although holding grave possibilities demanding the most serious consideration from the Tokio Government.

Japan would remain neutral in the event of actual war so long as her vital interests were not jeopardized, he added.

Influential circles have suggested that it might be necessary for Japan to address representations to both nations in the interests of peace in the Orient. This suggestion was tangible and definite, but has not reached the stage of official deliberation.

The Foreign Office spokesman said the breach did not necessarily imply war as a consequence, although Russia had indicated her determination to safeguard her rights under the Peking-Mukden agreements in 1924.

War Possibility Admitted.

A Foreign Office spokesman said the new Soviet note did not necessarily mean war, but did indicate a Russian determination to insist upon its interests and rights under the Peking and Mukden agreements.

At the same time the spokesman added:

"We do not at all exclude the possibility of open war between the two countries, as loss of the Chinese Eastern Railway must be a matter of life and death to Vladivostok."

Harbin dispatches to the Japanese news agency Rengo state that Consul General Meinikov has received orders from Moscow for his immediate withdrawal from Manchuria.

About twenty foreign Trans-Siberian travelers, including American, British, French and Japanese nationals, were reported stranded on the Russian side of the border because of suspension of the connection at Manchuria and because the Russians are taking over international trains for military purposes.

The Japanese General Staff, which is probably the best informed body in the world on the politico-strategic situation in Manchuria, expressed the belief this morning that the rupture of relations between China and Russia probably would not lead to serious hostilities.

The General Staff admitted, however, that concentration of Russian and Chinese troops along the border caused apprehension. It was feared that their proximity in the present inflammable state of mind might bring on a clash.

REDS CALL BUDENNY TO LEAD, RIGA HEARS

Soviet General Is Reported to Have Plans for Four Objectives at Home and on Frontiers.

WON FAME IN 1919 BATTLES

With Wife He Aroused Peasants and Defeated Both General Denikin and Wrangel.

RIGA, Latvia, July 18 (AP).—The celebrated Russian General Budenny, a brilliant cavalry leader, was reported in Riga today to have been recalled from vacation.

He was said here to have four objectives.

The first was to concentrate a powerful air squadron on the Manchurian frontier, the second to reinforce infantry, cavalry and tank divisions in the frontier region, the third to reinforce the Leningrad and Moscow garrison and the fourth to concentrate Russian naval forces at either extremity of the Soviet Union.

Despite these reports, the Russian Government was believed in Riga to be disinclined for hostilities and was awaiting a detailed reply in a more polite tone from the Chinese Government to the Russian note.

The Nanking reply was considered here to be a flat offense to Soviet dignity, just as Vice Commissar for Foreign Affairs Karakhan described it.

An ex-Cossack Sergeant Major, General Budenny, has become the Ney of the Soviet army.

Late in the Summer of 1919, when Denikin stood before Orel with his army spread out like a great bow from the Rumanian frontier far beyond Kief to the middle courses of the Volga, every one believed bolshevism's last hour had struck. For Deniken's army had wrested South Russia, the nation's granary, from the Reds. Then Orel, that Trotsky called the Red Verdun, fell, and great was the rejoicing in anti-Bolshevist circles. The capture of Moscow seemed only a question of time.

At this juncture a new figure appeared in the national life of Russia. The son of a Cossack, a child of the steppes, who had wandered about the country as a leader of small bands after the collapse of order in Russia, he saw that the peasants and workers could not hold their own against the mobile, mounted Cossack troops of Generals Shurkel and Wrangel, the Deniken leaders. He took the side of the workers.

"Proletarians to horse!" was the cry he sent through the land. His bands became a Red regiment, and he became a Red regimental commander. Unexampled daring and boldness, the proper handling of the simple, raw human material, made him the idol of his troops. With remarkable ferocity he fell upon Deniken, whose forces fled in precipitate retreat.

Budenny's wife had played a big part in this success. Like a feminine Paul Revere she had ridden through the country summoning the Reds to arms. Like her husband, she had been born a Cossack and as a girl had roamed with her men folk on the backs of the short Russian ponies.

When the Red revolution came Mme. Budeeny, who had not been able to go to the front with her husband during the World War, appeared suddenly at his side. His mild remonstrations availed him nothing, and they soon became inseparable. She was a sergeant, wore the Cossack garb and led her own raiding parties. She soon became known as the Russian Joan of Arc.

After Deniken had been driven back to the Black Sea, Budenny conducted a campaign against General Wrangel in the Crimea. It was while forcing Wrangel back that the Poles invaded the Ukraine and took Kiev. Budenny was sent against the Poles and in a vigorous guerilla warfare drove them fleeing before him. The Kosciusko Squadron of American aviators served with the Poles and engaged in many a fight with Budenny's cavalry. Then the French took a hand and the Russians were driven back to their own frontiers.

But Budenny had made himself the idol of Russia.

BERLIN REPRESENTS CHINA AND RUSSIA

German Envoys Will Look After Interests of Each in Place of Departed Diplomats.

ARMIES ARE COMPARED

Nanking Is Believed to Have Advantage of Numbers on Manchurian Frontier.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, July 18.—Political and diplomatic circles in Berlin were inclined tonight to take a more sanguine view of the Russo-Chinese crisis and the belief prevails that an outbreak of active hostilities is not an immediate probability.

For the moment neither a state of war nor peace obtains, in the opinion of competent quarters, where the hope was expressed that no time would be lost to invoke the offices of a third power as mediator. Japan is named as the most available go-between, since the relations between Moscow and Nanking have been definitely broken off.

Germany to Represent Both.

The German Government has been requested by both Russia and China to take over the respective interests of both countries in places where diplomats and other officials have departed and a note acceding to the request will be dispatched to both governments tomorrow, it was announced at the Foreign Office.

The Berlin press confines itself to a discussion of the background of the present conflict. While some papers are of the opinion that China's procedure was a bit precipitate, the editorial convictions reflect plenty of caution.

The prospect of war in the Far East on the eve of the enforcement of the Kellogg anti-war pact moves the Tageblatt to say that such an eventuality would surely be the most dismal and sinister human experiences, in view of the fact that both Russia and China are signatories to this significant international accord.

"This experience should teach the world that what has been accomplished up to the present is but the framework which now must be filled in with the main substance," says the Tageblatt, adding that the controversy over Manchuria is likely to project the whole range of Russian, Chinese and even Pacific problems into the present conflict, for which reason the nations banded together in the League of Nations or who signed the Kellogg pact cannot now afford to stand by idly in the rôle of onlookers.

Chinese Outnumber Russians.

Estimates of the relative fighting strength of the two belligerents incline to give the Chinese the best argument as far as numbers go. War on China's far-flung front would be an expensive undertaking for the Soviets. Russia is believed to have about 110,000 men immediately available at the Manchurian frontier, while the Chinese are assumed to have twice that number, although they chiefly comprise troops who have been engaged in civil war and whose fighting value against a Western army cannot be gauged.

The Chinese Army recently was reorganized by Colonel Max Bauer, who was General Ludendorff's chief of staff in the World War. Colonel Bauer died at Shanghai last Spring. He was official military adviser to the Chinese Government, which, after his death, engaged Lieut. Col. Griebel as his successor. Colonel Griebel, who was conspicuous in quelling the Communist riots in Germany shortly after the war, left for China some months ago.

The presence in Manchuria of a large number of Russian emigres, who have placed themselves at the disposal of the Chinese Army, is viewed as a possible menace in that they are likely to engage in warfare against the Soviets on their own account.

likely to take a similar step now. He might be encouraged to do this, especially if the threat develops, it is believed, because Japan has vital interests in the dispute and because his position as President of the Council both increases his personal responsibility and at the same time allows him to bring the dispute before the League without involving the responsibility of his country as much as would such action by any other leaguer which would have to act in its individual capacity.

On the other hand, it is recognized that the present emergency is much more delicate and is potentially a graver matter than the South American situation which M. Briand faced.

Covenant Provision for Action.

"Any war or threat of war, whether immediately affecting any of the members of the League or not, is hereby declared a matter of concern to the whole League, and the League shall take any action that may be deemed wise and effectual to safeguard the peace of nations. In case any such emergency should arise the Secretary General shall on the request of any member of the League forthwith summon a meeting of the Council.

"It is also declared to be the friendly right of each member of the League to bring to the attention of the Assembly or of the Council any circumstance whatever affecting international relations which threatens to disturb international peace or the good understanding between nations upon which peace depends."

BREACH IN ORIENT STIRS WASHINGTON

Capital Is Taken by Surprise, but Doubts if Real War Will Be the Outcome.

75 AMERICANS IN WAR ZONE

Army Men Believe Troop Movements "Diplomatic," but Stimson May Cancel Minister's Leave.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 17.—Only fragmentary reports were received by the American Government and foreign embassies and legations today on the Russo-Chinese dispute but all officials asserted that, in the light of their own advices, press but all officials asserted that in the situation war was neither justified nor warranted.

Both American and foreign officials admitted that they had twice been surprised, first by the Russian ultimatum and then by Russia's severance of diplomatic relations.

They tempered their optimism of recent days by pointing out that war might be forced through some unexpected, inflammatory incident, especially as troops are reported mobilized along the Manchurian-Siberian border. They reiterated, however, that they could not be persuaded that China and Russia would resort to force to settle the controversy.

This viewpoint coincided with official opinion in European and Asiatic countries as transmitted here by American representatives in those countries. Everywhere, it was reported, there was confidence that an amicable adjustment would be reached.

Russia Expected to Stay Firm.

Apparently, it was held, Russia intends to show China that it is determined to have a satisfactory adjustment. It was considered probable that the Soviet Government might take other firm steps in an effort "to bring China to its senses," such as closing the Transsiberian Railroad at the Siberian frontier. Katsuji Debuchi, the Japanese Ambassador, and Dr. C. C. Wu, the Chinese Minister, called separately upon Secretary of State Stimson this afternoon, but no information was forthcoming concerning the subject of their visits.

After the Japanese Ambassador had left a report gathered strength that Japan was prepared to offer its good offices to China and Russia, much as the United States did in the recent border dispute between Bolivia and Paraguay, but this lacked confirmation both at the State Department and the Japanese Embassy.

Secretary Stimson said earlier that he was watching the situation closely, but it was explained at the State Department that the instructions given to American diplomatic and naval officers in China during the revolution of two years ago still stood and were broad enough for them to act in any emergency for the protection of Americans.

75 Americans in Danger Zone.

According to latest reports there are seventy-five Americans in the danger zone, sixty-five of whom are at Harbin, but the situation has not developed to the point where the State Department has sent instructions to its legation in Peking to warn them to leave that region. Advices were received in official circles today that families which were at Summer resorts north of Harbin have retired to that city.

Other advices also told of Soviet troop concentrations at Irkutsk and Chita, but definite information on the exact status of the emergency was so scant that the State Department sent a special inquiry to its legation in China asking for as complete details as possible.

Reports that some Americans were stranded on halted trains on the Transsiberian Railroad lacked official confirmation.

Hope for peace generally is held out here because of the basic factors involved in the controversy between China and Russia, but Senator Borah, chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, in commenting on the situation pointed to the Kellogg anti-war treaties and recalled that both countries were signatories. The force of that compact, he emphasized, depended upon the good faith of the signers, for no compulsion was provided to enforce compliance with its terms of renouncing war as a national policy for settling international disputes.

Effect on All Treaties Feared.

Should China and Russia go to war, he added, it would have an injurious effect not only upon the anti-war treaty but upon all other treaties.

The Idaho Senator expressed the hope that there would be no war but said it was unfortunate that the controversy had developed in two countries where public opinion was least effective. Should there be war, he added, it would be impossible to predict how far it would spread. Japan, Great Britain, France and Germany, he said, probably would become involved, while the United States would have a moral interest.

Senator Borah did not say what good would come of an attempt by the League of Nations to intervene in the situation, for, he contended, the League had no way of enforcing its decisions.

Should war be precipitated, it was felt here it would probably be by an act of Russia, as China is now in possession of the Chinese Eastern Railroad, has ousted Russian officials from its domain and is willing to negotiate a settlement. Moreover, in military opinion, China is not prepared to wage a foreign war, although it was admitted here that the Nationalist Government might overrate its powers in that respect and thereby present an element of danger.

Near-Panic in Manchuria.

Military reports received here today were that the commanders of the Manchurian forces along the Siberian border were in a state bordering on panic, lest war should develop, and had no desire to force armed conflict themselves. Other military advices indicated that reinforcements the Nationalist Government has sent north have proceeded only as far as the Great Wall, although a few nominal reinforcements of officers may have been sent to strengthen the Manchurian forces.

Although public opinion appears to be aroused in Russia, it was pointed out that the Soviet Government was a dictatorship, with its power resting in a few men.

The difficulty in predicting what Russia would do, it was explained, arose principally from this fact, for the few leaders can make any decision they wish and order its execution.

The Soviet Government, according to the information here, however, does not wish war with China because of domestic conditions and because it recognizes that in the background, in event of war in Manchuria, stands Japan, which would not permit its interests in that region to be jeopardized. The Soviet leaders, it was pointed out, realize that there is a great deal of dissatisfaction among the masses of Russia and remember that one of the chief elements in the success of the revolution of 1917 was the mobilization of the army.

Time Held Inopportune.

Through the mobilization the unrest of that time was concentrated so that the Soviet agitators could take advantage of the situation and mold it to their own ends. With dissatisfaction general among the farmers and with Soviet factions ready to seize any opportunity against the Stalin régime, it was argued, the Russian Government should not be expected to risk a general mobilization.

A Manchurian war also would place a great economic strain on Russia at a time that its government is attempting to consolidate its position at home and when it is unprepared financially to wage a foreign war.

The more or less disorganized condition of the Transsiberian Railroad, over which the army would have to be supplied, presents a further formidable obstacle to armed conflict.

Moreover, it was argued in informed circles, other means are open to Russia for retaliation upon China. It could, for example, arouse the Mongolians to wage guerrilla warfare on the Chinese frontiers, or, as on past occasions, it could subsidize and supply disaffected Chinese Generals in campaigns against the Nationalist armies.

The troop movements reported from Siberia were looked upon here as designed for diplomatic effect rather than for military purposes, while it was pointed out that authoritative advices were lacking to show that they were extensive operations.

MacMurray's Leave in Doubt.

WASHINGTON, July 18 (AP).—John Van A. MacMurray, the American Minister in China, who had received leave to go to the United States for personal reasons, will be requested by Secretary Stimson to remain at his post in Peking if the situation takes a serious turn Secretary Stimson said today that he has so far not requested Mr. MacMurray to remain in China, nor has the Minister suggested yet that he forego his trip home.

Americans in the Harbin district deal mainly with the fur trade in Siberia and Manchuria. Some agricultural products are dealt in. The Standard Oil Company and the National City Bank are the two largest American organizations with representatives in Harbin. There are a few missionaries in the city. The majority of the missionaries in the district are British and the principal business interests are owned by Japanese or foreigners other than Americans.

That Japan is considering extending its good offices to China and Russia was looked upon as a hopeful sign inasmuch as the position Japan occupies through its interests in Southern Manchuria is expected to carry weight with both disputing countries.

LEADER IN MANCHURIA WAS ONCE JAILED HERE

Gregory Semenoff, Organizer of White Russians, Was Blamed for American Deaths.

General Gregory Semenoff, who is organizing White Russians to aid China against the Soviet and who served as a captain in the Russian Imperial Army during the World War, spent six days in the Ludlow Street jail in New York in 1922 while waiting to be released in bail after his arrest in a civil suit brought by the Youroveta Home and Foreign Trading Company, Inc., to obtain a $500,000 judgment for woolen goods alleged to have been seized by the "Ataman" or Cossack leader in Siberia. The Appellate Division of the Supreme Court later vacated the arrest order, holding that Semenoff and his troops were acting under orders from a de facto government when they committed the acts charged against them in Siberia.

At the time of Semenoff's arrest here Brig. Gen. Graves, who commanded American troops in Siberia, testified that the Ataman was a bandit and that an armored train under his command had fired on American troops, killing two of them. The Appellate Division ruled that this evidence was "not pertinent."

In 1918 General Semenoff sought the aid of the Allies in an effort to rid his country of the Bolshevist régime. The task of guarding the Chinese Eastern Railway, which was being used to transport munitions to the Czechoslovak and Russian troops operating against the Bolsheviki in Western Siberia, was assigned to him. The section to which Semenoff was assigned was from the Manchurian station on the Chinese border to Chita. The depredations of his troops later led the population to organize the Zemstvo troops against them. The outrages of Semenoff's troops were so persistent that both the British and French finally withdrew from him their support.

The Japanese continued to support him for a time, and after the execution of Admiral Kolchak by the Bolsheviki the Japanese concluded an agreement with the Kerkine and Udinsk governments by which they were to evacuate Chita and Semenoff was to be allowed to remain in command. But after the Japanese evacuation popular uprisings were organized against Semenoff and he went to Port Arthur. Subsequently he commanded the Cossack troops at Grodekova.

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

arrangements which amounted to exactly nothing in the test of the World War or will it prove it has a real effect?

And if not, will that failure lead to completion of the anti-war compact? Such questions are being asked in London.

The situation lends especial interest to Premier MacDonald's intention to adopt the optional clause of the World Court statutes on behalf of England in the hope that all nations will eventually sign it. This clause gives the World Court mandatory power to decide if an international commitment has been violated and to assign damages for its violation. It would fit the present case. It is the Prime Minister's idea that if all nations, including even Russia and the United States, were to adopt the optional clause of the World Court statutes, a long step would have been taken toward making the Kellogg pact a workable proposition.

In all European capitals there exists a wide absence of that faith which springs from Washington sources that signature of the Kellogg pact suffices to end war. Europe, which is so much more familiar with war than America, believes that when a crisis arises national passions become fanned in a manner which makes statesmen of the countries involved to forget the commitments they signed in the bright sunshine of peace-time unless beforehand such forgetfulness has been made dangerous and expensive and unless automatically working machinery for handling such a crisis has been set up. All of which has not been done with regard to the Kellogg pact.

And so it is believed for the moment in London that the prospects of the Kellogg pact making good its promises in the present strife are small indeed. If Washington, in conjunction with London, Paris and other capitals of the countries signing the Kellogg treaty should offer their good offices and bring Moscow and Nanking into peaceful negotiations, then the London pessimism of today would have to give way to optimism and faith in the anti-war treaty. And that must mean that, if Russia and China drift into war without the Kellogg pact playing any rôle at all, faith in the anti-war treaty will receive a considerable setback.

GUERRILLA WARFARE IN MANCHURIA FEARED

London Is Convinced Big-Scale Conflict of Russia and China Is Unlikely.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Friday, July 19.—Belief that the Sino-Russian dispute will be settled without armed conflict predominated here this morning. It all depends upon the efficient working of the brakes when the time comes to check the progress of the military machines, particularly that commanded by General Budenny, that have been set in motion on both sides of the Manchurian border.

At 4 o'clock this morning there had been no message from any quarter suggesting that steps had been taken to avert peril of a guerrilla war on the frontier, which is regarded here as the gravest factor in the situation. Nor has Russia shown any inclination to renounce her claim under the Peking and Mukden treaties of 1924 to share the administration of the Chinese Eastern Railway, which is now in the hands of the Nationalist Government at Nanking.

In fact, news dispatches indicate that the Russian public is increasingly angry and the Chinese are as adamant as they were yesterday.

According to the Riga correspondent of The London Times, General Nikolai Kuibyshieff, commander-in-chief of the Siberian forces, arrived at Blagovieshchensk yesterday and participated in a demonstration of workmen, officials and soldiers who passed a resolution declaring that every man would do his duty in defense of the Soviet.

Nikolai Kuibyshieff is a brother of Valerian Kuibyshieff, chairman of the Supreme Economic Council, and was appointed to command the Siberian armies in November.

According to reports from Moscow further anti-Chinese demonstrations were held, not only in the larger centres, but in the small towns. In some places, particularly at Kharkoff, Smolensk, Platigorsk and Cherningoff, a special "military fund" was organized and collections made for strengthening the defense of the republic, for building airplanes and other military equipment by means of deductions from workmen's wages.

From the same quarter, however, it is stated that Soviet politicians appear to be convinced that military operations on any large scale are unlikely. The opinion prevails that the Chinese will not confiscate the entire Chinese Eastern Railway, but buy the Russian share before termination of the railway agreement and that they have seized the rail way in order to strengthen their position for bargaining.

One touch of comic relief, as The Daily News sees it, is the Moscow newspaper Pravda's suggestion that the sinister hand of the British Prime Minister, Ramsay MacDonald, is behind the Chinese defense.

"The obvious danger," The Daily News adds, "is that with both parties mobilising on the Manchurian frontier, a casual local collision may make a general struggle unavoidable."

That seems accurrately to present the general viewpoint here.

PRINCE EDWARD ISLAND HOLDS TO PROHIBITION

Plebiscite Gives Big Endorsement to Present Dry Law in the Province.

CHARLOTTETOWN, P. E. I., July 18 (Canadian Press).—The prohibition act in Prince Edward Island was decisively endorsed by plebiscite today. All returns had not been compiled at midnight, but a prohibition victory was conceded a large majority.

About 17,000 electors cast their ballots, or 50 per cent of the vote polled in the general provincial election of 1927. Prohibition majorities were reported for all three counties, Kings, Queens and Prince.

The questions submitted to the electorate were: 1. Are you in favor of the prohibition act as now the law in this province? 2. Are you in favor of the sale of alcoholic liquors under a government control act?

A similar plebiscite will be held in Nova Scotia this year.

Army Aviator Takes Off Here to Fly to Alaska and Back in Three Days.

FOUR STOPS ON THE WAY

Expects to Reach Alaskan Destination in 30 Hours and 50 Minutes.

TO REST ONLY 4 TO 6 HOURS

Mrs. F. T. Davison Names Plane Before Flight to Test Efficiency of Fighting Aircraft.

Special to The New York Times.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., July 18.—Captain Ross G. Hoyt, who took off from Mitchel Field, New York, at 2:36 P. M. (Eastern Daylight Time) on a flight from New York to Nome, Alaska, arrived at Wold-Chamberlain Municipal Airport here at 9:58 P. M. (Eastern Daylight Time) for his first refueling stop of the flight.

After a rest Captain Hoyt resumed the flight at 11:13 P. M. (Eastern Daylight Time), planning to make his next refueling stop at Edmonton, Alberta, 1,100 miles away.

Hoyt averaged approximately 140.44 miles per hour on the 1,030-mile hop from New York, making the distance in 7 hours and 20 minutes.

Takes Off From Mitchel Field

A blue and orange biplane climbed lightly aloft at Mitchel Field yesterday afternoon, then circling, turned into the northwest and disappeared, bound for Nome, Alaska, 4,240 miles distant. The pilot, Captain Ross G. Hoyt of the Army Air Corps, has allotted thirty hours and fifty minutes flying time to the journey. He expects to set the wheels of his little machine down on Mitchel Field again late on Saturday—New York to Nome and return in three days—linking the Atlantic with Bering Sea, the frigid with the temperate zone in a little more than seventy-two hours.

The plane, a Curtiss Hawk pursuit ship, equipped with a Conqueror water-cooled motor which develops from 600 to 635 horsepower, was named the Newlaska by Mrs. F. T. Trubee Davison, whose husband is the Assistant Secretary of War for Aeronautics. Captain Hoyt was ready for the start, his big motor warmed, his parachute strapped in place and himself strapped in the tiny cockpit, which is three-quarters surrounded by gasoline tanks, when Secretary and Mrs. Davison arrived at the field. They were met by Captain Walter Bender, operations officer in charge of preparations for the start.

The ceremony was simple and quickly over. Mrs. Davison grasped a bottle of mineral water, tightly wrapped in a towel, crashed the muffled flask against the propeller hub and said:

"I christen thee Newlaska."

Plane Quickly in Air.

Mechanics quickly started the motor and after allowing it to turn over for a brief period Captain Hoyt nodded and smiled. Mechanics pulled the chocks from the wheels and Mrs. Davison and Captain Bender reached up and shook hands with the flier. Then he started.

The plane rolled but a scant hundred feet and daylight appeared between the grass and the undercarriage. The great motor which cast drive the machine through the air at 180 miles an hour lifted it like a kite in a strong wind. Quickly gaining altitude into the southwest, Hoyt swung a wide circle over the field, turned northward flying fast and still climbing a little as he disappeared over Queens.

The first leg of his flight, 1,025 miles from Mitchel Field to Minneapolis, he expected to accomplish in less than seven hours, hoping to land there before 10 o'clock Eastern Daylight Time. After a stop of an hour to replenish his five tanks with gasoline, his next hop of 1,100 miles to Edmonton, Alberta, he planned to make by 7 A. M. today. Within the next hour he will take off again bound for Whitehorse, Yukon, a jump of 1,090 miles. There mechanics with more fuel and oil await him, and Captain Hoyt expected to wave farewell to them before 5 o'clock, New York time, this afternoon as he swings northwesterly for Fairbanks, Alaska, 800 miles further on. After a brief stop at Fairbanks, where he expects to land at 3:40 o'clock tonight, the last leg of the course lies before him, 526 miles to Nome, where his schedule calls for him to land soon after 1 o'clock tomorrow morning, New York time.

After a rest of four to six hours, the first he planned to take during the whole trip, Captain Hoyt expects to start back for New York, making stops at the same points as on his northwestern voyage and landing at Mitchel Field in time for a late dinner Saturday night.

The start had been planned for today, but weather reports from Washington informed the captain that local thunder storms were coming in from Ohio and he put forward the start a day fearing that their arrival here might further delay his plans.

Beyond the Alleghanies the forecast was for clear weather for the next 1,500 miles, with clouds over the last part of the course. After leaving Minneapolis Captain Hoyt expects to dive low over Fargo, N. D., and Regina, Saskatchewan, where persons will be watching for him but he will not land if everything is going well. Settlements in that north country are few and distances are great and the War Department advised the flier to adopt this method of checking his whereabouts in case of an emergency. He is carrying little in the way of food. His plane is a flying engine with a seat for a pilot hollowed out among gasoline tanks leaving little room for spare supplies. Three quart containers, holding one of orange juice, one of milk and eggs and one of water, are his flying rations. He also carried a pistol and twenty rounds of ammunition.

The plane is a conventional Curtiss Hawk especially fitted with tanks and stream-lined for this trip. Besides the usual wing tank there is a tank in front of the pilot, one on each side and a fifth under the fuselage. The wing tank is shaped like an air foil and actually is the landing edge of the upper wing. The side and bottom tanks are stream-lined behind the engine so that they appear as integral parts of the fuselage.

The plane cruises at 150 miles an hour and has a top speed of 180. It is fifteen miles an hour faster than the ordinary service pursuit planes.

"The purpose of the flight," Captain Hoyt said, "is to test the efficiency of our fighting aircraft for long range pursuit work. The ordinary pursuit ship has a range of about 250 miles. With our special gasoline tanks this plane has a range of 700 miles. It would be possible with ships of this type to use Mitchel Field as a base and send out patrols to Atlanta, Ga., well beyond Cleveland or northwest and expect them to get back here after their patrol was finished without landing."

ROUTE OF NEW YORK-ALASKA FLIGHT.

9 OR MORE KILLED IN PLUNGE OF TRAIN

of Stratton to permit the passing of the companion eastbound train. Railroad officials estimated tonight that the eastbound train had crossed the weakened structure over the arroyo less than forty-five minutes prior to the collapse.

The train was traveling about forty-five miles an hour at the time of the crash. Railroad officials announced today that the wreck was the first warning they had received of a wet roadbed. Residents here and at Goodland, Kan., all said today, however, that the region last night was visited by one of the heaviest rainstorms in recent years.

The wall of water forming on the watersheds on the eastern side of the continental divide, as a result of the heavy downpour, swept forward in every dry arroyo in the region.

Only One Survivor in Car.

Residents of Stratton and the territory in the vicinity of the wreck today were emphatic in their declaration that the water in the arroyo last night and today was the first they had seen there in the last twelve years.

Those in the cars which escaped being wrecked hastily organized rescue parties and offered succor to the less fortunate ones. Among those for whom the survivors had the greatest praise was Morris Gest, New York theatrical producer, who, assisted by his secretaries, administered first aid to the injured.

E. L. Perry of New Bedford, Mass., is the only known survivor of the car in the creek bed. He declared he had been awakened a few minutes before the wreck and with the first impact had been slightly stunned, but the inrushing of the cold waters into his berth had revived him, and he immediately punched out the window glass and left the car. Other survivors rescued him from the water and removed him to one of the standing cars. His clothing and baggage were lost with the car.

Moved Into Death Car

An ironical turn of fate probably cost the life of Mrs. Mary McDonald of West Palm Beach, Fla., who had traveled the entire way from St. Louis yesterday in the car immediately back of the ill-fated one. Because of her dislike to dress early in the morning to change cars for Colorado Springs, she changed compartments last night and rode to her death. One of her handbags was found in the rear car today.

As soon as rescue crews could be organized at Goodland, Kan., and Limon, Col., the survivors were returned to Goodland, Kan., and thence to Oakley, Kan., where they resumed their journey to Denver, Colorado Springs and coast points over the Union Pacific.

Late tonight wrecking cranes had been established at both ends of the creek and the waters had receded to such an extent that grappling hooks and chains were being put in place in an attempt to raise the submerged car from the creek bed. The rushing waters had partly buried the car under silt and sand to such an extent that work of lifting the car was not expected to be completed until some time tomorrow.

An airplane piloted by Robert E. Edgar left Colorado Springs this afternoon for Burlington, Col., to carry to that city the bodies of Mr. and Mrs. George S. Carlie and that of their daughter, Julie, 21, of New York.

The three were en route to Colorado Springs at the time of the wreck, to visit friends.

No word had been received as to the fate of Mrs. Jennie Foltz and Harry Lewis, a boy, who is reported to have been traveling from Memphis with Mrs. Ben Lewis, one of the dead.

Gest Describes Wreck.

"I have just come through the most frightful experience of my life," said Mr. Gest in describing the disaster.

"Never have I seen men and women behave heroically. No hysterics, no screams or weeping. Only courage and grim determination to save as many as possible.

"Among the heroes of the wreck, I am proud to say was my assistant secretary, Able. He rescued an elderly woman from the submerged car.

"I was sleeping in my stateroom in the rear of the car when the crash occurred. My awakening was rude. I was thrown from by berth. I managed to make my way out of the car through a smashed window.

"The car in front of mine had completely disappeared. The one in front of that was completely smashed. The one next to the baggage car was hanging on the opposite bank.

"People were pouring out of the coaches. I climbed to the roof of the car behind me and reached the ground.

"Meanwhile Able had rescued an elderly woman. She did not scream, did not even sob, as we helped Able pull her through the water out of a smashed window.

"At the end of an hour the water went down enough to make the submerged car partly visible."

After telephoning his report Gest arranged for an airplane to take him to Denver.

Mother, Three Girls Hurt.

The first rescue train returning from the scene of the wreck took a dozen of the injured to Colorado Springs this afternoon. The injured were removed to Glockner Hospital for treatment.

One of the most seriously injured passengers taken to Colorado Springs was Ruth Stoll, 5, daughter of Mrs. Clarissa Stoll of Compton, Cal. The child was thrown clear of the wrecked car in which she was riding and was almost buried in the sand on the creek bank when rescued. She had drawn into her lungs a quantity of sand and water. Her condition tonight was serious.

Two other daughters of Mrs. Stoll were injured also. They were Thelma, 9, cut on the left cheek, and Elinore, cut on the left leg. Mrs. Stoll herself received injuries to her left foot.

Others taken to Colorado Springs for treatment included:

Kenneth Hoff, Terre Haute, Ind., and his bride, Mrs. Ruth Hoff. They were on a honeymoon trip. Hoff suffered lacerations on the forehead and possible fractures of the ribs. Mrs. Hoff had a cut on the leg.

CARLIE BUILDING ENGINEER.

Wired Wife and Daughter to Join Him on Western Trip.

George F. Carlie of 468 West 153d Street, one of the Colorado wreck victims, was considered the foremost bakery construction engineer in the United States, according to I. B. Nordhem, head of the Quality Bakers of America, the firm by which Mr. Carlie was employed. He was about 56 years old, a graduate of Columbia University. His wife, Mrs. Julia Carlie, and his daughter, Miss Julia Francis Carlie, 18 years old, died with him in the wreck. This virtually wiped out the family, according to Carlie's friends. It is believed that the only one left is Miss Jessie Davids, a sister of Mrs. Carlie, 49 East Seventy-third Street.

Mr. Carlie was touring the West supervising repairs and new construction for the Quality Bakers of America, and because his trip was to be extended all along the Pacific Coast he wired to his wife and daughter last week to join him. They left Monday and met him in Kansas City. All three left Colorado Springs early yesterday morning after Mr. Carlie had finished his work there, and were bound for California and Portland, Ore.

Mr. Nordhem was notified of the wreck by a telegram sent to him from Colorado Springs by George F. Zimmerman, head of the Zimmerman Bakery, that city. The message said:

"Identification of Mr. and Mrs. Carlie assured. Not certain whether daughter's body has been recovered from the wreck. My brother and local undertaker are leaving at 6 P. M. in cabin plane for Burlington, 150 miles east, where remains have been taken for identification. Plan to bring the remains back by plane tonight."

Morris Gest and his party all escaped injury, according to information about the Stratton wreck received yesterday at the offices of the producer in this city.

In his party, it is understood, were John C. Harris, Acting Mayor of Dallas, Texas; J. W. Thuman, director of the Cincinnati Music Festival, and Abe Kreutzer. They were en route from Dallas to Denver, where Mr. Gest was to be the guest of honor yesterday at a luncheon to be given by the Denver Chamber of Commerce.

The producer is at present on a trip through the Southwest to consider presentation in various cities of "The Miracle" under civic sponsorship. It was his intention to proceed to Omaha, Neb., following the visit to Denver.

BYRD MEN ENDURE RECORD COLD SPELL

LITTLE AMERICA, Antarctica, July 18.—The last two weeks have been the coldest we have had; in fact, if the average for the month stays anywhere near the average of the first half it will be the coldest experienced in the Antarctic.

The average low temperature so far in July has been 50 below zero and Amundsen's average for his coldest month, August, was 44. Eleven out of thirteen days touched 60 below and on one day recently it was 71 below zero. And that is cold.

When it is calm even at 70 below zero there is no discomfort inside or out for a short time, if one is warmly clad, for with our fur clothing only the exposed parts of the face suffer, and when the nose is rubbed by a hand it soon becomes warm again.

The only trouble is that while warming the nose the hand freezes. One feels suddenly a bite on a finger tip as if it had been seized by a pair of tiny pincers.

But when the wind blows at all at low temperatures then it is almost impossible to face it for more than a few minutes at a time.

Wind and Cold Painful.

Today, for instance, it is 50 below, a temperature to which we have become accustomed while walking, but there is a ten-mile wind, and that wind whips around the face and causes intense pain. The nose continually suffers and the cheeks are nipped as if by fire. Cold without wind can be withstood, but cold with wind is impossible.

The extreme cold does strange things. It is odd to stand outside and hear one's breath as it freezes. When it was 70 below, the barrier snow contracted sharply and all about us could be heard cracks and snaps where the snow crystals let go under the tension of contraction.

It was weird, as if the houses were built on an unstable element that was moving beneath our feet.

So small are these cracks that we have never seen any of them except for the large crack just north of the camp. The bay ice booms like distant guns at times when large cracks apparently run across it. The guy wires on antenna posts become as taut as harp strings and hum when the slightest wind hits them.

It has a curious effect on our lights also. The candles used under the meteorological balloons must be warmed before they will burn outside for more than a few minutes.

Record Balloon Observation.

Incidentally what is believed to be a record observation in cold and low temperatures was made when a balloon was sent up on the day it was 70 below zero.

Kerosene lanterns taken outside freeze up, a mixture of kerosene and gasoline becoming as hard as ice. Rubber insulation in wires gets so brittle that it breaks at the slightest touch and porous rubber crumbles.

Yes it is cold; and our coldest weather is ahead of us. But in two months the sun will begin to warm up this frozen land.

The sun first appears on Aug. 22, and every one is looking forward to seeing that comfortable old globe loom up above the horizon. The light in the north grows a little stronger every day.

MASCOT BRAVES THE COLD.

But Iggie, Byrd's Fox Terrier, Dislikes the Boots He Has to Wear.

By RUSSELL OWEN.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LITTLE AMERICA, Antarctica, July 8.—Half-way over to the mess hall this morning a dark little figure was found sitting in the snow. It was Iggie without his boots and his feet were cold, for it was 60 degrees below zero.

Iggie is the pet name for Igloo, Commander Byrd's mascot and the most intelligent dog in camp. When Iggie's feet are cold he won't walk.

This morning he had gone with the Commander to breakfast, had stopped outside for a few moments to play with the pups, and then had apparently been unable to break through them so he could scratch on the door for admittance. The pups are so big now that they are almost too much for him.

When Commander Byrd was on the ship he was doubtful as to whether he should bring Iggie ashore. He is very fond of him, talks to him in his room, and Iggie has all the traditional devotion to his master. The Commander was afraid that one of the big dogs running around might make a mouthful of Iggie some day.

He brought him to Little America, however, and Iggie has become the pet of the camp and by a miracle has survived. Commander Byrd has had to rescue him many times.

Iggie got along well with the dogs on the ship, made friends with them, chased them and even tried to fight with one or two which were several times his size. For Iggie has as much courage as brains, and these two qualities have probably saved him where a less courageous and intelligent short-haired animal would have died long ago.

Often Worsted by Penguins.

Iggie's first encounters were with penguins. They interested him greatly and he would bark at them and rush them, only to be repulsed with a peck from the penguin's vicious beak or a whack with a flipper, and a thoroughly indignant emperor penguin weighing seventy-five pounds can hit a tremendous blow.

Iggie never caught one, but he had several passages-at-arms with penguins which convulsed the crew.

Once on shore, he began to forage around for more excitement. The dog teams fascinated him. He would plunge at a dog team, jump into the middle of one, and in an instant disappear in a confused scrimmage that snarled traces and upset drivers' tempers.

At first every one expected to see a mangled and half-dead Iggie pulled out from such a melee, but each time a little white bundle of noise would dash out of the centre, barking madly at the dogs behind the mischief caused.

He is manic for water, although his ancestry is mixed, and his speed and quickness saved him. Before a big dog would get a good grip on Iggie he would be gone. But he got several honorable scars in this way from dogs which could have killed him with a snap of their jaws.

When the weather became cold, 50 or more below, Iggie lost his desire to run around outside, particularly when the wind blew. He is not built to withstand the low temperatures, although nature has tried hard to increase his coat of hair to meet conditions.

But at best it was a cold little dog which ran between the houses and scratched frantically for admission.

He always scratches three times on the door and then waits until some one has had time to let him in. If there is no response in a reasonable time, Iggie scratches again, a little harder, as much as to say, "Come on, let a fellow in, it's cold out here," and in he comes, tail wagging and showing every sign of gratitude.

The Cold Not to His Liking.

One day Iggie was heard half yelping and half crying out in the tunnel, making an awful noise so that those inside thought he must be half dead after a fight. It was very cold outside, and when a man ran out there was Iggie sitting in the tunnel holding up one cold foot and howling with misery.

When he is out walking with the Commander he will suddenly lie down and whine, holding up one paw until he is picked up and rubbed. Then he will jump down and trot gaily ahead again.

The Commander, however, though he would try to protect Iggie. Men wear furs and boots; why shouldn't Iggie?

So he had Alexander fashion a warm woolen overcoat for Iggie and Martin Ronne made him a set of leather boots.

Iggie thinks his coat is the most disgraceful garment ever made for a dog. It is brown and covers him all over, even his legs are covered down to the boots. Naturally it is a little stiff and Iggie won't bend his legs when he walks, so goes along stiff-legged, the view from the rear being so ludicrous that everyone howls with laughter, while Iggie looks around with a mournful and aggrieved expression, as much as to say, "This is a dirty trick even if it is for my own good."

When his boots are first put on, he won't move, just stands as if anchored to the floor, only turning a reproachful glance at the Commander, who calls to him to "Come take a walk." He has to be picked up and then taken outdoors, where he walks reluctantly but dutifully.

When he gets back inside again he looks around hopefully as if to ask someone to "Please take these confounded things off so I can be a self-respecting dog again." There has been a lot of fun over Iggie and his coat and boots.

Lost Boot Is Replaced.

One day he lost a boot, and being an intelligent dog, he let it stay lost. He came in looking unusually animated that day, as if saying to himself, "That's one gone." But it did no good, for Ronne made him another.

Sometimes also he will simply refuse to budge for he knows it is very cold. The Commander will call him, but Iggie merely looks up from a warm seat as if to say, "No, boss, go ahead. I am not supposed to be a hardy explorer. The fire for me."

And that's all there is to it. Iggie stays in.

He has a fairly good time, however, for he enjoys playing with the pups, although they are now so large that they can easily roll him over in the snow, and when he has his blanket on they grab hold of it and make him yank indignantly to get away. But his alertness keeps him out of serious difficulty with them.

There are two big dogs who are completely cowed by Iggie's ferocious manner. They are several times bigger than the little terrier, but that doesn't help them much. Iggie's motto, like that of another famous fighter, seems to be in this case, "The bigger they are the harder they fall."

Iggie will block one of these dogs and stand over him, and when he attempts to get up knock him down again. If the dog tries to slip away while Iggie is looking around for applause, Iggie will hurl himself at him.

In some incomprehensible way, it happens so quickly that the big dog goes down like a halfback tackled in a football game. He actually hits the snow with a thump. Iggie must somehow trip the dog's hind legs by throwing his body against them.

Big Dogs Now Respect Him.

Most of the big dogs have learned now that Iggie has some special dispensation, for he has been rescued time and again when two or three of them had him down, and when a dog goes down here he seldom gets up again. But Iggie has been saved so often they seldom try to get him any more and he has a wonderful time playing with them.

On days as cold as this, however, he sits inside or wanders around with his toys, seeking some one to play with. He has a rubber ball with a squeaker in it and will growl when any one reaches for it. But if no one tries to grab it Iggie will push it nearer and nearer, inviting some one to snatch at it so he can growl and run away. If that doesn't work, he will bite it and make it squeak until some one grabs at him just to change the sound.

He can't be fooled by taking the squeaker out of the ball and blowing it; it is the ball he wants and he will pay no attention to the squeaker unless it is in the ball. One day he took the ball over to the mess house and buried it in the snow before going in. When he came out he dug the ball out and trotted back with it.

He will play the same way with a pet bone which he carries around when tired of the ball and which he hides under a rug or in a box which he places under the rug in the Commander's room. And sometimes Commander Byrd has found a bone or two in his bunk, tucked down inside his sleeping bag.

Iggie sleeps in the Commander's room in a box lined with warm wool and covered with a robe and a windproof. It is cold for him at night with the temperature in the house below zero, and sometimes he gets uncovered. Then the Commander, who looks at him every time he awakes at night, covers him up again.

An Affectionate Animal.

He is up early in the morning, and comes around where the men are dressing, rubbing up against them, wagging his tail and going from one to another as if to bid them a formal good morning. He seems to have a sense of social obligation and occasionally trots over to the other house just to go in and walk around, greeting every one.

He first goes to those who do things for him, and merely bestows a perfunctory wag on those who do not play with him.

Sometimes we are amused by getting Iggie to sing, which he will do whenever a pitch pipe or harmonica is blown near him. He will howl mournfully as if he didn't like it at all, but wags his tail happily when he finishes as if to say, "Go ahead, fellows, let's all sing. I enjoy it too."

Despite his barks and fights, he is a most affectionate animal. He will snuggle down in one's arms while being petted and grunt with enjoyment. And when Commander Byrd was away at the mountains for several days Iggie was inconsolable and wandered around, refusing to play with his toys until the Commander got back.

He always knows when a flight is about to be made and sits looking at Commander Byrd as if trying to persuade him not to go. Iggie is a unique dog and has helped to make life a little merrier for all of us this Winter.

AIRVIA Inaugurates Daily New York-Boston Service Monday, July 22

Only 120 minutes each way

Backed by the same thoroughly efficient and highly organized methods which marked their successful flight to Rome, Roger Q. Williams and Lewis A. Yancey, together with their associates, have now established the Airvia Transportation Company as the safest, quickest and most simplified means of transportation between Boston and New York.

This new transportation facility, heralded by business leaders, aeronautical experts and government officials as of vast importance to their needs, goes into operation Monday, July 22, when at 11 A. M. sharp (Daylight Saving), the flagship "Roger Q. Williams" leaves for Boston from the conveniently located N. Y. Seaplane Terminal. The "Roger Q. Williams" will be followed immediately by the sister ship "Lewis A. Yancey," also leaving from the same terminal. Both planes will carry a number of notables—and a few additional reservations can be made for the inauguration flight. Daily thereafter, plane leaves from New York at 11 A. M., and from Boston at 3 P. M.

This absolutely safe, comfortable "over water" route to Boston is the personal selection of both Roger Q. Williams and Lewis A. Yancey, famed for their close attention to all technical details pertaining to flight, as evidenced by their recent world acclaimed flight to Rome.

The "Simplified" Route To Boston

Specifications: Leaves at 11:00 A. M. (Daylight Time) from N. Y. Sea. Ter. Arrive Boston 1 P. M. Leave Boston 3 P. M. Arrive N. Y. 5 P. M. Baggage, 25 lbs. free. Free each way $30.00

The time-saving service is to be maintained for executives who demand the most modern and dependable of transportation conveniences. For sheer pleasure, too, there luxurious 12-passenger, 2-pilot air yachts may be chartered at surprisingly low rates.

Phone for reservation on inauguration trip or for daily trip thereafter.

Success to the new Hotel Pierrepont

Another hotel has just been added to Brooklyn's famous "Heights" hostelries—The Pierrepont which opened July 6th. A beautiful 17-story structure with 550 rooms, a magnificent view of the wonderful harbor, a swimming pool and a delightfully breezy solarium.

It is significant that the management of The Pierrepont, which naturally considered various types of artificial refrigeration, decided to serve their guests Knickerbocker Ice, because, first, the quality of ice is superior—no dull, cloudy streaks or mushy centres; second, Knickerbocker service can always be depended upon to keep hotel refrigerators filled; third, in the interest of efficiency, Knickerbocker Ice is more economical than the servicing of ice-making equipment.

SENATE DRYS TO AIR WICKERSHAM ISSUE

Borah Voices View That Law Board Head Held Volstead Act "Unenforceable."

RESENTED AS PREJUDGED

Question Is Likely to Come Up in the Commission as Well as on the Floor of the Senate.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 18.— Dry leaders in Congress, among them Senator William E. Borah of Idaho, appear to be in accord in the view that George W. Wickersham, head of President Hoover's Law Enforcement Commission, in his letter to Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt had expressed the opinion that the Volstead act as it stands was unenforceable, and that, with the assumption by the States of a larger share of responsibility in the enforcement of State dry statutes, should be modified in certain particulars.

Senator Borah indicated pretty clearly today that he was in agreement with Senator Caraway, dry Democrat of Arkansas, that Mr. Wickersham's pronouncement of his views on prohibition in this letter destroyed his usefulness as a member of the commission and that the publication of his conclusions, in advance, would be made the subject of body, would be made the subject of sharp discussion in the Senate.

Conclusions Declared Premature.

Senator Borah talked over the Wickersham letter with representatives of the press today but would permit himself to be quoted only to this extent:

"In his letter to the Governor of New York Mr. Wickersham has succeeded in making plain that, in his opinion, the dry law is unenforceable."

Senator Borah intimated that he regarded as extraordinary, to say the least, some of the statements made by Mr. Wickersham and indicated that he could not quite understand why Mr. Wickersham should prejudge prohibition enforcement in this manner prior to mature deliberation of the whole question by the commission of which he is the head.

It was learned that Senator Borah and other dry leaders had received numerous letters within the past few days in which Mr. Wickersham had been assailed for what was described as a premature judgment.

Commission May Take Up Letter.

It was suggested that the Wickersham letter might finally involve its author in difficulties with the Administration and possibly with other members of the Law Enforcement Commission. The commission will meet here on July 22 to discuss plans for continuing its studies and there were reports today that the Wickersham letter might be brought up for discussion.

There were reports from New York today that Governor Roosevelt had written to Mr. Wickersham taking cognisance of suggestions that the Wickersham letter was not intended for publication as coming from the head of the Law Enforcement Commission. It was stated at Mr. Wickersham's office that so far no such letter had been received from Governor Roosevelt.

There have been rumors here that the Wickersham letter was not intended for publication, although no explanation as to this could be obtained from Mr. Wickersham or any one representing him at the office of the Law Enforcement Commission.

The letter, as published in the East, bore no date. Inquiries at Mr. Wickersham's office today as to just when the letter was written produced no information that would throw any light on this point.

Wickersham Maintains Silence.

Mr. Wickersham himself refused to see members of the press, sending word to them that he had no comment to offer either on the Roosevelt letter or any other phase of the commission's work.

Mr. Wickersham has kept himself aloof since his arrival here on Wednesday morning and he has maintained silence despite the widespread diverse comment that followed the publication of his letter to Governor Roosevelt.

The attitude of the White House toward the Wickersham letter is that the Law Enforcement Commission is an integral part of the government and that Mr. Wickersham, as chairman, acted solely on his own authority.

President Hoover has delegated duties to the commission and is not interfering in any way with its action. President Hoover, in his speeches, it was pointed out, has indicated that State governments were lax in carrying out many of their duties and were content in certain fields to let the Federal Government perform duties that should properly be exercised by the States.

In some quarters it is believed that the position assumed by Chairman Wickersham represents in some measure views held by the Administration with respect to the enforcement of the Volstead act.

It was explained today that the Law Enforcement Commission at its session beginning July 22, which probably will continue for several days, will mark out the fields in which it intends to make its studies, and give some attention to the selection of expert personnel to aid in its labors.

At one of its early meetings the commission was divided into subcommittees and special topics were assigned to each of them. Full details as to these assignments will be withheld for the present. Mr. Wickersham will remain in Washington until early in August and will then go away for a short rest.

Late in August or early in September the commission will hold another meeting to decide upon a schedule of public hearings. Whether all of these hearings will be held in Washington or whether some shall be held in other cities will be determined later. It is understood that the commission has decided tentatively that at public hearings it will assemble as a whole and will not take any testimony in the open through the subcommittees.

Watson Backs Wickersham.

WASHINGTON, July 18 (AP).—Senator Watson of Indiana, the Republican leader and an administration spokesman, came to the defense today of Chairman Wickersham of the Hoover Law Enforcement Commission as speculation and controversy continued among wets and drys over the significance of Mr. Wickersham's letter to the Governors Conference on prohibition enforcement.

"Chairman Wickersham's statement," said Senator Watson, "was an effort to enlist the support of the States in doing their full constitutional duty. The Eighteenth Amendment left the States concurrent power with the Federal Government to enforce its provisions. Some of the States have not exercised that power."

UNITED STATES DAILY TO PRINT STATE NEWS

Paper Devoted to Federal Affairs Will Extend Scope in Fall, Lawrence Tells Governors.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW LONDON, Conn., July 18.—David Lawrence, editor of The United States Daily, informed the conference of Governors at Groton, near here, that beginning in September, the paper, which is devoted to the publication of special and detailed information concerning the operation of the Federal Government from day to day, will carry also similar reports concerning the work of the State governments.

Attention will be paid to affairs in all the States, and many of the Governors are cooperating in the plans for the new venture, Mr. Lawrence announced.

"The relations of the States to the Federal Government are expanding and it is necessary for American business, as well as for the students of government, to know what action is being taken in our governmental organization," Mr. Lawrence told the conference.

"Problems solved in one State reach other States nowadays in the form of annual reports, but beginning next Autumn we will attempt to provide this exchange between the States every day. This is to be not geographically, but topically.

"In other words, the news of the States with respect to taxation will be collected, news with respect to the public health, education, agriculture, insurance, banking, and so on, so that the public may be advised from day to day by official action of the States in all their branches, including not only the administrative and the legislative, when the legislatures are in session, but also the judicial, in so far as the news of particular States becomes important and pertinent to the people in the other States of the union."

DAWES GOLF HANDICAP IS REVEALED AS 35

Envoy Prefers London Museums to Vacation Tours to Summer Resorts of Britain.

By CHARLES A. SELDEN.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, July 18.—Ambassador Dawes as the guest of the Foreign Press Association's luncheon today made the question period particularly arid by his skillful avoidance of all queries concerning naval yardsticks and Vinttners' loving cups.

But finally all dynamite was put aside when a correspondent from Budapest asked General Dawes if he would not please tell the assembled journalists of Europe, Asia and South America what his golf handicap was.

The Ambassador replied:

"Well, I play golf and I don't play it, if you understand what that means. As to your specific question I am frank to say my handicap is 35."

LONDON, July 18 (AP).—Ambassador Dawes is so enamored with ancient and historical London that he has decided not to go away for a Summer vacation, preferring to stay here and peer into the musty old museums, art galleries and other places of interest with which the city traces the passage of time from before the dawn of history down through the Danish, Anglo-Saxon, Roman and Norman periods.

Between official duties the American Ambassador has already found time to explore the British museum with old cronies of the British Army with whom he served in France during the war. There he took particular fancy to the Sumerian and other relics of excavation in the Near East.

BRITAIN WILL RAISE SCHOOL-LEAVING AGE

Jump From 14 to 15 Is Effective in 1931 as One Way to Cutting Unemployment.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, July 18.—As part of its plan to reduce juvenile unemployment, the government in the House of Commons this afternoon announced its intention of raising the school-leaving age from 14 to 15. The move is likely to meet with considerable opposition.

Lord Eustace Perry, former president of the Board of Education, calculated it would add 600,000 scholars at an additional cost of $100,000,000 a year, with their maintenance, which the State would have to pay.

Dr. E. Graham Little, Independent Member of the House of Commons for London University, has declared that the raising of the school-leaving age from fourteen to fifteen was "unsound from an educational as well as a social standpoint."

The age was last raised in 1918, when the years of compulsory attendance were extended from 12 to 14.

Making the announcement tonight, Sir Charles Trevelyan, Minister of Education, said the new scheme would operate from April, 1931, and that maintenance allowances would be granted by the State to parents.

MACKAY ASKS RADIO CHANGE

Company Would Use High Frequencies to Supplement Low.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 18. — The Mackay Radio and Telegraph Company has applied to the Radio Commission to use high frequency transmitters when regular transmitters are unable to operate, and for permission to construct a station using 107, 125 and 143 kilocycles, with thirty-kilowatt power for general public service and to install arc transmitters.

The Radio Marine Corporation, a subsidiary of the Radio Corporation of America, has asked for a permit to install a new transmitter at Port Arthur, Texas.

The Curtiss Aeroplane Export Corporation of New York has applied for a license to operate a ground station on 8,424 kilocycles with five watts power to communicate between planes and ground stations to report weather conditions and landing time.

GOVERNORS SHELVE WICKERSHAM'S PLAN

time sought unsuccessfully to have the conference adjourn into executive session for the discussion.

The executive committee's report, presented by Governor Dern of Utah, chairman of the committee, and concurred in by the other committee members—Governors Trumbull of Connecticut, Case of Rhode Island and Hammill of Iowa—adopted unanimously as being acceptable to the drys because of its general sentiment of cooperation with the President and his commission and to the wets because it swept aside the prohibition issue as such and did not commit the conference specifically on the question of enforcement. Both Governor Richards for the drys and Governor Ritchie for the wets made this clear in casting their votes for the report.

Text of Report Adopted.

The text of the report follows:

Your Executive Committee respectfully reports that it has carefully considered the resolutions offered by Governors Gardner and Byrd and by Governor Richards, respectively, and has consulted numerous members of the conference who have had experience in its affairs.

We have found no opposition to the purpose of either resolution. On the contrary, we have found that the proposal to support the President in the suppression of crime and to co-operate with his commission on law enforcement and the study of crime meets with general approval. Of course, it could not be otherwise in a gathering of Governors whose sworn duty it is to see that the laws are faithfully executed.

The members of your Committee are in full accord with this sentiment, but feel it their duty to point out the potential dangers to the Conference in the future if its long-established rule against the adoption of resolutions be now violated. The usefulness of this organization depends upon complete harmony, and if we now establish a new precedent, the door will be opened to discord and disruption on other subjects.

We therefore recommend that, without any thought of disparaging the proposed resolutions, the Conference adhere to its rule against resolutions.

Governor Ritchie, who was the only one to take the floor in behalf of the wets, opened his denunciation of the Wickersham proposal by asserting it was "time for the country to realize that the Eighteenth Amendment imposes no obligation on the States to enforce it.

"This is neither their Constitutional nor moral duty," he declared, asserting that, in his opinion Mr. Wickersham's suggestion would not tend to remedy the crime situation.

Address of Governor Ritchie.

"In view of Mr. Wickersham's communication to the conference, which may represent the views of his commission, I feel that I cannot vote on the Executive Committee's report without some comment directed to it," Governor Ritchie said.

"It is time for the country to realize that the Eighteenth Amendment imposes no obligation on the States to enforce it. The amendment gives the States concurrent jurisdiction with the Federal Government in that regard, but whether the States exercise it is optional with them. If they choose not to do so, they violate no legal or moral obligation.

"Mr. Wickersham suggests that the Federal Government stop the importation, manufacture and the interstate shipments of liquor and that the States enforce the Volstead Act within their borders. He adds a suggestion that in this event the national and State laws might be modified so as to become reasonably enforceable, but his language is so uncertain that I am unable to understand what he means, so I cannot comment upon that.

"I dissent, however, from Mr. Wickersham's suggestion that the States must take over the enforcement of the Volstead Act within their borders. I have already pointed out that this is neither their Constitutional nor their moral duty. I now add that in my opinion it would not tend to remedy the crime situation which Mr. Wickersham's commission was appointed to study.

"Aside from the class of crimes such as bootlegging and hi-jacking which Federal prohibition under the Volstead Act has created and aside from the crime for which they are responsible and for offenses under the Volstead Act, I doubt very much whether there is any crime wave. Such crime wave as there is seems to me to revolve around the existing Federal system of prohibition.

Says Statistics Are Essential.

"Statistics are more important than anything else in determining a question of this kind. You must not only know how many crimes are committed, but what they are, how many are followed by arrests, how many charges are dismissed, how many convictions and acquittals there are, how many convicted men are put on probation and how many are sentenced. The large cities are just beginning to get this data.

"In Baltimore we have been getting it for some years, and there certainly is no crime wave there. We had less burglaries in Baltimore in 1928 than in 1924, less robberies and practically the same number of murders.

"We have no State enforcement act in Maryland. Baltimore city police, under a ruling of the Attorney General, do not arrest for offenses under the Volstead act, and the city courts do not have to try that class of cases. The result is that both police and courts are free to give their whole time to the detection and punishment of crime, and we have in Baltimore city less crime than before, more arrests, more convictions than ever before.

"I say without hesitating that this record is not excelled anywhere. No city in the country where the Volstead act is in force as a State measure can surpass it, and I doubt if any can approach it.

"We want to remain free to continue a system which is giving such beneficial results. We do not want to be required to take over the Volstead act, or a large division of it, as now recommended, for enforcement. We want our police force and our criminal courts to keep on devoting themselves to major crimes.

"I can see no reason why what is true about Baltimore should not be true about other cities. Their people are not worse than our people and their police and their courts should be able to make records just as good as ours if they are free to give their attention to crime.

Says Prohibition Is "Whole Story."

"What is needed is to find some way of stopping the class of crimes that are caused directly or indirectly by Federal prohibition under the Volstead act. If there is any crime wave, there it is. There is no use in disguising this or trying to make it seem only part of a bigger picture or problem. It is 'sui generis' and the whole story.

"This class of crime must be eliminated if law and order are to be secure. You cannot do this by compelling the States to take over the intra-state part of the Volstead act as Mr. Wickersham suggests. The only way to do this is to strike at the root of the trouble and substitute something better for the present system of Federal prohibition, something which the people as a whole will respect and abide by, which can be enforced.

"If this is done, then I believe that such crime waves as may seem to exist will disappear and crime can be adequately handled by the efficient administration of justice."

After citing theories of criminality and asserting that it must be attended to by justice "quickly and efficiently administered," Governor Ritchie concluded:

"In a word, meet offenses caused by the recent system of Federal prohibition in the only way there is, namely, by changing that system."

Governor Ritchie said afterward that he felt he was not alone in the conference on the prohibition issue. It was learned later that several Governors had privately expressed their agreement with Mr. Ritchie's views. On the other hand, there were a few from the West who were inclined to regard the Wickersham proposal, sympathetically as one deserving of trial and holding out the prospect of reasonable enforcement and possible modification.

Criticism by Dry Leaders.

The point of view of those drys with whom Mr. Wickersham's proposal failed to find favor was expressed by Governor Gardner when he said:

"Mr. Wickersham's proposal paramounts the prohibition aspect of the general problem of crime suppression. This seems to me most unfortunate and is contrary to the impression the country gained from President Hoover's statement made at the time he appointed his commission.

"Enforcement of the Eighteenth Amendment is a vital aspect of the general problem, but it is only an aspect. The crime situation in this country embraces vastly more than violations of the prohibition laws and I cannot believe that Mr. Wickersham speaks for the President on this matter."

Governor Graves, an exponent of the extreme drys, feared that the Wickersham proposal, if adopted, would prove the entering wedge in nullification.

"The Eighteenth Amendment as I read it prohibits the manufacture, transportation or sale of intoxicating liquors for beverage purposes," Governor Graves said. "In the end, the main thing is the sale. The manufacture and transportation are merely incidents to the selling of it. If the government is going to call off the dogs from the sale and do a lot of trailing around the bush about the manufacture and transportation, the State is going to say, 'It is none of my business.'"

Governor Graves declared that the hope of the country with respect to prohibition enforcement was in President Hoover. In echoing this sentiment, Governor Richards said:

"I come from a State that rocked me in its cradle of State rights and I stand for State rights, but the question of State rights is not involved here. It is in the Constitution."

Governor Reed Backs Ritchie.

Governor Reed of Kansas, who presided, intervened with the statement that the Wickersham proposal was "perhaps untimely." He voiced approval of Governor Ritchie's statement of the case.

"If that suggestion that he (Mr. Wickersham) made with reference to the division of authority between the States and the Federal Government in the enforcement of the prohibition laws means better cooperation between the national and State governments, it is very well taken," Mr. Reed said. "If, on the other hand, it means that the Federal Government intends to go back to the discarded doctrine of squatter sovereignty, I do not think there is a chance of that being done."

Contradicting Governor Ritchie, Governor Hammill, Republican, of Iowa, said that it was the duty of the States and the Federal Government to cooperate in the enforcement of the prohibition law.

"I believe that this country cannot afford to say that because a law is violated it must thereby be modified or repealed," Governor Conley of West Virginia said.

Governor Cooper, Republican, of Ohio, came out strongly in favor of rigid enforcement, but made no reference to the Wickersham proposal.

Governor Gardner seconded the motion made by Governor Dern for adoption of the committee's report and Governor Richards spoke for it.

Roosevelt to Act on Statistics.

In executive session after adjournment, the Governors adopted Governor Roosevelt's suggestion in his address to the conference to create a more efficient system of gathering crime statistics. Mr. Roosevelt was appointed to act as the "clearing house" for this work. He will establish contact with various State crime commissions and other agencies and with the Hoover commission for this purpose.

Before returning to Hyde Park he expressed satisfaction with this action of the conference, saying that it would prove the beginning of a more scientific treatment of the crime problem. He said also that it was his belief that, despite the failure of the Governors to act on the Wickersham prohibition proposal, the President's commission was likely to include it in its final recommendations.

It was reported during the day that Governor Roosevelt had written to Mr. Wickersham to explain his presentation of Mr. Wickersham's letter to the conference. In his letter, prompted by reports that he had made public the Wickersham missive without Mr. Wickersham's authorizations, the Governor, it is understood, said that he had had the distinct impression that there were no limitations either upon its publication or use.

Action Taken on Bank Taxes.

An effort to unite all the States in a concerted move to persuade Congress to change the national banking laws so as to permit the States to tax national banks on the same basis on which State banking institutions are taxed, was launched by the conference. The action was taken after an address by Governor Reed of Kansas, who said that "the continuance of the present taxation discrimination in favor of national banks can have only one result and that is the destruction of the present State banking system."

"Such a result would be a disaster too great to be calmly contemplated," Governor Reed asserted.

As the law now stands, the only tax that can be collected from the national banks by the States, under decisions of the Federal courts, ranges from one-fourth to one-eighth of the tax paid by State banks, Governor Reed said.

Governor Reed declared that Federal court decisions limiting the power of the States to tax national banks had seriously hampered the States in working out fiscal policies suitable to their conditions.

Meeting in executive session following the address of the Kansas Executive, the conference decided to create a clearing house for the assembling of the views of all the States on the subject, with the idea of presenting them to Congress with recommendations for remedial legislation.

The conference named Governor Theodore Christinson of Minnesota to take charge of the assembling of the desired information. Governor Christinson has taken a leading part in the movement for modification of the present laws governing the taxation of national banks by the States.

The conference re-elected the entire present Executive Committee, adding Governor Gardner as a member. Salt Lake City was chosen as the next meeting place.

Whichever it is, we feel it will be a blessed event for the little stranger as well as for us, whether he or she is six years old or sixty. For he or she is to have the 100,000th Depositor's Account at Macy's.

Any day now we're expecting to welcome this new addition to our very large and rapidly growing family.

To date 99,892 people have placed money on deposit with R. H. Macy and Company, Private Bankers, for use in making their Macy purchases. Each depositor's balance draws interest at liberal rates, and on the first of each month the depositor receives a statement showing what he has bought and how much he has left.

It makes the first of the month an agreeable instead of a terrifying occasion,—this business of receiving a statement of assets instead of a bill.

Any amount will open a Depositor's Account.

M'DONALD PUTS OFF VISIT TILL NEXT YEAR

His Diplomatic Exchanges With Washington Result in Decision to Pick Propitious Time.

HE MAY COME TO SIGN PACT

Greater Benefit Expected From Conference With Hoover After Naval Agreement.

PREMIER PROMISES REPORT

Replies to Churchill in Commons That He Hopes to Have Details of Arms Parley Next Week.

By EDWIN J. JAMES.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, July 18.—The proposed trip of Premier MacDonald to Washington has been the subject of diplomatic exchanges between the British and American Governments in the past few days. Both governments attach the greatest importance to the projected visit of the Prime Minister to the American capital, yet both feel the voyage should be handled in a manner to promote to the greatest degree the good relations between the two countries and especially that it should not in any way interfere with the happy progress of the naval negotiations.

It is entirely likely that Premier MacDonald has weighed carefully the possible effects of an early trip to Washington. Doubtless he has considered that talks between himself and President Hoover could not be entirely public, and this might cause some dissatisfaction in England as, indeed, it might in America if such talks took place while the naval discussion is in such a formative state as it now is.

Doubt Best Effect Now.

It is evident also that the statesmen concerned must have foreseen that a visit now could not bring forth those large results of a definite nature which public opinion might expect from such a momentous meeting.

It may well be that both Washington and London believe the naval negotiations will have greater prospect of definite success if they follow the longer and less sensational process into which they are being directed. It would be extremely difficult for President Hoover and Premier MacDonald in a short meeting in the near future to reach final results.

Doubtless it appeals to the Prime Minister that his trip would be of much greater benefit if it could be made after success had crowned the naval conversations. It may have occurred to him that such a voyage would be of historical use if it could be made the occasion for signing of the naval agreement.

If it is true that exchanges regarding the intended visit have followed these lines it is evident the Prime Minister will not cross the Atlantic in the near future. The opinion may be expressed with some degree of assurance that his visit will not be made before next year.

Premier Forecasts Statement.

Efforts of the Opposition to obtain in the House of Commons a definite statement from the government on the progress of the naval conversations failed again today, although Premier MacDonald indicated he hoped to make a statement before the adjournment of Parliament, which may take place next week.

After several questioners had not drawn positive statements from A. V. Alexander, First Lord of the Admiralty, this afternoon, Winston Churchill asked whether the government intended to wait until Parliament went on a two months' recess to make important decisions affecting the future of the British navy. The Prime Minister retorted that he regarded Mr. Churchill's intimation a most unworthy one. He said the government would exercise the ordinary prerogatives of any British government in such a matter and added:

"I am doing my very best to get the negotiations to a point which will enable me to make an announcement before the House rises, but it is not in my hands alone."

Ambassador Dawes is holding almost daily conversations with Premier MacDonald, and it is believed their discussions have had to do primarily with procedure which offers very delicate points. The main issues of procedure are about as follows:

First, how shall England and the United States begin their formal negotiations on naval reduction?

Second, how shall they bring into the negotiations the other naval powers, Japan, France and Italy, and shall they eventually bring into the talks the minor naval powers?

Third, how shall these negotiations be conducted in a manner to help the League of Nations disarmament moves and at what point, and how shall they be welded into the League's work? This means the negotiations will work with the League's Preparatory Disarmament Commission.

Procedure Difficult to Arrange.

It is evident to any one familiar with diplomatic procedure that any number of trying points may arise in planning the procedure of an international parley. It has not been forgotten that the Washington naval treaty almost failed because of the lack of diplomatic tact in handling the French, and every desire exists to avoid this danger in the coming negotiations.

General Dawes is having ample opportunity to put into play that native discretion and balance which stood him in such good stead when he presided over the work of the first committee of reparation experts.

It is therefore thought that Premier MacDonald's coming announcement will concern itself with revealing progress on procedure rather than telling of any agreement on the technical details of the problems of naval limitation.

Soviet to Create Great Jewish State in Siberia; New Red Republic Will Have Its Own Laws

MOSCOW, July 18 (AP).—The great interest that the Far East has for the Soviet Government was further shown today by the announcement of the completion of plans for the creation in the Biro Badjan district, on the Amur River, of one of the largest independent Jewish States in the world.

It will be known as the Jewish Soviet Socialistic Republic and will have its own language, laws and customs, with a large measure of economical assistance from the Moscow Government.

Several thousand Jewish farmers and families already have been sent to colonize the Siberian district, which is larger than France and about the same size as the State of Texas.

The new settlement lands are said to contain vast agricultural, mining and manufacturing possibilities.

The district is adjacent to the rich Chinese Province of Manchuria, through which runs the Chinese Eastern Railway, over which the Soviet Government is now at odds with that of China. Manchuria also in recent years has seen a tremendous growth in population and in agriculture.

There already are independent colonies of Jews in the Crimea and Ukraine, in Southern European Russia, but the authorities declare that Biro Badjan will be the first truly Jewish State in the world unhampered by a mandate of the League of Nations or by domination by a foreign power.

T. P. O'CONNOR GETS $50,000 FROM FRIENDS

Leaders of All Parties Praise Ability of Enfeebled 'Father of House of Commons.'

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, July 18.—T. P. O'Connor, "father of the House of Commons," received tonight a trust fund of $50,000 from friends of all political parties. "Tay Pay" sat in an invalid chair on the terrace of the House of Commons, where the presentation was made.

Premier MacDonald, who presided, said Mr. O'Connor was a splendid example of a hard-fighting Irishman, of whomit could be said that every time he fought the esteem in which he was held by his opponents was increased. J. Ian MacPherson spoke on behalf of David Lloyd George, Liberal chief.

Mr. O'Connor said he believed there were Parliaments where the members of the different parties would not take meals together but it was the great distinction of England that when a fight in the House of Commons was over the fight was forgotten.

LONDON, July 18 (AP).—A human non-political touch at Westminster came today with the gathering on the river terrace to present to "Tay Pay" O'Connor a trust deed providing an annuity as a mark of recognition for his long public and political services.

Greatly enfeebled, the Irish politician received the gift sitting in a chair. But he sparkled with characteristic humor. He said the gift came as a surprise, almost as a shock, but he had yet to meet the Irishman who refused money.

Lord Birkenhead made the presentation in the presence of Prime Minister MacDonald, Ministers and former Ministers. All paid tribute to the veteran of many years of stirring political battles.

ADMITS PLAN TO SHOOT AUSTRIAN PRESIDENT

Jobless Man, Finding Guards Outside Presidential Office, Turns Revolver on Policeman Instead.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VIENNA, July 18.—An unemployed blacksmith's assistant named Anton Leitner flourished a loaded pistol in front of the Chancellery in Ballhausplatz this morning just before Chancellor Streeruwitz left in an automobile to attend Parliament.

The man was promptly disarmed by a policeman, but his act, which, according to his confession, was intended to attract public attention to his needy state, gave rise to rumors of an attempt to assassinate the Chancellor.

According to the police, Leitner leveled a Mauser pistol at the back of a policeman who was standing in Ballhausplatz. It missed fire, and Leitner then threw the weapon, which hit the policeman's sword.

When arrested, Leitner told a confused story, declaring among other things that he had come to Vienna from Duesseldorf and had decided to shoot President Miklas, whom he blamed for his own and for the general state of unemployment. Seeing that the President's office was guarded he decided to shoot a policeman instead.

The President, as a matter of fact, was not in Vienna today. As Leitner spent some months in a lunatic asylum last Winter and gave a very rambling account of his motives today, his attempt was thought to be the result of his disordered mind.

LEEDS WILL HONOR DR. MAYO

University Will Give Honorary Degree to American Surgeon.

LEEDS, England, July 18 (AP).—The Court of Leeds University today unanimously approved the recommendation of the Honorary Degrees Committee to confer the degree of Doctor of Science, honoros causa, on Dr. Charles H. Mayo of Rochester, Minn., at the university congregation to be held Tuesday.

The prochancellor, Colonel C. H. Tetley, said the American surgeon would soon be here as he was not attending a conference in Manchester.

Professor J. K. Jaemieson, dean of the Faculty of Medicine, said that Dr. William J. Mayo was similarly honored in 1924. The two brothers founded a great clinic in America, he continued, and both had rendered excellent service, not only in advancing the cause of surgery but in allaying fear of surgical proceedings.

Manchester University conferred honorary degrees on the Mayo brothers last week.

ORDERS APOLOGY ON 'RAIDS'

Gov. Allen Acts on False Reports Given Out by National Guard.

BOSTON, Mass., July 18 (AP).—Major Gen. Alfred F. Foote, commander of the Twenty-sixth Division Massachusetts National Guard, today was ordered by Governor Frank G. Allen to make a public written apology to the people of Ayer and Shirley for false reports issued from the camp that military police had raided speakeasies in the two towns.

The Governor received the recommendation for such action from Adjt. Gen. Jesse F. Stevens, along with several other recommendations, and immediately ordered that General Stevens's report be carried out.

The report found that Captain Lawrence R. Goldberg, who gave out the false accounts to newspaper men at the camp, was officially "in camp" and that the newspaper men were warranted in believing that he was the liaison officer between the division and the press.

Disciplinary action against Colonel Sydney H. Cliffe, Lieut. Col. Everett R. Prout, Lieut. Col. W. J. Blake, Major Roland H. Choate and Captain Goldberg also was recommended and ordered.

MUSSOLINI HAILS FLETCHER AS FRIEND

Premier, in Letter Stressing His Amity, Regrets Ambassador's Plan to Retire.

THANKS HIM FOR ITALY

Il Duce Recalls Our Envoy's Work in Strengthening the Ties Between the Nations.

By ARNALDO CORTESI.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROME, July 18.—Ambassador Henry P. Fletcher's withdrawal from a diplomatic career has given rise to an exchange of cordial letters with Premier Mussolini in which each not only spoke of his regret at losing a friend in the other but spoke also of the work done for strengthening the ties which unite America and Italy. Premier Mussolini wrote the first letter on hearing of Ambassador Fletcher's decision to retire, to which Ambassador Fletcher answered with another letter. Both letters were published by the Italian Foreign Ministry today.

Premier Mussolini's letter follows:

"Dear Ambassador:

"I learn with deep regret that, owing to your decision to leave the diplomatic career, you will soon abandon your post as United States Ambassador accredited to the Royal Italian Court.

"I take particular pleasure in expressing to you, on this occasion, the sentiments of my warmest sympathy and personal friendship and I assure you I will keep the best remembrance of the relations and cordial collaboration which has existed between us in the last few years.

"These relations certainly have been facilitated by the numerous friendly ties which bind Fascist Italy to the noble American nation.

"But I know that I have had in you, dear Mr. Ambassador, the best and most sincere collaborator in the work of strengthening these ties just as the whole of Fascist Italy knows it had in you the most serene observer and most faithful interpreter to your government and the friendly American people.

"Please accept again, Mr. Ambassador and friend, together with my regret for your departure and my best wishes for Mrs. Fletcher, expressions of my sincere friendship.

"Mussolini."

Ambassador Fletcher replied:

"Dear Mr. President:

"I am deeply touched by the thoughtful kindness of your note of farewell.

"The five years during which it has been my privilege to represent the United States near his Majesty, the King of Italy, and to collaborate with you in the strengthening of the many ties uniting our two countries by a deeper, truer knowledge and comprehension of the genius and spirit of each, have been most interesting and delightful.

"Your quick grasp of a broad-minded attitude toward the questions which have arisen have always facilitated a satisfactory arrangement of all the business I have had to bring to you, and to this friendly official disposition you have added a note of personal friendship and consideration which will remain as one of the most agreeable and most charming souvenirs of my life.

"If I have helped, in some degree, my government and people to understand the revolution and evolution which have taken place in Italy under your leadership, it is because I have followed with the greatest interest and sympathy the gradual and steady progress and orderly development of your plans for the renovation and transformation of your beloved Italy.

"I wish particularly to thank you and your loyal collaborators and assistants in the Fascist Government for the unfailing and friendly cooperation and help I have received, which so greatly facilitated and made pleasant the discharge of my official duties. I bespeak for my successor, when he shall be named, the same gracious reception and frank confidence you have extended to me.

"I leave Rome with the keenest regret. My wife and I have been received with the most perfect kindness and consideration from the moment of our arrival and we desire to acknowledge, with sincere appreciation, the manifold courtesies extended to us.

"With sentiments of the highest respect and esteem and the most sincere good wishes for your personal welfare and progress and the prosperity of Italy, I am happy to subscribe myself

"Faithfully yours,

"HENRY P. FLETCHER."

BRITAIN URGED TO ACT ON EXPORT OF RELICS

Commons Is Told of Its Early Record Now in California.—Premier Reviews Situation.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, July 18.—Public concern at the export of Britain's artistic and historic possessions to America was again stressed in the House of Commons this afternoon when Captain Victor Cazalet, Conservative, revealed that the history of the House of Commons, in the latter part of the eighteenth century, could only be consulted in California. For the second time within a few days he urged that Prime Minister MacDonald review the situation.

The question arose over the reported sale of the centuries-old Bradenstoke tithe barn in Wiltshire to an American newspaper owner for re-erection in the United States.

"I have learned, with regret," said Mr. MacDonald, "that this building has been demolished, but I understand that it is not, after all, going to America, but that the material is being used to renovate an ancient building in Wales."

Captain Cazalet then pressed Mr. MacDonald to consider introducing legislation to secure, for the British Museum, copies of any historical documents before their export, and remarked that all papers relevant to the history of the House of Commons in the eighteenth century are now in California.

"We never found any difficulty in getting those copies," Mr. MacDonald replied, "but the whole matter is under consideration. I will ask the Commissioner of Works, George Lambert, to consider whether any additional legislative powers are needed to protect old buildings like Bradenstoke tithe barn."

RADICALS ATTACK POINCARE POLICY

Blame for Need to Ratify Debt Accords This Month Is Put on Premier's "Mistakes."

AURIOL SCORES YOUNG PLAN

Poincare Is Expected Back Today to Force Vote by Week-End—Majority of 35 Is Predicted.

By P. J. PHILIP.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, July 18.—Although 80 per cent of the French Deputies in their hearts and consciences are convinced that there is nothing else to be done than to ratify France's debt agreements, and though a majority for ratififfciation is assured by about thirty-five or forty votes, the internal political battle, which has been provided by the occasion of the present debate in the Chamber, is being waged stoutly and steadily. Not content with two long morning and afternoon sessions, the Chamber decided to sit again tonight in an effort to permit all the twenty-three remaining orators who wish to speak to deliver their arguments, or rather to conduct their little political campaign.

The Premier is still slightly indisposed. Though his fever has abated today he was still absent from the Chamber of Deputies. Tomorrow he expects to resume his seat.

Radical Scores Poincaré.

His absence today spared him one of the most bitter attacks yet delivered against all his former policy and against the whole conduct of the debt and reparations negotiations which have led to the present necessity of having to ratify before the end of the month. It came from one of the youngest Deputies, Gaston Bergerie, who was formerly assistant secretary of the Reparations Commission. M. Bergerie now sits among the Radical Socialists and is one of the most active members of that group. Even his adversaries admitted his attack was deadly, for it reviewed from an expert's point of view the whole course of the events which have led to the present situation, putting the blame on the constant belief of the Nationalists, which the Premier long shared, that better terms could be got from Germany, from the United States and from Great Britain than those which were repeatedly offered.

The occupation of the Ruhr, the rejection of the Bonar Law proposal, the long delay in ratifying the debt accords—all these were mistakes, said the young orator, which had been made by the veteran Premier. Mr. Bergerie, like his party, however, insisted on the inclusion of reservations in the text of the ratification law.

Auriol Attacks Young Plan.

Vincent Auriol, Socialist and financial expert, who was a member of the delegation which Joseph Caillaux took to Washington on the first attempt to reach a debt settlement, was the next to deliver an attack against the government and its present majority, which was formerly opposed to the ratification for which it now must vote. M. Auriol caused a lively incident by recalling how President Hoover's proposal to get around the difficulty of the safeguard clause was dropped because of a lack of unanimity in the French delegation. M. Auriol is one of those who look with suspicion on the Young plan, first, because it is, in his opinion, detrimental to French interests; second, because the link between reparations and debts is more theoretical then real, and third, because, as a Socialist, he mistrusts the Bank of International Settlements.

Paul Reynaud, Nationalist, who is regarded as one of the coming men of the Right parties, was the only defender of the government throughout the long day's debate. He put the situation clearly enough, saying that what had been signed must be ratified, because there was nothing else to be done.

Premier's Victory Forecast.

It was in vain that the Left stormed back, "We told you that in 1926, but you refused to listen."

M. Reynaud replied:

"All right, it is now we who must carry the responsibility of having to vote this tremendous burden solidly onto our shoulders."

He was cheered by his own party and the Centre, and their cheers confirmed the latest straw vote that if, and when, the matter finally comes to a vote between the government's proposal for ratification pure and simple and the commission's proposal for ratification with reservations, it will be the former which will win by at least a majority of thirty-five votes. Ratification will then probably be carried without a division, the Chamber adding to it a simple declaration in the sense that it reserves the right to suspend payments if Germany defaults on payments of the Young plan annuities. That motion will not, however, be included in the law itself.

Bill Expected by July 27.

PARIS, July 18 (AP).—The announcement that Premier Poincaré expected to reappear in his seat tomorrow morning was interpreted as an attemp to stem the flod of oratory and force a vote before the end of the week.

The Senate adjourned at 6:30 P. M. and will reassemble at 3 P. M. on Monday to receive the ratification bill expected from the Chamber. The Senate should dispose of its part of the work in three days.

Thus the final and definite ratification is expected before July 27 and should be ready for President Doumergue's signature before the end of the month.

The American tariff and American wealth were brought up in the Chamber by Deputy Jean Durand, who spoke in favor of reservations in the ratification because "France has the right to wish to remain free in the face of a prodigiously rich creditor."

He explained that he did not mean that France was confronted with American colonization of Europe but that the United States was investing a formidable amount of capital abroad.

The deputy protested against the "imposition of Amer...an customs which investigates the figures submitted by French exporters." He decried the "prohibitory nature of the American tariff which has been strongly protested by Italy, Belgium, France and even by some Americans," and he suggested that France adopt a similar procedure toward American exports.

In the course of his speech, M. Durand applauded the idea advanced by Foreign Minister Briand for a federation of European States.

"The United States is too strong for any one of them," he said, "but the United States would be feeble in the face of all of them."

FARM NEWS OFFICES OPEN.

Federal Market Service on Grain Extended to Pacific Coast.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 18.—The market news service of the Department of Agriculture on grain, hay and feed has been put on a national basis by the opening of three new offices at San Francisco, Los Angeles and Portland on Monday.

Expansion of the service was provided by Congress in the appropriation which became available July 1. Up to this time such market news has covered principally the area east of the Rockies, field offices having been established for several years at Minneapolis, Chicago and Kansas City.

Trained specialists will be placed in the new offices to collect information and disseminate reports giving interpreettions of the current market situation.

Natole, coming out of a driveway, struck the Rhode Island machine operated by Hill. Mrs. Voyer, Yokel and Hill all sustained minor injuries.

Prince of Wales Drinks Glass of Beer, Wishing 'Good Luck' to British Workmen

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, July 18.—Another instance of the spontaneous democracy of the Prince of Wales was given today when he drank a glass of beer to the health of 200 workmen who had toasted him after the opening of the new building of the London School of Hygiene and Tropical Medicine in Gower Street. The building was largely made possible by a $2,000,000 gift from the Rockefeller Foundation.

Following the opening ceremony the Prince entered a marquee in the grounds where the men who had been working on the building were being entertained to luncheon by Lord Melchett, chairman of the board of management. As the Prince entered, the men, in working clothes, rose and cheered him for several minutes.

Then raising their glasses they shouted, "Good luck and good health."

The Prince, raising a glass of beer high above his shoulder, replied: "Here's the very best to you, too, thank you."

The workmen then sang "For He's A Jolly Good Fellow."

A great crowd of professors and students from London University, many in bright colored academic gowns, greeted the Prince who opened the main door of the building with a silver key.

The Prince declared:

"The endowment and maintenance of this centre of teaching and research in medicine is a signal example of the bond between the two great English-speaking peoples of the world."

BREMEN RIDES EASILY IN FIRST STORM AT SEA

By FERDINANL KUHN Jr.,
Special Correspondent of The New York Times.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ON BOARD THE STEAMSHIP BREMEN, July 18.—The liner is encountering tonight the first roughness of her maiden trip. Two hundred miles off the Scilly Islands a fresh northwest wind blew up, bringing rain squalls and a heavy sea flecked with whitecaps. Through it the Bremen ploughed her way majestically with speed only slightly reduced. Passengers are dancing in the Bremen's night club, unaware of more than gentle swaying although the seas outside mounted angrily during the evening.

All day the giant ship has been making swift progress from Cherbourg. At noon, ten hours and forty-five minutes after sailing, the Bremen had covered 268 sea miles at an average of 26.6 knots. This was good, especially because another Channel fog compelled her to slow down for an hour early this morning. Later the ship swept ahead steadily at about 26½ knots.

Captain Ziegenbein smiled happily at the Bremen's performance, although he said it was too early to judge her capabilities.

"When we have actually broken records it will be time to boast," he said.

He was delighted with the smooth functioning of the engines and said the Bremen, despite her 49,864 tons, was steered and controlled as easily as a launch, partly through the construction of the stern, which lessens the resistance to the rudder.

Captain Ziegenbein intimated he might take the ship on the southerly route to avoid the icebergs off the Newfoundland Banks, which are plentiful in July and August. It would mean a slower trip not only because of the extra mileage but because of the Gulf Stream current. Captain Ziegenbein is an old-time skipper who has seen icebergs at their worst and will not take chances, not even for the sake of breaking records.

FRENCH ACTORS WIN RIGHT TO TALKIE PARTS

Stars of Comedie Francaise Convince Directors Against Their Wills—Four Favored Ban.

By CARLISLE MacDONALD.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, July 18.—The ultra-conservative atmosphere of the Comedie Française, famous French State theatre, has been rudely disturbed by the forceful injection of the talking film issue into the deliberations of those who control its destinies.

Until a few days ago, the advent of the talkies left the Comedie Française completely cold to this new form of screen expression, but temptation, in the form of big offers to many of its stars, suddenly confronted the directors with the grave question of, should the artists of the Comedie Française be permitted to take part in talking films or should the Comedie Française continue to ignore their existence.

With the temperature above ninety, the general assembly of members met and discussed the question for two days with the result that artists of the theatre may now receive authorization to appear in talking films, provided they are the only member of the state theatre in the cast.

The permission is further limited to those plays which are not in the repertoire of the Comedie Française.

Four members of the assembly favored an absolute ban on the appearance of any Comedie Française artist in a talking film.

GERMAN TRADE RISE LAID TO YOUNG PLAN

PRODUCTION IS INCREASED

Trade Balance in May Favorable for the First Time Since September, 1926.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 18.—Business conditions in Germany continued to improve in June under the salutary effects of the progress made toward the Young plan settlement, W. T. Daugherty, acting commercial attaché, informed the Department of Commerce from Berlin today.

The financial situation was described as better, following the resumption of foreign borrowing to the extent of almost 300,000,000 marks, and the credit restriction policy of the Reichsbank has been abolished. Gold exchange holdings also have increased.

Coupled with the improved financial condition, Mr. Daugherty said, June production and exportation of iron, coal and steel advanced while unemployment and bankruptcies declined.

The Reichsbank increased its gold holdings at the end of June to 1,911,000,000 marks and to 360,000,000 marks for gold exchange, bringing the total to 2,271,000,000, as against a low figure of 1,991,000,000 at the end of April. Loan and discount portfolios aggregated 3,207,000,000 marks at the end of the month.

Total note circulation, including Rentenbank notes, amounted to 5,296,900,000 marks, which was lower than a year ago but better than at the end of April. The cover for note circulation at the end of June was 47 per cent, or 42 per cent including Rentenbank circulation, as against 38.8 per cent at the end of April and 44.4 per cent at the end of June, 1928.

Deposits totaled 631,000,000 marks in June, as against 525,000,000 a year ago.

The total Reichsbank and Rentenbank money in circulation, notes and deposits, was 5,929,000,000 marks, against 5,777,000,000 a year ago, the cover for this entire circulation being 38 per cent, and 40 per cent last year.

Call money rates, the report said, slumped in the middle of June to 6.5 to 9 per cent, but increased to 9 to 11 per cent at the end of the month as compared with a range of 5 to 9.5 last year.

Private discount rates remained steady at 7.5 per cent.

Of the June loans 222,600,000 marks were of American origin, including a $50,000,000 Reich loan. Local borrowing, however, was stagnant. The Stock Exchange index stood at 125.69, as against 146.10 last year. The bond index was 96, as compared with 100.7.

The balance of foreign trade in May was favorable for the first time since September, 1926, imports being valued at 1,122,000,000 marks and exports at 1,176,000,000.

3,000 WORKERS OUT IN BRITISH DROUGHT

Night Shift in Mills Are Laid Off as Water Supply Is Stopped From Dusk to Dawn.

ANOTHER RAINLESS DAY

Weather Bureau Predicts Continuation of Dry Period as Government Investigates Sources.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, July 18.—Another hot and rainless day depleted still further England's rapidly diminishing water supply.

Owing to the turning off of water at night, as an economy measure, 3,000 workers in Bradford and adjacent districts have been rendered idle by the stopping of night shifts at mills.

In many other parts of Great Britain officials have cut off the water from 6 at night to 6 in the morning, thus saving millions of gallons daily.

It is in the smaller villages that the drought is most acutely felt, for wells and small reservoirs are completely dried up in many places that have no other supply.

A survey of the whole of the sources of Great Britain's water supplies has been started by the Ministry of Health with the help of leading provincial experts. The aim is to enforce protective measures where it is necessary to prevent the smaller districts from being robbed of their own supplies through the invasion of their territories by larger corporations.

For instance, Wales supplies Birmingham, but in doing so some of Wales's own districts have been dried up. The question of London's rapidly increasing water consumption is to be discussed by the Metropolitan Water Board tomorrow. So far the capital situation is satisfactory, with no restrictions on the supply.

According to meteorologists, indications point to a continuance of the dry spell. It has been, so far, the driest year at Kew since the records there were begun in 1866.

A. J. Cook, miners' secretary, went without his luncheon today because he was not permitted to eat in a Russel Square restaurant in his shirt-sleeves.

"I said it was strange that women could eat with their arms bare," he explained, "but the manager said she had instructions not to serve coatless men. It is silly and absurd that in weather like this a man can't sit in a restaurant with his coat off."

Cuban Shortage Is Acute.

HAVANA, July 18 (AP).—Shortage of water at Santiago de Cuba, where supplies have been rationed for some days after a long drought, reached its climax yesterday when wells went entirely dry.

A dispatch to The Havana Post said today the chief of public works cut off the water supply to many suburbs as an emergency measure, only furnishing water during a few hours of the day to the central parts of the city.

Lack of rain has made the shortage so acute that it is feared importation of water will be come necessary. The populace is dissatisfied and is pointing out that the port is menaced with bad sanitary conditions.

GRAND JURY TO SIFT ELLIOTT CASE AGAIN

Will Meet July 26 to Consider Testimony Naming Jersey Company in Banker's Disappearance.

Special to The New York Times.

PATERSON, N. J., July 18.—Acting Prosecutor James M. Dunn sent out notices today to the members of the April term grand jury to reconvene on Friday, July 26, for consideration of testimony taken by the Davis legislative committee concerning the kidnapping of Willard H. Elliott, former Passaic banker, and the "relationship of the kidnapping with the New Jersey Bankers Securities Company."

Mr. Dunn said that the grand jurors will be charged on both subjects by Supreme Court Justice Charles C. Black, with whom he conferred earlier in the day after studying data submitted by C. Fred Burnett, counsel to the Davis committee.

Mr. Elliott mysteriously disappeared three weeks ago, and six days later he reappeared with a tale of having been kidnapped by two Chicago gunmen. He told the authorities that he was convinced his connection with the Hobart company, owned by officers of the New Jersey Bankers Securities, had something to do with the kidnapping.

SAY ESTELLE IV CAN DO 105 MILES AN HOUR

British Hope Triple Screwed Speedboat Will Give Record to Miss Carstairs.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, July 18.—Further details were disclosed tonight of the new speed boat Estelle IV, with which Miss Betty Carstairs hopes to break Gar Woods's record of 93.12 miles an hour when competing for the Harmsworth Trophy next September in America.

The Estelle IV, which Miss Carstairs will drive herself, has an estimated speed of 105 miles an hour. It is the first triple-screw motor boat ever built here and the most powerful in the world. Each screw is driven by a Napier Lion aero engine, aggregating over 3,000 horsepower, and the ship's complete weight is four and one-half tons.

Miss Carstairs will sail on Saturday for Canada, where the Estelle IV will be tried out on a fresh-water lake. The underwater surface has been treated with a secret composition which makes it almost frictionless.

TWO BOY PRISONERS FLEE.

Reformatory Inmates Had Voiced Wish to Go to a Circus.

Special to The New York Times.

DOBBS FERRY, N. Y., July 18.—When Fred Peloso and John Erickson, two boy prisoners, escaped today from the New York Juvenile Reformatory near Dobbs Ferry attendants and policemen searched for them in Yonkers because Peloso's relatives live at 112 Beech Street, Yonkers.

The two runaways, who are 12 years old, were not found. They are said to have confided to other prisoners that they wanted to go to a circus or carnival. They wore blue overalls and khaki shirts. Seven prisoners have escaped from the reformatory in a week.

LONDON STILL WAITS FOR SOVIET REPLY

If Moscow Insists Resumption of Relations Be Unconditional, Issue Will Be Shelved.

RED PROPAGANDA IS SNAG

Macdonald Goes Cautiously, Though Extremists Demand Recognition Without Reservations.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, July 18.—No reply has yet been received from Moscow to the British Government's recent invitation to send a representative to London for a preliminary discussion of the conditions under which full diplomatic relations between the two countries might be resumed.

As a matter of fact, the British Foreign Office is not at all sanguine that the reply will be favorable when it does come. It is taken for granted in London that the Soviet Government still adheres to its contention that if relations are to be resumed such an act must be entirely unconditional. If Moscow's reply does take that line the matter will be allowed to rest indefinitely until Russia withdraws its objections to a preliminary discussion, for England is just as insistent in its viewpoint as Russia is.

Chief among the conditions the British would impose is that Russia shall not take advantage of having an embassy in London to spread Communist doctrine in this country. Prime Minister MacDonald and Foreign Minister Arthur Henderson at present are just as strongly opposed to communism and its propaganda as were their Conservative predecessors. They must be even more circumspect in the matter than the Tories were, because of the apparent inability of a large part of the British electorate to discriminate between the socialism of the bulk of the Labor party and the communistic tendencies of its small Left Wing extremists.

An awkward political phase of the situation with which Mr. MacDonald has to contend and which never troubled Mr. Baldwin is that a small group of members of Parliament elected on the Labor ticket would not resent Communist propaganda and are insisting that diplomatic relations be resumed immediately without conditions, as Moscow demands.

Dominions' Stand Asked.

LONDON, July 18 (Canadian Press).—The question of the attitude of the Dominions toward resumption of diplomatic relations between Great Britain and Russia was again dealt with in Parliament this afternoon when members pressed for more information on the correspondence between Britain and the Dominions.

Hugh Dalton, Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs, replying to Captain H. C. Crookshank, Conservative member for Gainsborough, said it would be premature at this stage to consult the Dominions in regard to publication of the papers.

Captain Crookshank said he had already asked the Prime Minister whether the Dominions had consented to the opening of negotiations and whether the British Government was acting on its own behalf or on behalf of the whole empire. W. Smithers, Conservative member for Chiselhurst, Kent, asked for an assurance that the Dominions' replies would be communicated to the House before decisive action was taken.

Mr. Dalton replied that nothing new could be said.

OIL TARIFF SOUGHT AS HEARINGS END

Independent Producers Argue for $1 a Barrel on Crude and 50% Ad Valorem on Products.

BACKED BY SOFT COAL MEN

Democrats Hear That Hoover Is Listing Their Tariff Pleas to Parry Critics of Bill.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 18.—Public hearings on the provisions of the Hawley tariff bill were concluded before the Senate Committee on Finance this afternoon and it was announced that the actual redrafting of the bill by the Republican members of the committee would begin on Monday.

While Chairman Smoot is inclined to be doubtful, other Republican members are of the opinion the bill will be ready for the Senate when it reconvenes on Aug. 19. There is also a growing impression that many of the increased rates in the bill as it passed the House will be reduced, some of them substantially, by the Senate committee.

The feature of the final public session was the demand of independent oil producers for a tariff on crude oil and oil products of foreign origin. They asked for a duty of $1 a barrel on crude oil and a 50 per cent ad valorem rate on lubricating oils, gasoline and other petroleum products.

The opinion is general that this demand will not be enacted into law, although a hard fight on the floor of the Senate is predicted.

The bituminous coal operators also asked for a duty on oil on the ground that, under present conditions, fuel oil was endangering the prosperity of their industry.

The committee finished the public phase of its labors without hearing any testimony for or against Senator Smoot's proposition for sliding scale rates on sugar. The Senator explained that he would submit his plan to his Republican colleagues on the committee and that if they approved it there would probably be a public hearing.

If they disapprove, it will probably end, so far as the sliding scale is concerned, although there is some talk of offering it from the floor in the event it is rejected in committee.

Democratic leaders are very much incensed over reports indicating that steps have been taken by President Hoover to obtain ammunition to meet attacks which may be made by Democratic members of the House and the Senate on the pending tariff bill.

Charge Aid to Backfire Critics.

These reports are to the effect that the President has asked the Tariff Commission to supply him with information giving the names of members of Congress who in the past few years have requested the commission to start inquiries with a view to increasing duties under the flexible provision of the Fordney-McCumber law.

The object of this inquiry, the Democrats charge, is to ascertain whether Democrats, notably Southern Democrats, have been seeking tariff increases that are out of tune with their public protestations on the question.

It was stated in this connection that it was the idea of the administration that information might be obtained from the commission that would prove embarrassing to Democratic critics of the bill if it was presented in effective fashion by Republican leaders in discussions in the Senate and in others that will follow in the House after the presentation of a conference report.

Calls Standard Oil Against Duty.

The principal argument in favor of the transfer of petroleum and its products from the free to the dutiable list was made by former Representative E. B. Howard of Tulsa, Okla., representing the Independent Petroleum Association of America and various independent royalty owners and producers who are not members of the Association.

At the outset, Mr. Howard asked to correct an impression existing in some quarters to the effect that the Standard Oil groups were favorable to a tariff on oil and its products.

"They are opposed to this tariff and I challenge any one to prove to the contrary," he said.

On this point he explained that the oil industry was composed of two distinct groups. One he described as the producing group whose only concern was production of crude oil in which they were linked with farmers owning oil lands and thousands of wage earners. The other, he said, comprised interests engaged to some extent in producing crude oil but also possessed of refineries, transportation facilities and distributing stations. In the second group he also included foreign producers operating with "cheap labor" and having their products admitted duty-free.

"To the American public the first class is more important than the latter," Mr. Howard continued, "for if the producer did not produce the American crude, the farmer and land owner did not permit it to be produced from his land, and the wage earner did not lend his labor, there would be no opportunity for the other class, the refiner, transporter and distributer, to serve the public.

Depression Among Producers.

"For the past several years, and at the present time, the producing end of the industry has been in a depressed condition, the price of production having decreased a total of 29.4 per cent since 1921.

"This has forced many independent producers out of business, has decreased to a pitiable degree the income of the farmer and land owners, has reduced the earnings of oilfield workers, who are numbered by the thousands, and has practically brought ruin and bankruptcy to the producing end of the industry.

"On the other hand, that end of the industry which is engaged in the refining, transportation and distribution of petroleum products has prospered beyond measure.

"This branch of the industry is, to a very great degree, controlled by the Standard Oil Company, its associates and subsidiaries. Through profits earned in the field of production, through their transportation lines, their refineries, their distributing stations and through the importation of cheap foreign oils they have prospered beyond the most vivid imagination."

For what he describes as "purely business and financial reasons," Mr. Howard said, the Standard group and their subsidiaries are opposed to a duty on foreign oils.

Heavy Importations Cited.

With the exception of the Standard Oil groups, he added, the only companies benefited by the free oil entry law are the Royal Dutch Shell and the Oil Fields, Ltd., both British-controlled.

Of the slightly more than $100,000,000 barrels imported from Venezuela last year over 48,000,000 barrels were imported by these two foreign-controlled corporations, Mr. Howard said.

"With these facts before us, is it surprising that we are asking an American Congress for protection?" he asked.

Mr. Howard said he doubted that a tariff would raise the price of oil, gasoline and oil products to the American consumer. This, he said, was indicated by the fact that importations to date have not had a tendency to reduce prices.

Mr. Howard argued that there was no danger of a depletion of the American oil supply, which, he said, continued unlimited. However, he declared oil too valuable to be used to produce steam and heat, which could be had from the burning of coal.

Mr. Howard's position was supported by W. Scott Heywood of Jennings, La., who represented Governor Long and various independent producers and royalty owners of Louisiana.

Mr. Heywood declared that the independent oil industry's situation was one that could "only be cured by putting a tariff on foreign oil imports sufficiently large to protect the producers and the royalty owners."

"If American capital goes into foreign countries to produce oil, let them be treated as foreigners," he said.

Plea for Bituminous Industry.

Urging protection for the bituminous coal industry, H. L. Grady, executive secretary of the National Coal Association, said that the plight of the industry was to a considerable extent due to the use of oil as a fuel and the importation of such oils from abroad.

Reviewing the competition of oil with coal as fuel in 1926-28, Mr. Grady said that oil at first displaced about 52,000,000 net tons of coal a year and later 98,668,000 net tons.

"In 1928," he said, "545,000,000 barrels of oil were consumed as fuel, displacing 118,500,000 tons of coal."

The centre of competition is found in those seaboard towns to which petroleum can be easily transported by water, he went on, and its source was the growing importation of petroleum and fuel oil from countries around the Caribbean. These importations, he added, have increased from 1,000,000 barrels in 1924 to nearly 60,000,000 in 1928.

"The bituminous industry with an investment of billions of dollars and employing hundreds of thousands, is rapidly losing some of its important established markets through the importation of vast quantities of low-grade oil produced under conditions which would be intolerable to American workers," Mr. Grady concluded.

"A moderate duty on imported petroleum and fuel oil will preserve those markets for American industry, and it is for such protection that we are appealing."

Foreign Trade Zones Urged.

Authorization for the creation of "foreign trade zones" in New York, Philadelphia, New Orleans and other leading ports was urged by former Representative George W. Edmunds of Philadelphia, Theodore Gruenwald of New Orleans, W. B. Hedden of New York and W. A. Cox of Norfolk.

Through these zones foreign materials would be transported for manufacture, repacking and other necessary handling and thereafter shipped to foreign destinations without the expense and delay due to passage through the customs. The zones would be under Federal supervision but financed by private interests.

It was argued that such zones, called "free trade zones" in other countries, would mean building up of the foreign trade of the country and would not necessarily interfere with the prosperity of any purely American industry.

When Mr. Hedden concluded, Chairman Smoot announced that the public hearings were at an end.

Doubts Philippine Restriction.

WASHINGTON, July 18 (AP).—Questioned by Democrats before the adjournment of the Senate Finance Committee today, Chairman Smoot expressed the opinion there would be no serious attempt in the committee to levy a duty on Philippine products or place any restriction on island sugar imports into the United States, although he personally favored a sugar limitation. The House bill does not disturb existing free trade relations between the Philippines and this country.

Senator Harrison, Democrat, Mississippi, drew the statements on sugar from the chairman by suggesting the calling of Secretary Stimson, former Governor-General of the Philippines, and experts for testimony on both subjects.

Senator Smoot said he would not offer his sliding scale sugar duty unless the Republican Committeemen thought it was feasible. He reiterated his plan would provide for a reduction of the flat rate of 2.40 cents a pound on Cuban sugar provided in the House bill, as compared with a present duty of 1.76 cents.

Speculation persisted today that the sliding scale plan were discarded a compromise rate of 2 cents against Cuba would be agreed upon. No one would comment officially, however, on such a prospect.

The Finance Committee received another foreign protest today, the Netherlands Government transmitting a complaint by the General Norit Company of Amsterdam against the House rate increase from 20 to 45 per cent on de-colorizing carbon.

The American industry, the Netherlands company contended, was amply represented and protected by the present duty.

TELLS SUGAR DUTY VIEWS.

Fred Brenckman Says Grange Asks Levy on Filipino Product.

In a Washington dispatch printed in THE NEW YORK TIMES July 13 Fred Brenckman of the National Grange was quoted as having told a subcommittee of the Senate Finance Committee that the farmer would be more injured than helped by a duty on sugar.

Mr. Brenckman has issued a statement concerning his appearance before the committee to which he says:

"My statement was to the effect that the National Grange favors a duty of 2 cents a pound on sugar, making the effective rate against Cuba 2.40 cents per pound. The explanation was made that the grange favors this added protection as an aid to the diversification of agriculture. I further stated, however, that the proposed increase in tariff on sugar would do the farmer no good unless a duty were levied against sugar importations from the Philippines, as the grange and other farm organizations have advocated from the start."

Mr. Brenckman explained that if a duty were imposed on importations to the Philippine treasury to help would favor the segregation of this duty and the transfer of this money to the Philippine Treasury to help defray the expenses of the government of the islands.

said the woman's husband is a government employe on a thirty-day leave of absence and that he had asked the husband's direct superior to summon him back to the city and direct him to appear with his wife for questioning about Clarke's alleged favors. Mr. Mintzer has been told that Clarke sent numerous smaller packages to the woman.

Six of the eleven indictments returned by the county grand jury were handed up to General Sessions Judge George L. Donnellan yesterday. The five others will be handed up to General Sessions Judge Cornelius F. Collins on Monday if the five complaining witnesses are in court. The same complaining witnesses are named in the indictments already handed up. Each of these alleged that he or she deposited money in Clarke Brothers' bank on June 28, the day before the firm filed a petition in voluntary bankruptcy. They are Max Altman, Mrs. Flora Van Horn, Hyman Salmonson, Samuel Burstein and Philip Klein. Altman made two complaints.

Acting District Attorney Ferdinand Pecora said the defendants would surrender today for arraignment before Judge Donnellan, and that he would ask for $25,000 bail for each of the three Clarke brothers and $5,000 for Bouker, who has told the grand jury a great deal and is still being questioned by that body and by Mr. Pecora.

Heney's Note Affidavit Produced.

William J. Heney, who had stated previously that he held Mexican property valued at about $40,000,000 and who endorsed the $500,000 note for Quimby on which Clarke Brothers tried to borrow that amount from the Irving Trust Company, was the first witness yesterday before Commissioner Cotter. He identified his enrosement on a photostatic copy of the note and his signature on a copy of the affidavit that accompanied it.

The affidavit set forth that Heney lived at Magdalena Bay Estates, Baja, Lower California, Mexico; that he was "owner in fee" of these estates, which consisted of 5,000,000 acres; that the "chain of title" came from the fee granted from the Mexican Government to Flores, Hales & Co., and that Heney's titles was by deeds from that source. The affidavit continued:

"That among other resources on said property there are large oil deposits; that Milton C. Quimby has heretofore negotiated and completed contracts by which oil rights on said property have been transferred to the syndicate known as the Merrill & Sinclair Syndicate; that deponent has already received upon said contract a cash payment of $500,000 on account of the total consideration for said contract; that the balance of the consideration, $4,500,000, is to be paid him on Aug. 22, 1929, under the terms of said contract."

Admits Affidavit Erred.

In answer to questions by United States Attorney Tuttle, Heney said none of the Mexican property was in his name; that the corporation was "anonymous" and had delegated him to act as "attorney in fact" in Mexico. Asked for a frank statement of his interest in the property, he replied:

"They owe me quite a sum of money, and I am the individual empowered to sell the property. My claim is $45,000 or more with interest. No, it has not been either acknowledged or disputed. Flores, Hale & Co. are not existent, but the property came to its present owners through them. My name appears only as power of attorney."

"Then the statement in the affidavit that you are 'owner in fee' is not accurate?" inquired Mr. Tuttle.

"Well, the way you explain it, it seems not," replied Heney, "but my way, I think it is."

"Are there 'large oil deposits' on the property?"

"Well, there are good indications of deposits."

"Is the statement that Quimby has negotiated and completed contracts by which the oil rights were transferred to the Merill & Sinclair Syndicate, inaccurate?"

"Yes. I didn't read it, or, naturally, I would have wanted it corrected."

"Is the statement that you have received a $500,000 cash payment on the contract true?"

"No. I expected it."

"How about the statement that the balance of the contract consideration, $4,500,000, was to be paid on Aug. 22?"

"The first I knew of that was at the time we drew the affidavit," Heney replied. "I think James Rae Clarke told the stenographer to put that in."

Hanlon Tells of Dictating Affidavit.

Daniel E. Hanlon, now Bouker's attorney, admitted, as the next witness, that he had been called by telephone on June 27 to Clarke Brothers' office and had dictated the affidavit on statements made to him chiefly by Heney and Quimby. He said there were present J. R. Clarke, Bouker, Heney, Quimby, a stenographer and himself.

Hanlon quoted J. R. Clarke as having told him he had "a man from whom he wanted as strong a statement as he would make as to his responsibility." He said Heney read the affidavit.

Quimby followed Hanlon on the stand. He said the affidavit had neither been prepared nor signed by him and that he would like the privilege of having the advice of counsel. He added:

"Rae (J. R. Clarke) asked me two days before the affidavit was made if I could get any one to lend him security that would tide him over a temporary embarrassment. He said he was in a jam but had no good collateral. He spoke of the market being responsible for a shrinkage in his values. He said if he could get $250,000 collateral it would tide him over. He told me that otherwise he would lose his houses at Yonkers and Atlantic Highlands, N. J. He did not tell me he wanted to get a new loan.

"He said my note would do if it were endorsed. He refused to give me a detailed statement on which to obtain collateral, but said to get some man who would accept a gentleman's statement. I thought of Heeney and that is how the note came about."

Cutler Tells of Giving Advice.

The calling of Cutler created a stir. He had come to be known as the "mystery man" in the case, since he had admitted before Referee Lyttle that Clarke Brothers had been paying him $100 a week for something that was not explained at all at the time.

Cutler, short, stern-visaged and very sure of himself, frequently fenced with Mr. Tuttle, announcing once that he was willing to help him if he could only understand what Mr. Tuttle wanted from him. He said he was not a lawyer and for several years had been in no business. He admitted having obtained loans from Clarke Brothers, through J. R. Clarke, over a period dating back beyond 1919. Asked what he knew of Clarke Brothers' refusal to be examined by T. J. Schultz of the State Banking Department, he replied:

"Clarke Brothers telephoned me about Schultz. We discussed the matter of the proposed examination of their affairs, and I said emphatically no. The Superintendent of Banks and the State Attorney General later sustained me. I knew nothing of that bank's affairs then."

His explanation of why he had been receiving $100 a week from Clarke Brothers for several years was:

"I had worked out a plan for the development of their investment department. They have delayed putting it into effect, while I have held myself in readiness to aid them in doing so. They have, therefore, had an option on my services for which I have received $100 a week."

"Have you actually rendered any service during this time?" asked Mr. Tuttle.

"No," the witness answered. "The $100 a week has been paid pursuant to an agreement with J. R. Clarke."

Vague as to Many Notes.

Nine of his notes given to Clarke Brothers in 1923 for a total of more than $17,000 were shown to him. None of these was secured, none had been paid and no demand for payment had been made, he admitted.

"Do you know," asked Mr. Tuttle, "why Clarke Brothers, if they were in their right senses, continued to make these loans to you?"

"No," was the answer.

Eight notes of 1924, aggregating $8,000, and other notes for 1925 were produced. Asked what he had done with the money he replied:

"Spent it."

He said he received a salary of $3,000 as secretary of the Private Bankers' Association and had also obtained loans for others from Clarke Brothers for which he had received commissions.

Cutler explained a 1921 note for $56,000 as a note to cover a lumping of past borrowings. Asked if he did not feel that he owed an explanation of how he obtained such loans from Clarke Brothers without collateral, Cutler said:

"There is no explanation."

After the hearing adjourned Cutler was questioned at length by Mr. Mintzer and others of Mr. Tuttle's staff. He admitted he had purchased several automobiles and had given them to his wife. Pressed for an explanation of why Clarke Brothers continued to lend him and pay him money, he said:

"Well, I was a very good friend of the Clarkes and when a good friend of yours comes along with a touch he has to get what he wants."

Cutler told Mr. Mintzer he had $100,000 coming to him for organizing an investment trust. He said he could not recall the name of the trust and was vague with respect to other details asked for.

Mr. Tuttle announced last night he had practically rejected Bouker's offer to testify for the Government. He declared all he could get from Bouker were "protestations of his innocence."

Mr. Mintzer announced he had located two safe deposit boxes belonging to Quimby in the vaults of banks in New Jersey.

URGE CITY'S BANKS TO HELP.

Clarke Depositors Want Losses Made Good, to Restore Faith.

The executive committee of the depositors in Clarke Brothers issued an open letter yesterday addressed to Willis H. Booth, president of the Merchants Association and vice president of the Guaranty Trust Company, calling upon the banks of the city to make good the losses of the Clarke depositors as a means of restoring confidence in the banking business.

"We do not think they should do this as charity, but they should do it to show to the world that banking as an institution, so far as New York City is concerned, is reliable, honest, dependable, and that the faith and confidence of depositors can not and will not be betrayed," it said. "Banks and bankers spend much money yearly in advertising. They have spent billions of dollars and years of time to acquire the faith and confidence which has meant so much to them. Surely they can see the wisdom of spending this comparatively small sum to maintain what has cost so much to obtain."

The letter also suggested that the Merchants Association, which has sought to foster New York trade and protect the public from fraud, should take the lead in seeing that Clarke depositors are paid in full. It added that the "scoundrels" in the bankruptcy case should be placed in jail and "faithless public officials" exposed.

The executive committee, at a meeting in the Federal Building, adopted a resolution asking newspapers to start funds to help the neediest of the depositors. The depositors' relief committee will meet in the Federal Building at 6 P. M. today.

DISPUTES CLARKE WITNESS.

Uzal H. McCarter Denies Being in $18,000,000 Power Syndicate.

Uzal H. McCarter, president of the Fidelity Trust Company of Newark, whose name was mentioned at the Federal hearing in New York City into the affairs of the defunct Clarke Brothers bank, issued yesterday a statement explaining testimony of Milton C. Quimby.

Mr. Quimby, testifying at the Federal hearing, said Mr. McCarter and his brother, Robert McCarter, Newark lawyer, headed an $18,000,000 syndicate which planned to buy New York State utility properties and consolidate them, and that he transferred half of his interest in this deal to the Clarkes to induce them to lend him $1,175.

"This man Quimby came to my brother and me about a year ago with this consolidation idea," said Mr. McCarter, "but it sounded to promoterish to me. After a little investigation we decided to have nothing to do with it, and as far as we are concerned there was no syndicate. It looked like an attempt to capitalize on our names. We never invested a nickel. You can get an idea of what it is like from the fact Quimby gave up half his interest for a loan of $1,175."

PLAN FINISH FIGHT TO END SWEATSHOPS

Cloak Union Leaders Seek Aid of City as 11,000 Remain Out in "Outlaw" Plants.

CONFER WITH MAYOR TODAY

14,000 in Organized Factories Back at Work, 5,000 More Expected to Return Today.

Since the cloakmakers' strike ended on Tuesday 15,000 workers have returned to the shops and an additional 4,000 are expected to return today. The returned workers are employed by members of the three employers' associations, and the strike will be continued against the independents and non-union employers, in whose shops 11,000 operatives are employed.

As evidence of the revival in power of the New York locals of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, leaders pointed yesterday to the receipt of $65,000 in dues in the last three days from workers who had registered with the union and received paid-up union cards. The offices of the Joint Board were swamped with former members seeking reinstatement.

Of the $65,000, $25,000 was paid into the union treasury in one day, it was said.

Because of the notification ceremonies at City Hall yesterday, Mayor Walker was unable to meet President Benjamin Schlesinger and Vice President David Dubinsky of the union and the scheduled conference was postponed until today. At the suggestion of the Mayor the union leaders will present to him a plan whereby the city may assist in eliminating the sweatshop and recommendations concerning police activity in the present and future needle trades strikes.

Following the conference Mr. Schlesinger will leave for Unity House, Forest Park, Pa., the Summer headquarters of the international union, for the week-end, where he will confer with the general executive board on the campaign against the sweatshops. The industry includes 45,000 workers.

I. Grossman, president of the Industrial Council of Cloak, Suit and Skirt Manufacturers, Inc., who left the city yesterday for a three weeks' rest, announced that retailers may buy merchandise without worry as to the ability of the manufacturers to deliver the garments on time.

"There is ample time for retailers to get all the merchandise they need," said Mr. Grossman. "Indications are that the New York market will experience a prosperous season. The settlement of the strike just two weeks after it was called and the return of the workers to the shops have acted to prevent outside markets from capitalizing on the local situation. An overwhelming proportion, if not all the business which normally is placed here, has been saved to the New York firms.

"It is a source of satisfaction to know that the trade will have three years of peace and that it may prepare its plans on a three-year scale without handrance."

The council's membership continues to grow, and yesterday a total of ninety-one concerns had applied for membership since last Thursday. The American Cloak and Suit Manufacturers Association has had 110 applications and twenty-five concerns have applied for admission to the Merchants Ladies' Garment Association.

PRISONER CONFESSES $7,700 'SWITCH GAME'

Man Sought Two Years Is Seized by Posse in Expensive Vermont Lake House.

John Zakoski, 39 years old, who has been sought by the Bronx police for two years on a grand larceny indictment charging the use of the "switch game" to get $7,700, was in the line-up at Police Headquarters yesterday morning. He readily admitted getting the money from Wrobolenski of 826 Hewitt Place, the Bronx, on May 2, 1927.

Zakoski was found living in an expensive bungalow on Lake St. Katherine, Vermont, by Detectives Fallon and Bengeton.

Wrobolenski said Zakoski was a tenant in the house where he was a janitor and told him he could make a lot of money by investing in Astoria real estate. Wrobolenski drew out his life savings, the money was counted in the apartment, placed in a black box and the boxes switched. The janitor said he discovered the theft the next day.

Zakoski was arraigned before Judge James M. Garrett in Bronx County Court on an indictment charging first degree grand larceny and was held without bail for another arraignment Tuesday.

The suspect was living in a twelve-room bungalow on the banks of the Vermont lake with his wife and six children. The detectives found they would need help in making the arrest because the thick woods surrounding the bungalow might aid Zakoski in escaping. The local sheriff swore in several deputies and the posse, armed with shotguns, rifles and revolvers, surrounded the house. Zakoski was found in the attic, where he had tried to hide.

BACKS CONVICTED EDITORS.

Liberties Union Offers Aid in Free Press Fight in Cleveland.

The American Civil Liberties Union announced yesterday that it had offered its services to Newton D. Baker, former Secretary of War, in his defense of Louis B. Seltzer, editor, and Carlton K. Matson, chief editorial writer of the Cleveland Press.

The editors were found guilty of contempt of court on Wednesday and fined $500 each and sentenced to thirty days in jail. They appealed and were released in bonds of $1,000.

It was also announced here yesterday that Mr. Matson would speak at Teachers College, Columbia University, next Thursday morning on "The Obligation of Public Officials to Preserve the Constitutional Rights of Freedom of Speech and of the Press." Mr. Matson will address the students of Clyde R. Miller's class in educational publicity.

One Yonkers Girl Lost; Two Found.

A police alarm was sent out yesterday for Fannie Ponchiobine, 14 years old, of 49 Loomis Avenue, Yonkers, who vanished from home last Monday. Two other girls who had been missing since Sunday were found just before daybreak when police interrupted an auto petting party on Valentine Avenue. They are Martha Butler and Evelyn Link.

Backed by NATION-WIDE APPROVAL . .

SHELL COMES TO NEW YORK!

SHELL—one of the world's largest producers and distributors of gasoline and motor oil is ready to serve New York. Through crowded city streets, and over the highways of the nation, Shell Gasoline and Shell Motor Oil have made enviable reputations for better motor car performance.

Shell Products have enjoyed wide spread popularity in the West and Middle West for years. They are now being distributed in New England and daily new Yellow and Red service stations are appearing in New York.

These same products, backed by the approval of the nation as being of the highest grade, are ready to give you a new conception of gasoline and motor oil quality.

There is no chance or accident about that quality. It is the result of complete control of every step in the manufacturing process from crude petroleum to refined products. Shell owns vast producing fields, owns great transportation facilities, operates its own modern refineries.

STOP AT THE SIGN OF THE SHELL

There's a Shell Yellow and Red service station near you, marked by the Shell sign. A trained, courteous representative will supply your motor needs with exact understanding of what SHELL GASOLINE and SHELL MOTOR OIL your engine requires in order to give you the greatest economy and utmost satisfaction.

Shell 400 "Extra Dry" Gasoline—A clean, hard-hitting motor fuel that burns completely because it's "extra dry." Refined to specifications accepted by the petroleum industry for gasoline of extra high quality. . . Ought to cost more, but it doesn't.

Super-Shell Gasoline—The quick-starting, natural anti-knock motor fuel. Developed especially to meet the requirements of the high-compression motor. Makes older cars perform like colts. Costs a few cents more—and well worth it.

Shell Motor Oil—The only motor oil possessing the four essentials of complete and proper lubrication: Low Carbon Content, Non-Fouling Nature of Carbon, Ideal Body at all Operating Temperatures, and Low Pour Point.

LA GUARDIA URGES A FIGHTING FUSION

He Tells Republican Club That Amateurs Cannot Whip Tammany.

CALLS OUT ALL IN PARTY

Asserting that the campaign against Tammany could not be won by amateurs, Representative F. H. LaGuardia, an aspirant for the Republican nomination for Mayor, called last night upon Republicans of prominence to join in the movement against Tammany or be classed among Tammany grafters and politicians. Mr. LaGuardia spoke at a dinner given for him by the New York Republican Club at the Town Hall Club. Samuel S. Koenig, New York County Chairman, who is believed to be friendly but not committed to Mr. LaGuardia's candidacy, was present.

Mr. LaGuardia declared that the candidate for Mayor selected must be a fighter, and asserted that lack of power to command a large campaign fund, which has been urged against him, constituted no disqualification. He reiterated that the nomination could be made only at the primary election on Sept. 17, indicating that he would not feel bound necessarily by the action of the coming unofficial city convention on Aug. 1 if the convention should make another selection.

Sees Good Chance of Victory.

"The situation is by no means hopeless and the outlook for the defeat of Tammany and the election of a competent city administration was never better," Mr. LaGuardia said. "The big task is to find candidates with fighting hearts and who will enter this campaign not for personal publicity, but with the determination to wage a real honest campaign, to present the facts to the people of this city with the conviction of certain victory. I am willing to support any group of such candidates.

"Whoever is selected as a candidate for Mayor in the coming election must know city government. He must also know his political onions. If he does not, the politicians will twist him round their fingers, as New York City has experienced with reform administrations in the past. He must be a man able to say 'no.' In the mentioning of various candidates, I have heard it stated that some candidates would not do because money would not be contributed to a campaign fund. I know of no better recommendation for any candidate. Large contributions have been the curse of American politics. Any candidate who can be elected to office only by reason of large contributions given with the expectation of returns cannot give the people of this city a fair, constructive, honest administration."

Mr. La Guardia urged the members of the club to act on their own initiative in supporting a candidate for Mayor and not to wait until they were told what to do by five or six men who would meet in conference and select a hand-picked candidate. He also declared that the candidate must be a man who believed he could win and added that to name a man and then tell him he had no chance of being elected was no way to win a fight.

Tuttle Mentioned for Governor.

Mayor John J. Fogarty of Yonkers had made previous reference to Mr. La Guardia's Mayoralty aspirations by saying that he hoped he would receive whatever promotion his heart desired and that United States Attorney Charles H. Tuttle, who sat next to Mr. La Guardia, would be the next Governor.

This led J. Edward Lumbard Jr., president of the club, to say that the dinner should not be interpreted as an endorsement of Mr. La Guardia's candidacy. A straw vote of the club members on their preference for Mayor was being taken, he explained, and the result, which will be made known before the city convention on Aug. 1, will determine the club's position.

Mr. LaGuardia said he regarded it as strange that there had been no serious consideration of a candidate for controller on an anti-Tammany fusion ticket and suggested to bankers and business men supporting such a fusion movement to look around and find a man of the caliber and ability necessary to fill this important office and willing to go through what might be a hard-fought and unpleasant campaign.

Speaking of governmental reorganization, he said:

"There is not a student of local conditions and city government who does not know the absolute necessity of a complete reorganization. The State of New York was compelled to do it. The Federal Government did it. A committee of 500 or 600 men and women is not necessary to advice what ought to be done. There is sufficient data, investigations and reports available and the most convincing source of information is the city budget itself.

"A city government for the great City of New York must be composed of officials with vision. It is not enough to attend to the daily routine work of the city, but planning, preparation and even construction must be carried on, looking fifty and seventy-five years ahead. Imagine a city of six million people requiring over nine hundred million gallons of water a day being left without a sufficient source of supply at any time in the future.

Assails Improvement Program.

Of the Walker program of improvements, Mr. LaGuardia said:

"It is true that the city administration within the last few days, with emphasis on the days, has brought about a so-called complete public improvement program. Suffice it to say that it took the present administration just three and a half years to locate all of these plans from the old files of previous administrations. There is not an original idea in the plan presented and there is not the faintest hope of putting any of the projects into immediate effect. Certainly there has been no comprehensive and sound plan evolved for financing any one of these projects. You can't move families now crowded in unsanitary tenements into a blue print and you can't cross rivers on an engineer's drawings. The only public improvement carried out to which the administration can point with pride is the funny-looking octagon caps forced upon the heads of the Police Department."

Mr. La Guardia charged that the city administration had permitted the police department to degenerate to a state of incompetency and dishonesty. He declared that the personnel was good but that the police department, like an army, became demoralized when there was "funny business" at the top, incompetency in command and dishonesty in management.

Mr. La Guardia criticized the conduct of city finances, urged a reduction of taxes and pledged himself, if nominated and elected, to a cleaning out of the Tax Department. He advocated additional parks and playgrounds and declared that a fusion platform should pledge immediate cancellation of the Central Park Casino lease and the conversion of what Mr. La Guardia styled a "whoopee joint" into a rest and storm shelter for mothers and children.

Mr. La Guardia characterized August Heckscher's speech asking Mayor Walker to run again, and the Mayor's favorable reply as "ballyhooing." Mr. Heckscher, he said, credited the Walker administration with the accomplishment of projects yet in the blue print stage, and with the success of the State Department in foreign relations to the diplomacy of Mayor Walker.

"The City of New York was never in greater need of a change in administration," Mr. La Guardia concluded.

"I call upon these New Yorkers of national prominence to come now to our aid, to join this fusion movement, to support the candidates who are willing to wage the fight and confident of victory. The call is out for all to join in this fight for clean city government. Let political leaders come forth and join the cause or hereafter be catalogued with the grafters and politicians of Tammany Hall."

BULGARIAN RAIDERS FLEE.

Two Yugoslav Gendarmes Wounded in All-Night Frontier Battle.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BELGRADE, July 18.—The battle with Komitajis, described here as Bulgarians, who crossed the Albano-Yugoslav frontier yesterday, continued all night. The Komitajis finally escaped into Albania under the cover of darkness. Two Yugoslav gendarmes were wounded.

Despite the bitter press campaign in progress between Yugoslavia and Bulgaria, Belgrade is expected to ratify the pending conventions in the hope that Bulgaria will follow suit, probably this will be followed by the constitution of a mixed Bulgaro-Yugoslav commission to investigate frontier incidents.

Fliers Phone During Refueling.

SHREVEPORT, La., July 18 (AP).—The KWKH plane seeking a new endurance flight record passed its thirty-sixth hour i nthe air at 10:30 o'clock tonight. The plane took off at 10:29 A. M., yesterday. A note dropped tonight by the aviators, W. Currey Sanders and Van Leary, from their Ryan monoplane reported everything is going smoothly." During the refuelling contacts, the two planes are connected by telephone permitting the men to converse freely.

Samuels an Independent Broker.

In an account of the separation suit brought by Mrs. Charlotte C. Samuels against Donald L. Samuels, member of the New York Stock Exchange, it was stated in THE NEW YORK TIMES, based on an affidavit by Mrs. Samuels, that the broker was a member of the firm of Grunta1, Lilienthal & Co. It was learned yesterday that Mr. Samuels is an independent broker and not a member of that firm.

COOPERATIVES ONLY TO GET FARM LOANS

Federal Board Holds Act Bars Applications of Individual Agriculturists.

ALL URGED TO JOIN GROUPS

4,000,000 in the Country Are Not Members—Legge Warns of Possibility of Wheat Price Drop.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 18.—After studying the farm relief act, the Federal Farm Board at its fourth session today decided that loans under the act were authorized only to regularly organized cooperative associations and not to individuals. This announcement was made by Alexander Legge, president of the board, who said that thousands of applications for loans had been received from individual farmers whom he wished informed that Federal aid could come only through cooperative associations.

About 2,000,000 of the 6,000,000 farmers in the United States are members of the cooperative associations. He explained that if nonmembers wanted Federal loans they could be obtained only by joining cooperatives.

Purposes of the Loans.

At the command of the Farm Board is $500,000,000, of which $150,000,000 has already been appropriated, to be loaned for these purposes:

1. The effective merchandising of agricultural commodities and food products.

2. The construction or acquisition by purchase or lease of physical marketing facilities for preparing, handling, storing, processing or merchandising of agricultural commodities or food products.

3. The formation of clearing house associations.

4. For extending membership of the cooperative associations applying for the loan, by educating the producers of the commodity handled by the association in the advantages of cooperative marketing.

5. To enable a cooperative association applying for a loan to advance to its members a greater share of the market price of the commodity delivered to the association than is practicable under other credit facilities.

Loans also may be made to the stabilization corporation, not only for the purchase of products from the cooperative associations and their members, but for trading in the market. Under this section of the law it is planned, if possible, to control surplus prices.

Mr. Legge said that the whole trend of the law is to encourage the organization of cooperatives which are charged with the responsibility of marketing commodities and thus to effect savings. To that end loans are authorized only to such cooperatives, which must be organized under State laws. Even small cooperatives will be given Federal aid if the board has assurance that the loans will be paid and properly expended, it was said.

"We have no idea of supplanting farm associations already created," he said. "Our program will be to supplement the efforts of the present machinery and not supplant them. But I hope the farmers will be informed that loans can come to them only through membership in cooperatives.

Sees Chance of Drop in Wheat.

Commenting on the mounting wheat price, Mr. Legge said:

"The price of wheat has not gone too high, but the farmer ought to reflect that when prices have increased 50 cents a bushel in the last few months there is a chance of a decline. I believe that the present increase is due to estimated short crops and has no real connection with the stock market manipulation.

"It might be remembered, however, that later the wheat crop may show a greater yield than is at present estimated and this would cause a recession in prices."

James S. Stone, vice president of the board, said that the great problem of his associates was to get the farmer "cooperatively minded" because so few of them are familiar with the systems of marketing which have proved helpful.

URGES AID ON COTTON.

Georgia House Calls On Federal Board for Immediate Action.

ATLANTA, July 18 (AP).—Immediate action by the Federal Farm Board to insure the cotton farmer the cost of production and a reasonable profit was requested in a resolution adopted today by the Georgia House of Representatives. Similar action by the Texas Legislature was commended by the Georgia House. The resolution asserted that 18½ cents, today's price, was below production cost.

Setting out that Georgia "is in a similiar predicament with the State of Texas," the resolution said farmers had sold their crops below production cost for the last eight years, and added, "we further believe that that is one of the major factors that has influenced the economic conditions of the South."

the failure of the City Trust Company.

Mr. Moses, in his report to Governor Roosevelt, declared that Judge Mancuso's testimony was lacking in frankness and accuracy. In censuring Judge Mancuso "for indifference and neglect of his banking duties and for being a mere catspaw in the bank," Mr. Moses emphasized the fact that Judge Mancuso's position in the community and the bank required that he exercise leadership and responsibility for the protection of depositors and stockholders who "were attracted and lulled into a sense of security by his name."

Mr. Burlingham said the committee on criminal courts, law and procedure of the association, of which Kenneth M. Spence of 52 Wall Street is chairman, would go over the report of Mr. Moses and the testimony which Judge Mancuso gave during the investigation. Mr. Spence said the committee would meet in his offices on Monday and would undoubtedly act with a committee representing the New York County Lawyers' Association.

Mr. Spence conferred briefly over the telephone late in the afternoon with Terrence J. McManus, 170 Broadway, secretary of the New York County Lawyers' Association. Mr. McManus said the Governor's telegram would be turned over this morning to Charles A. Boston, 15 Broad Street, senior vice president of the association, who is in charge in the absence of William Nelson Cromwell, president of the organization, who is now in Europe.

Rôle of Associations Explained.

Mr. McManus said either the board of directors or the judiciary committee of the association would cooperate with the criminal courts, law and procedure committee of the bar association. Mr. Boston will make the decision today.

Officials of the two organizations said that neither association has the legal power to investigate the conduct of Judge Mancuso, as this is a power delegated to the Senate.

Transcript of the evidence before Mr. Moses is now available. The committees will undoubtedly have the minutes when they meet next week. It was said that no time will be lost in going over the record and submitting the report.

In commenting on the proposed action of the joint committee, Mr. Burlingham said: "We have no authority to investigate a judge. All we can do is study the report of Commissioner Moses and the evidence taken at his hearing and then report to Governor Roosevelt, giving him the benefit of our experience.

"The Governor's telegram makes it perfectly clear what we are to do. We will make a recommendation to the Governor promptly concerning action to be taken, as he requested."

Beyerle and Cohn Arraigned.

Arthur F. Beyerle, former bank examiner and controller of the Atlantic branch of the City Trust Company, and Joseph M. Cohn, one of the vice presidents of the City Trust Company, were arraigned yesterday before Supreme Court Justice James C. Cropsey in Brooklyn, at a continued hearing. Justice Cropsey sat as a committing magistrate.

Beyerle was accused of larceny of stock and subornation of perjury. He was released in $5,000 bail after waiving examination and being held for the action of the extraordinary grand jury, which is to convene in Brooklyn on Aug. 5.

Cohn, who is charged with a misdemeanor, was released in $2,000 bail. He was ordered held for Special Sessions after waiving examination, but his case may also be presented before the special grand jury.

John Kirkland Clark, special prosecutor in the City Trust cases, represented Commissioner Moses. Assistant District Attorney Louis Goldstein appeared for District Attorney Dodd and asked that bail be increased to $10,000. Justice Cropsey, however, permitted the bail to remain as fixed at the previous hearing.

After the hearing Justice Cropsey questioned Isaac C. Donner, assistant secretary of the Greater City Securities Company, which went surety for Cohn. Donner said the company's assets are $365,000, but he did not know the amount of outstanding surety and the bail collateral. He later furnished the required information and the bail was accepted.

The hearing before Federal Referee Henry K. Davis in the bankruptcy of Lancia Motors of America, Inc., at which Frank H. Warder, former State Superintendent of Banks, was to have been questioned yesterday afternoon, was postponed again to Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock. The adjournment was asked by Howard Myers, one of the attorneys for the creditors, who said the investigation in regard to missing assets had not been completed.

INVADERS REPULSED IN SHAM BATTLE

Blue Forces Win First Victory in Week of Fighting—Red "Losses" Now 22,000.

CAMPAIGN SHIFTS TO NORTH

Fort Hancock to Be Centre of New Attack—Artillery Manoeuvres to Be Held There Sunday.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMP DIX, N. J., July 18.—The defending Blue army was flying banners of victory tonight as the campaign against the mythical Red invaders drew to a close and preparations were made to shift activities nearer to New York. After a week of "fighting," the first part of which saw the defending army repeatedly "repulsed," the Blue army turned about and, in a day of hard driving, enclosed the invaders in a cul-de-sac. The total Blue losses for the war to date were put tonight at 20,750, and Red losses at 22,000 "killed, wounded and gassed."

The Blue army, having succeeded yesterday in holding the Red advance for the first time, rushed preparations throughout the night, and at dawn today threw "veterans" as well as reserves into a pounding "assault" on both the east and west.

Red Forces Are "Cornered."

The manoeuvre enclosed the Red army, which is supposed to have landed 300,000 men between Atlantic City and Barnegat, in a small area the shape of a bottle neck. According to advices received through the Blue "military intelligence," the Reds are now creating a diversion by rushing their first and third divisions out of the bottle neck and toward Fort Hancock, where they will receive the support of the Red fleet which has theoretically sunk the defending navy.

In contrast to the World War tactics, the brunt of the drive here was borne by the cavalry. On the west the Fifty-first Cavalry Brigade brought the Blue line from a point just south of Rancocas down to a line running from Taunton to Fairview, an average distance of twelve miles. On the east the Sixty-first Cavalry Division reached the neighborhood of Lakehurst before the "drive" concluded at 4:50 o'clock this afternoon.

The Red army put up the liveliest resistance in the centre of the "battle" line. There they were driven back only half a mile, holding the outskirts of Birmingham and Cookstown.

Will Shift Scene of Action.

As preparations were made to shift from command post exercises to coast defense drill, it was given out that the first and third divisions of the Red army are being shifted to the northern part of the State in order to concentrate with a fresh convoy of Red troops, which, according to information gained by the air corps, was landed at Atlantic City today. This convoy, totaling 50,000 men, has supposedly started up the coast toward Fort Hancock.

They will be supported by the Red fleet, simulated by United States Navy destroyers and submarine chasers. Major Gen. Ely, commandant of the Second Corps Area, has announced that he will go to Fort Hancock on Sunday to take charge of the manoeuvres, which, unlike the present exercises, will include actual target practice with heavy artillery.

In the meantime, officers who have engaged in the present "war" are coordinating data gained in the exercises and will meet tomorrow morning at army headquarters.

FIND SLAYER DIED OF POISON IN PRISON

Sing Sing Officials Are Unable to Learn How Manhattan Convict Got Drug.

Special to The New York Times.

OSSINING, N. Y., July 18.—Sing Sing authorities, who on Wednesday had given the cause of the death of Benjamin Tuckel, a prisoner, as a kidney ailment, today announced that he apparently had committed suicide. Tuckel, who was 22 years old, had served five months of a forty-five year sentence for murder in Manhattan.

Dr. Edwin Huntington of Ossining, acting medical examiner of Westchester County, was called in when prison physicians found symptoms indicating possible suicide and he reported to Warden Lewis E. Lawes that he found traces of what he believes bichloride of mercury poison.

"I am satisfied that Tuckel committed suicide," the Warden said, "but with what we are not yet sure. I do not know how he could have obtained mercury or any poison. He was taking one remedy for a blood ailment. A search was made in his locker and other places where Tuckel had been but nothing was found."

Tuckel went to the hospital on Sunday afternoon when his strength seemed to be exhausted. He grew worse until his death Tuesday night.

The prisoner, it now develops, was kept under observation as to his sanity from Feb. 27 to March 29 and then pronounced sane. He had said that his father lived at 1,106 West Farms Road, the Bronx. His sister, Miss H. Tuckel, claimed the body and it was turned over to J. Morris, an undertaker, of Sutton Avenue, Brooklyn.

THEATRE ROBBER KILLED.

Shot by Portland (Ore.) Police as He Flees With $4,000.

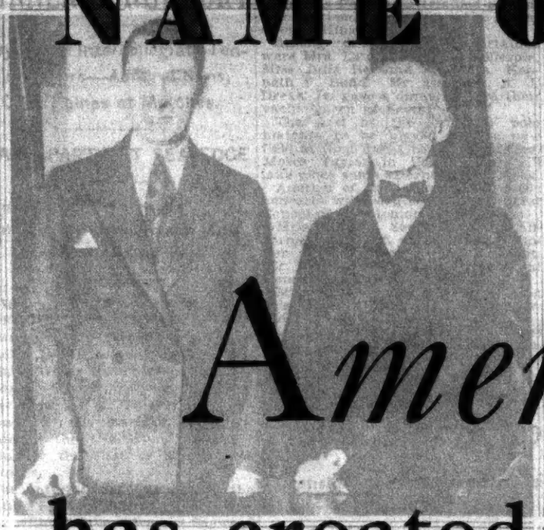
PORTLAND, Ore., July 18 (AP).—A robber who went to a theatre here last night to stage a show of his own was shot to death by policemen before he could escape with $4,000 which he had taken from the manager.

An usher saw the robber slip past the unguarded entrance, slug a checkroom boy, and then dash into the inner office where John C. Smith, theater manager, and two others were talking. The usher notified the police.

The robber, who, the police said, was intoxicated, forced Smith to give up $4,000 in the safe. As he turned to flee he was confronted by two policemen who returned his fire in a pitched battle.

Police said the only mark of identification found on the body was a hat and suit from a Denver, Col., clothing concern. The robber was about 31 years of age, well dressed, sandy complexioned and light haired.

THE NAME OF WALL STREET



American Wealth

has created a National Newspaper

. . . an unprecedented Advertising Medium

DESPITE the high average wealth of literate Americans, it is still a problem to advertise many commodities nationally . . . without buying considerable waste circulation.

It is surprisingly difficult to find media with a large number and a dependably high percentage of readers who can buy almost anything one has to sell.

Waste circulation offers a real problem because modern advertising runs into large figures, and many advertisers, to succeed, must find a high percentage of continually-full-purse-prospects. To find these, publications must be analyzed with the proper solvent. The test of editorial content must be applied . . . editorial treatment is not sufficient.

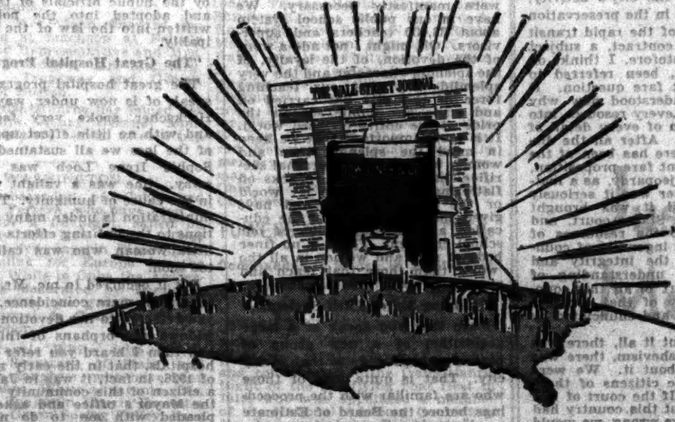
Take The Wall Street Journal. This newspaper, on the face of it, restricts its appeal to those who buy securities because they have substantial means. . . or to those who market investment securities. Its circulation is national, since it is the American financial daily . . a local paper to San Francisco as well as to New York.

A *Southern investment firm recently circularized 5,120 of their customers to determine the logical national media for their 1929-30 advertising. They requested each one to indicate which of twelve publications he read. (The twelve were general media selected for their national and quality circulations.) The response (19%) showed the greatest number of their clients reading The Wall Street Journal. 34% (324) scored The Wall Street Journal; 23% (219) scored the next national publication.

The advertiser further employed these returns to analyze advertising costs. The Wall Street Journal stood lowest and was indexed 1; the next publication figured 2.8 times more costly; the eleventh publication, 11.4 times more costly.

The Wall Street Journal is indisputably the national financial authority of this country. Its circulation . . . now exceeding 45,000 copies daily, and daily growing . . . hardly represents one fifth of its actual cover-to-cover daily readers. Its subscribers pay at least $18 a year to get this newspaper; hundreds pay from $90 to $300 a year to receive it by air mail.

The Wall Street Journal may not reach every desirable prospect in this country but it does, without doubt, reach more full-purse buyers . . . in more business centers . . . at far less cost . . . than any other single American publication.



* Caldwell & Company, one of the South's leading investment firms. Queries were sent to customers in all territories in which the firm sells securities. Offices are in Nashville (home office), Memphis, Chattanooga, Knoxville, Jackson, Birmingham, Dallas, Houston, Jacksonville, Tampa, New Orleans, Louisville, St. Louis, Cincinnati, Chicago, New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Buffalo and Syracuse. WALKER TO RUN, ASKS 'WHO CAN SAY NO?'

scher read another article telling of the Mayor's settlement of the prospective subway strike in 1927, when, Mr. Heckscher said, he had saved business men of the city millions of dollars.

"I do not wish to dwell at too great a length upon your personal achievements," said the chairman, "but you will forgive me for what I have already alluded to, because in the minds of my fellow-committeemen and myself they are important in that they indicate in the one case a world opinion of you, sir, and in the other case you demonstrate to the people of the City of New York that we had a Mayor on the job who could be depended upon to sit into the councils of serious industrial dispute and emerge therefrom with the highest honors.

"Mr. Mayor, your friends—and they are legion, far and near—have been disturbed of late by the report that after four years of brilliant effort in the service of the City of New York, you may prefer to accept one of the many attractive business offers which have been made to you and retire to private life. It would, in our judgment, be nothing short of a calamity to compel the electorate at this time to seek a new leader. Magnificent improvements are under way and in contemplation. You know what these improvements are, and the people of New York know them well. However, as a business man, there are some outstanding improvements that, to my mind, call for enumeration at this time."

Cites Forty Projects.

Mr. Heckscher enumerated forty different items executed or conceived by the Walker Administration. He cited "a $300,000,000 city-owned subway program, a subway program executed with shovels and not words." He cited a $600,000,000 public school program, millions spent for parks, playground development, hospitalization, prison reform, the West Side improvement, the West Side express highway, the tri-borough bridge, municipal housing support, sound city financial structure, aid to commerce. "I stand here on behalf of your friends," said the chairman, "without regard to party affiliation, to urge that you permit us to endorse and work for your re-election, and I thus fulfil ithe pleasantest, and as I believe, the most fruitful act of a long life."

To this plea Mr. Van Amringe added his, in which he said that "the great industrial enterprises forming this committee have come here to ask you to accept a renomination."

"We believe," said Mr. Van Amringe, "that an organization which has functioned so well and effectively should be continued in office." The present Mayor, he said, had all the qualities needed for an incumbent of that high office, and added: "Mr. Mayor, we feel such an abiding faith in your work for the city that we hope you will continue to carry on your shoulders this difficult burden."

Mayor Reviews Work.

There were three long cheers for Mr. Walker when he stepped before the microphones to give his reply. He opened by saying he was greatly affected by the action of the committee. Then he turned to some of the items mentioned by Mr. Heckscher as accomplishments of the administration.

He spoke about the $300,000,000 subway program and revealed that he had more to offer in the nature of a new $600,000,000 transit plan which would be announced soon. He told of the fight for the five-cent fare which was carried to the Supreme Court. He recited the pride of the administration in the operation of its public school system, in the development of parks and playgrounds and hospitals. He spoke of his personal gratification in the culmination of plans for the removal of tracks from Twelfth Avenue because of his own boyhood memories of death to children in the neighborhood.

There were many other items in the record of the administration he would like to review, said the Mayor, but it would be a tax on the patience of his audience. He called his task as Mayor a wonderful adventure. To critics of an allegedly high budget he had this to say, that it would not make any difference to him if the budget mounted fifty or a hundred millions. His measure of the budget was supplying the needs and demands of the people of the city.

He referred feelingly to the memory of his father, who, he said, a little more than sixty years ago had come in through Castle Garden as an immigrant and now his son was Mayor of the greatest city in the world. Did he intend to seek to remain so? The request of the committee came in a happy sequence to the pleas of political leaders to run again. To these cumulative urgings, concluded the Mayor, who could say no?

LISTS WALKER'S FEATS.

Heckscher Credits Forty Achievements to His Administration.

1. A $300,000,000 city-owned subway program. A subway program executed with shovels and not words.
2. A public school program of $600,000,000 of construction, including high and elementary schools.
3. A new group of buildings for Hunter College, under way.
4. A large new commercial school for City College, nearly completed.
5. The largest acquisition of new group parks in the history of any city.
6. Millions spent for the improvement of parks and the development of new parks' system.
7. Your administration has provided an additional, large number of playgrounds. Old schools obtained large playgrounds and new schools are constructed with large playgrounds. School athletic centres constructed. Park playgrounds added and improved.
8. The greatest hospital program in the history of any municipality is now under way. Some buildings are completed and others are in the course of construction.
9. Prison reforms made. New correctional buildings have been constructed, and others are now under way, including the Women's House of Detention.
10. The west side improvement, involving the elimination of Death Avenue, has been solved; the railroad will start work shortly.
11. The library systems have been improved by the construction of new library buildings and other new buildings are now being constructed.
12. Coney Island Boardwalk extended to Brighton Beach.
13. A large part of the Bayside Boardwalk has been constructed.
14. The new elevated express highway along Twelfth Avenue is under way.
15. Funds provided and new buildings are being constructed for the American Museum of Natural History and plans are being prepared and work will start this Fall on a new wing for the Metropolitan Museum of Art, so that the city may be able to accept and house many priceless art treasures which have been offered to it.
16. New court houses have been constructed or are under way.
17. New highways constructed in Queens. New arterial highways widened throughout the city and roadways improved, including those leading to new bridges in Richmond.
18. The new Tri-borough Bridge has been approved, funds provided and initial construction work will start this Fall.
19. New roadway on Queensboro Bridge being constructed.
20. Funds provided for a new roadway on Manhattan Bridge.
21. New armories have been and are being constructed; included in the armory program is a new administration building for the 369th Regiment.
22. Funds have been provided and engineering surveys are being made for the new tunnel between Brooklyn and Staten Island.
23. The first municipal housing program in New York City is now under way by the approval of the Christie and Forsyth Streets project.
24. Commerce has been encouraged by the construction of new piers, and by the Mayor's gallant fight to maintain the supremacy of the Port of New York.
25. A new municipal airport costing $5,000,000 is well under way.
26. The most comprehensive grade crossing program in the history of New York is now under way.
27. Street cleaning equipment has been modernized and new refuse destructors installed.
28. Police force increased by 3,000 additional men and immensely improved in morale; police activity in welfare work extended and greatly improved; crime prevention methods adopted; traffic control system expanded; new station houses constructed or under way, and special police privileges abolished.
29. Fire Department forces increased; new fire houses constructed; fire alarm system extended and apparatus modernized.
30. The city's financial structure is on the soundest basis.
31. Through courage and sagacity you have maintained the validity of the subway contract.
32. The city's charitable activities have been increased, particularly in the care of orphans, and $3,000,000 has been wisely expended for child welfare and widows' pensions.
33. Hospitals have been consolidated into one department, eliminating duplication, and functioning more economically and efficiently.
34. To conserve property values in Fifth Avenue and adjacent streets a new retail district has been established.
35. Activities of the Health Department have been expanded and improved. Infant mortality is the lowest in the city's history.
36. New ferryboats for Staten Island and Queensboro have been constructed.
37. Extension of and general improvement of water supply system, including development of Long Island watershed.
38. New water tunnel costing $64,000,000 to give Catskill water to Brooklyn and Queens.
39. Initial steps and commencement of work on a new water supply system to cost $350,000,000.
40. Other improvements may be noted, including provision for the new Bronx County Building, the construction of plants for sewage disposal to eliminate harbor pollution, the construction of the Sunrise Highway, additional arterial highways and many other public improvements too numerous to mention.

COMMISSION INVITES LIEN LAW SUGGESTIONS

The State Legislative Commission for the Revision of the Lien Laws met yesterday at the Bar Association Building, 42 West Forty-fourth Street, and mapped out its course of procedure for subsequent hearings. Senator George R. Fearon of Syracuse, the chairman, adjourned the hearing subject to his call.

At the next hearing tentative drafts of a questionnaire designed to show the problems of the building industry from the viewpoint of different interests will be submitted, discussed and probably redrafted for distribution among leading institutions, title and insurance companies, building owners and contractors, mortgage bond houses, property owners' associations and other real estate organizations. The commission invited suggestions.

In opening the hearing, Senator Fearon said that the commission was concerned not only with supplying the deficiencies of the lien bill submitted at the last session of the Legislature but with a comprehensive study of the entire lien situation.

Former Senator Frank Wiswall, representing the Association for Revision of the New York State Lien Law, expressed the hope that the commission's study would result in a statute, "remedial, but not oppressive."

YELLOW BIRD FLIERS HONOR YANCEY TODAY

Trio Will Escort Pathfinder From Paris to Cherbourg for Departure for New York.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, July 18.—The two American flyers, Roger Q. Williams and L. A. Yancey, who flew from Old Orchard, Me., to Rome, decided today to cut short their stay abroad and will sail with their plane, the Pathfinder, tomorrow from Cherbourg on the United States liner Republic. They had intended to visit England before returning to the United States, but abruptly changed their minds on the receipt last night of a cabled invitation from Joseph Sheedy, president of the United States Lines, to travel home on the Republic as guests of the American Steamship Company.

Williams and Yancey arrived in Paris from Rome late yesterday. They went to the Hotel Lotti last night, where they were guests of Armand Lotti, one of the three French heroes of the Yellow Bird's flight from Old Orchid to Comillas, Spain. The Pathfinder darted thirty miles from Comillas a few weeks after the Yellow Bird came down there.

Tomorrow morning Williams and Yancey will fly in the Pathfinder from Le Bourget to Cherbourg with Hugh Robinson, director of the Paris office of the United States Lines, as a passenger. Mr. Robinson has known Yancey many years. Jean Assollant, Rene Le Fevre and M. Lotti, the Yellow Bird trio, will escort them in another plane as far as the French port to bid their American friends bon voyage.

"We had such a wonderful reception and treatment in Italy," Yancey explained, "that we would like to show our appreciation by not accepting entertainment elsewhere in Europe. We also feel it would not be quite right to impose on the hospitality of other countries as our flight was intended to be only an Italian-American affair. Ambassador Fletcher in Rome shares our opinion and, in fact, advised us to hurry home."

The two airmen visited the American Embassy this morning and then called at the French Air Ministry to receive the congratulations of Laurent Eynac. They laid a wreath on the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier under the Arch de Triumphe this afternoon.

Captain Yancey and Roger Q. Williams will receive a public reception from the city when they arrive here next week on the Republic, Mayor Walker said yesterday. The Mayor expressed pleasure that they were coming to New York. Definite plans for their reception have not been made, but all doubt that there would be one vanished when the Mayor said "Well, they made it, didn't they?"

Text of Mayor Walker's Speech Announcing He Will Run Again

Following is the text of Mayor Walker's reply to the request of the committee of 652 citizens that he accept renomination:

Mr. Heckscher, Mr. Amringe, Ladies and Gentlemen:

Never have I in all my experience found quite the same difficulty in telling people just how very happy they have made me. It does not seem so long ago since the first of January, 1926, and yet there are times when through my mind so many things travel it seems more years than four. Yet, throughout all those experiences, no matter whatsoever they may have been, whether they were pleasant or unpleasant, this meeting which you have proposed and effected today, the words spoken by Mr. Heckscher and Mr. Amringe have brought me the fullest compensation that I have ever known over anything in all my life.

Yet, why not? If you and I are to understand each other a little better, why not a citizens' committee? In the early months of 1926, with some regard and some knowledge of the administration and the affairs of the city of New York for some years before that, I made it a point to invite the various civic and business organizations throughout the city of New York to take an active part in the formulation of policies and in the decisions of the public affairs of this city.

I met with a fine response. Organizations, it is quite true, who were not very familiar, not very well known in the City Hall, found it agreeable, in fact, found it pleasant to visit here to give the administrators of the public affairs of this city the benefit of their advice and their experience. I would like upon this occasion to pay a public debt of gratitude that I feel to such organizations as the Merchants Association, the Fifth Avenue Association, the Eighth Avenue Association, the Chambers of Commerce, the community centres, even my friend whom I am very pleased to see here today, Mr. Stewart Browne, for the advice and cooperation that we have received, which has been invaluable to the administration.

Building of City-Owned Subways

May I not say to you at this very moment, determined to free my mind of any advanced thought, that after listening to Mr. Heckscher's speech, hearing Mr. Van Amringe's observations, there are quite so many things in my mind that I have difficulty in deciding upon just which I should wish to speak to you for the moment. I am rather attracted by the manuscript of memoranda to which Mr. Heckscher referred. Might I ask for that? May I have a copy? There are some things that I have forgotten myself that are here.

You speak of the $300,000,000 city-owned subway. That $300,000,000 has practically been contracted for and was the result, you will very probably remember, of constant discussion as to excepting from the constitutional borrowing capacity of the city, three hundred billions of dollars for the purpose of building a new subway. That $300,000,000 has been contracted for, and contracted for, my friends, as quietly, and with as much dignity as was humanly possible, not exploiting or hippodroming the construction of the city subways, but as was promised some four years ago, to say it rather with shovels than with words.

Yet $300,000,000 of subway construction which was necessary in this city to relieve the already overcongested existing subway, and yet with the finishing of the $300,000,000 program, the work will just be started, for there will be beyond the $300,000,000, a program enunciated before very long that will require the expenditure of not another $300,000,000, but another $600,000,000 for the relief of the traffic congestion of the transportation system throughout this city. These subways must be built. It has become well established that the very topography of the city of New York requires them for those who must go to work and at the end of the day find their way home and must of necessity be long riding. Nothing will satisfy that but rapid transit routes, the best and the safest and the most expeditious known throughout the civilized world.

The Five-Cent Fare Decision.

I might say something to you of another observation which I heard below here, of the city's activity, of its campaign in the preservation of the validity of the rapid transit or the subway contract, a subject which has heretofore, I think, on some occasions, been referred to as the five-cent fare question. It is generally understood now why the city put its every resource into the preservation of every detail of those contracts. After all the discussion that there has been of the so-called five-cent fare proposition, never was it in jeopardy, as a matter of fact, never was it seriously challenged until it was brought into the United States court, and there, thanks to the resources of the city and the ingenuity of counsel, thanks to the integrity and the superiative understanding of the highest court in all this country, the validity of that contract was maintained and enunciated by that court.

Yet, throughout it all, there was no effort at Bolshevism, there was no demagogy about it. We were intense, patriotic citizens of these United States. If the court of last resort throughout this country had said that we were wrong, we would have been wrong, but we would have been Americans.

Perhaps it would not be amiss at this time if I should indulge for just one moment in a word about the basis and the history of the five-cent fare. It was not an arbitrary sum picked out for the fare throughout this city, but it had a more important purpose. It was written into the contract as a standard fare that would always obtain, so that a scientific, a comfortable distribution of population might be made throughout this city.

Implied Contract With Citizens.

It was the asurrance given to those who were living in the congested districts that if they would move out into the open spaces, if they would build themselves homes, or lease apartments, where the sun shined was a little warmer, and where the surrounding facilities were more conducive to raising children, they could get to work and get home for the same car fare that they would have to spend if they only went five or ten blocks. It was for the uniformity of the thing to build up the city and, as I say, for the distribution of population that would bring people out into the boroughs that now are greater in population than was the Borough of Manhattan when the first subway contract was written.

I find here that you refer to a public school program of $600,000,000. There is nothing that I have had more interest in, nothing that is more important that I know of in the maintenance and building of this city than the advances that have been made and must be made in our public school system.

My dear friends, the greatest mass education known in the history of mankind is being carried on in our public school system in this city today. I have said to you before, or some of you, that, with approximately 1,200,000 children attending our free, common public schools, if all the parents and all the grown-ups and all the children under school age and all those who attend private or sectorial schools—in fact, everybody—were to leave town and none remain but the children who attend our public schools, this still would be the fourth largest city in the United States of America.

And yet it is a matter of satisfaction beyond my ability to express what it means to have had the privilege of making some contribution to the further building up of this great system. For years we have heard the cry "A seat for every child." That, too, was a determination in the mind of the present Mayor of this city, and, in keeping with not only that desire but determination, it is a matter and a source of great personal satisfaction for me as the presiding officer of the present Board of Estimate and Apportionment to say to you that since the first of January, 1926, up to and including the program of 1929, already adopted—in other words, for the schools already constructed, under contract or about to be contracted for, for which money has been provided—there will be added to the school system of this city 208,000 additional seats.

What does that mean? That means in the elementary and junior high schools we have added more seats than the entire school population of Boston and St. Louis. We have added to the academic and the junior high schools about 7½ per cent of the entire school population of Detroit, and I think 64 per cent of the entire school population of Philadelphia. In the high schools we have added more seats in this program than there are in the combined seats of St. Louis, Boston, Philadelphia and Chicago.

And yet what does this all spell? Certainly not a political activity. It is not, in my opinion, to be measured by the money expended, because that is not quite as important as meeting the demands and the necessity and fulfilling the constitutional obligation of the Empire State, which was assigned or transferred to the city of New York with the creation of the Department of Education, to fulfill that constitutional mandate to give every child in this city an opportunity to secure a common school education under the very best, under the most splendid circumstances known to education throughout the world.

Must Give Any One a Thrill.

And that, I feel, is something that no one could quite be so cold or blasé as to resist—the natural constitutional thrill that comes with a mere reference to the figures and what it will mean for posterity, what it will mean for the City of New York and the State of New York and the United States, what it will mean for the industry and the commerce, the business generally, upon the intelligence and the character-building that is found in the public schools, that all in all will make a glorious contribution not only to political New York, not only to commercial New York, not only to America, the furtherance of its patriotism and its institutions, but will be in the last analysis a splendid contribution to civilization itself.

I was reluctant to ask you for this list, because I find that the subjects, some of which we hear right in this very room, have labored with, have worked with intensely, given what we had, and always will—there were times when it was not so easy, had its attendant difficulties, but with the culmination, like the breaking through of the sun, one of necessity must know the exultation that comes with accomplishment and contributions to people themselves.

I see that you have referred to the new group of buildings for Hunter College, which, of course, were manifestly necessary. We have in our public school system about 33,000 teachers and supervisors. Oh, might I not add a word of the devotion, of the loyalty, of the splendid character and the very splendid way that our teaching force of this city has carried on and made our public schools the pride of the entire civilized world. It is more important that we keep in mind the splendid men and women who, at great personal sacrifice, have turned their backs on flattering offers in the lay world or the business world and have given themselves over to the education and the protection of our school children. There is no finer body of men and women in all the world than those that teach and supervise in our public schools.

Building Up of Park System.

I see that you speak of a large acquisition of a new group of parks, perhaps more so than in any city. That is quite true of those who are familiar with the proceedings before the Board of Estimate and Apportionment. They perhaps have some appreciation today, as I heard Mr. Heckscher refer to that subject of just how the presiding officer of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment must feel. Having been born on Manhattan Island, and having lived there all my life, and in the most congested part of it, where there lived as playmates and neighbors children whom we might very well call tenement house Cinderellas, who never saw a blade of grass because of the absence of foresight in the old days, except for the making of Central Park, that certainly left Manhattan Island sadly devoid of open space and parks and recreation space.

Our brother borough to the north was not so unfortunate, because there perhaps the finest chain of parks throughout the world is to be found—in the Borough of the Bronx today—but to the vision and the foresight of those who laid them out in contrast with the absence of vision of those who were responsible for the making of parks in the Borough of Manhattan. The day has gone for any additional parks in the Borough of Manhattan, because the values of property have become so great that now the price would, of necessity, be prohibitive for the construction or making of any further parks, but it was in the mind of this administration—determined to do something, that it would do something for posterity, and while yet the financial resources of the city were such that provision might be made for the future, there have been added to the park system of this city during the last four years and there are under negotiation at present by the Controller of the City of New York, very nearly 2,000 acres of additional park space.

Looking to the Long Future.

The Hillside, the I-Pond, the Alley Pond extension, the Crooks Point, the Loriet and the Wolf's Pond sites on Staten Island will make certain that when Queens and Staten Island, as they are both distinguished today, shall become congested boroughs, there will have been provided in these four years the comfort and the health advantages that will come from open spaces and park places, where, no matter how grave the congestion will be, the parks will remain there inviolate beyond the jurisdiction of any public official to ever alienate them for any other purpose.

And so I find not only that but the very practice of previously negotiating for the purchase of these properties made it possible in the very first instance of the Hillside Park and Downshead in Brooklyn and Alley Pond to purchase for four and one-half millions of dollars by private negotiations under the auspices of the Controller of this city, property that, if acquired under condemnation, would have cost this city at least $15,000,000; and so it is, not only has there been behind that activity the entire Board of Estimate to have new and additional splendid park lands, but there was coupled with that the business acumen, the business experience that not only did we get park lands for posterity, but saved for the present taxpayers a sum of from ten to fifteen millions of dollars.

There were already provided last year and this year—remember, my dear friends, I should not neglect to say to you that these activities which this administration has indulged in were not due alone to the profound judgment of the public officers, not because the engineers were so ingenious, but rather because this Board of Estimate and Apportionment will give to its citizens representing any group, and their color, their race and their politics make no difference in the reception and hearing they get at this board.

And it was due to the civic pride that influenced and encouraged so many civic organizations throughout this city that these programs were made a fact; not alone, I want you to understand, by the activities of the public officials, but rather because of the cooperation that we had from citizen bodies who, at great expense to themselves in time and money, propounded plans, the value and the virtue of which was readily seen by the public officials of this city and adopted into the policy or written into the law of the municipality.

"The Great Hospital Program."

The great hospital program you speak of is now under way. Mr. Heckscher spoke very feelingly, and with no little effect upon me, of the loss we all sustained when Sophie Irene Loeb was called away. She was a valiant worker in the cause of humanity. This administration is under many obligations to the untiring efforts of that little woman who was called all too soon.

But it occurred to me, Mr. Heckscher, by mere coincidence, while you referred to her devotion to the widows and orphans of this city, and then I heard you refer to the hospitals, that in the early months of 1926, in fact, it was in January, a citizen of this community visited the Mayor's office and asked me, pleaded with me to do nothing until he had visited Bellevue Hospital and particularly the Psychopathic Pavilion.

The Mayor of the City of New York went with that man. As I say, by mere coincidence that man was stricken in a hospital today. His interest was tremendous in hospitals. His interest in Bellevue and the Psychopathic Pavilion, with an understanding of the necessity of the wards of the city, was truly tremendous. That gentleman, my dear friends, is your fellow-citizen and mine, Mr. William Fox, who yesterday met with a terrible accident.

But with Mr. Fox I went to Bellevue, flight after flight up through the Psychopathic Pavilion, found a building that was 105 years old and was shown the municipal records indicating that for forty years there have been violations of the fire laws visited upon that building. It was pronounced as a matter of fact a fire-trap for the last forty years, and there that building was permitted to remain; and climbing floor after floor, I saw these wards, helpless, hopeless, lying cot one on top of the other almost, it wards through which not a ray of sunshine ever pierced from one end of the year to the other, thrown about without the necessary attendants, where men had been incarcerated and others confined for observation, observation that was impossible, and I quote none less than that most famous and distinguished psychiatrist, Dr. Gregory—he said that it was impossible to observe, to diagnose the mental difficulties of those who were kept in this place.

Determined Upon Reform.

And so it was, leaving there, I determined that not a day, not a moment should be lost when the elimination of that Psychopathic Pavilion should be effected, and in its place, as is now under construction, the finest Psychopathic Pavilion known throughout the world, adjoining Bellevue Hospital on the Twenty-ninth Street side, where the wards of this city stricken as they are with the loss of their faculties at least will be kept in decency, at least will be kept in cleanliness, at least will be kept in a manner that will maintain the respect of the metropolis and not make a public official bow his head and blush in shame for the way that these poor unfortunates have been maintained for the last forty years.

And find great personal satisfaction in the new wing of Bellevue Hospital, which will be an ornament of the city. There will be no finer hospital. And the Kings County Hospital, a $6,000,000 proposition—that will be finished, I hope, within the next two years. It is on with the Morris Senior Hospital.

This is not a political movement. There is nothing partisan in you and I cooperating for the care of the unfortunate and the sick of this community, no matter what your politics nor mine, no matter what your race nor mine, nor the place of your birth, though you were not born in this city, as it was; yet there is the same keen interest in your heart of hearts for the maintenance of the sick of this city as one born in the city could possibly have, and so we march on cooperating, private citizen and public official.

We are at a point now where we can look with pride on a program where we will have the finest hospital system throughout the world, especially since the consolidation of all the hospitals under one department, where heretofore they were spread over three departments, and where there was no uniformity of practice nor maintenance in this city until the Department of Hospitals was made. I find no little pride, my fellow-citizens, in Mr. Heckscher's reference to the accomplishments that have been ours in the hospitals of this city.

The West Side Improvement.

I would like to discuss and take advantage of this opportunity, sort of in compensation for those who have had so much confidence and have been so very complimentary to present themselves here today, but rather give you the justification for your presence here today and the brief that you present.

I see, right following that, that you have referred to the west side improvement, involving the elimination of Death Avenue, and that the railroad will start to work shortly. I was born two and one-half blocks from Death Avenue on the Island of Manhattan, and I know for more than forty years there was an agitation, a very definite and certain agitation for the elimination of the death tracks along the riverfront of Manhattan Island.

In 1913 I introduced a bill in the Legislature while a member of the Assembly which had for its purpose the elimination of the tracks on Death Avenue. The bill empowered the City of New York to enter into a contract with the New York Central for that purpose. There was great satisfaction all along the west side of Manhattan with the passage of that bill, and the enactment into law of it, and yet all it did was to bring controversy and debate, and every year that succeeded found the same controversy renewed, perhaps with greater emphasis, but surely renewed or continued.

Since 1912 to 1916, after fourteen years, I found myself as Chief Magistrate of this city with some power at least to write into accomplishment the words that I had written into a legislative bill fourteen years before. And so it was again, striving this determination of all exploitation, with no semblance of himbodrome, we sat at this board day after day, inviting not only cooperation but criticism; but yet always within my heart there was a throb that I have never experienced before as each day we got closer to the agreement that would rid the street of these railroad tracks.

What End of Death Avenue Means.

Perhaps no other was intimately associated with it knew just that same thrill or throb, because I had known schoolmates, neighbors, when we were little—I had seen more than one crushed under the wheels on the railroad tracks as they went up and down on Death Avenue. Ah, there was something more than mechanics in it, there was something bigger than mere terms of penny for penny, there was life and limb, there was the protection that this municipality owes to every individual that lives within its confines.

And when we sat down to sign that contract there came into my life a satisfaction unlike or greater than which I have never known, because with the elimination of the Death Avenue tracks, though terribly belated, we made an answer to every tombstone that there would be no repetition of the untimely end that many a young boy came to because of the presence of those tracks; and yet, with all that, there will be or surely result from the elimination of the railroad crossings that grade along Death Avenue probably the greatest industrial or commercial improvement that the Borough of Manhattan or the City of New York has ever known.

And yet, not satisfied with the protection of life and limb, not satisfied with the industrial improvement and the commercial additions that would come from this improvement, this board determined to do something else to make Riverside Drive Park the most beautiful place in all the civilized world. And when you talk of Death Avenue, you couple humanity and humanitarianism, you couple business and commerce, and you make for the most beautiful spot that I ever hope to see. Truly, Mr. Heckscher, you did well to make a note of that notable accomplishment.

His Joy in Being Mayor.

I am afraid, notwithstanding the many interesting things that you have set out, that I have already taxed your patience, and perhaps I have overstepped even the courtesy that you extended. These are facts, but they do not answer your question. There are so many things that I might say to you so very frankly about the joy, about the great personal satisfaction that I have known being the Mayor of this city. I would like to be cold about it. I prefer to be restrained. May I not say to you again that it has been a wonderful adventure.

It has been a wonderful thing every day when I come into the City Hall, not for the enjoyment that I always find in the City Hall, not for the pleasure that it affords, but with a realization that this, after all, is the metropolis; in fact, as the Merchants' Association has laid it out, the metropolitan district, with a population of more than ten million people; a population as great as the entire State of New York; a population that is half a million more in excess than the entire population of the Dominion of Canada; a population that is half a million in excess of the combined population of the three largest European Continental cities, Berlin, Paris and Moscow; to know of the five hundred and more miles of river front; to know of its great activities that time will not permit, but which I would like to discuss with you, showing that even you and I have to stop and study to realize the scope of this city that we live in. And the greater it grows and the more important it becomes, the more I am compelled to reflect upon the most important thing in my career.

I told you before I may not be a statesman, I may not be called the distant, blasé type that perhaps a public servant should be, but I cannot get it out of my mind—and don't want to—but it was little more than sixty years ago that a little immigrant came to Castle Garden into this city, was given opportunities that he was denied in the land of his birth, and because of his integrity, because of his character and because of his industry he made it possible that, one generation removed, his son should be the Mayor of this, the greatest city in the world!

His Love for New York City.

This is a belated answer to those people—and because of that and the appreciation, the profound and constant appreciation, that I have of the opportunities that were offered to him and transferred to me, that I have, no matter how often the smile has beamed upon my face, down to my very heart of hearts, that I have a love for my city that is greater than anything that I know of, and to it I have given a devotion that with every effort I have tried to couple patience, good nature and courtesy.

The Mayor of the city of New York spent every energy and every effort on being courteous and kindly and has insisted upon the same thing from every employe of the city when coming in contact with its citizenship.

This is such a complimentary thing that it pertains to myself, and yet you make me very happy. Mr. Heckscher's observations that I might go elsewhere are quite true. But as I measure the budget, which grew to $538,000,000 beyond that which was the cost of the maintenance of the Federal Government twenty-five years ago, my notion of measuring the budget is not in its total of dollars and cents—I don't care what the budget gets to in price if it does not include something that is unnecessary—but my measure of the budget is supplying the needs and demands of the people of this city that will bring them greater convenience, greater health, greater comfort and better opportunities to work out an earthly existence.

If the budget of the city of New York has mounted fifty millions or one hundred millions, it would not make any difference to me, my fellow-citizens; we might understand each other, because it would simply mean that the demands of this city had to be met, and even though it might be great political propaganda to say "I have kept the budget down," if to bring it up it will bring convenience and service and comfort to the people, I would much prefer to bring it up than to bring it down and deny them the service and the comfort and the convenience.

There are projected improvements in this city now, including some public improvements, an expenditure of over $1,000,000,000 for the tri-borough bridge so badly needed, the Narrows Tunnel, the Midtown Tube, the $64,000,000 water extension, the probably $350,000,000 Delaware water extension, the erection of incinerators and refuse plants generally. The health and the comfort of those in this vast, growing city, greater in its growth than any man could possibly have dreamed fifty years ago, creates no obligation, in my judgment, to sit down and brood about it, to sit down and weep about it. It requires courage and good common sense to stand up and do the things that are necessary and to worry about the money afterward.

"Who Could Say No?"

But I say to you how much I appreciate this compliment. It does come in a sequence that is very attractive. The leaders of my party, from the county leaders down to the district leaders, have all upon some occasion said very frequently and very definitely to the present Mayor of the city of New York that he should stand for election again, which up to the moment I have not taken any action on, not even in the confidences that you would think we sometimes enjoy.

But, following in the wake of these suggestions, some of which amounted to appeals, comes this very splendid committee of my fellow-citizens, who, without regard to partisan politics, have presented themselves here in the City Hall today and, through the voice of my very dear friend, this very wonderful young man of eighty-odd years, who has spent his life in bettering the conditions of humanity in this city and elsewhere; who has devoted himself to the widows and orphans of this city; who has taken of his financial resources and made playgrounds, and done so very much for the preservation of child life throughout this city, and have him come, after his long life so splendidly spent, after his countless contributions to this city and this State and the country and humanity generally, and find surrounding him men who are leaders in every activity known to this city and have you say in your eloquent words that you, too, as well as my party leaders, want me to carry on, if it is the will of the people of this city, in this office of the Mayor of the city of New York for another four years, this is the answer: Who could say no?

KATHARINE BURNS WED AT CATHEDRAL

ELEANOR BARNES MARRIED

Miss Katharine Burns, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Raymond Burns of 38 West Fifty-ninth Street, was married to Eugene Lamb Richards 3d, son of Mrs. Eugene Lamb Richards and the late Mr. Richards, yesterday noon in the Lady Chapel of St. Patrick's Cathedral by the Rev. Martin J. Scott, S. J.

The bride, who was escorted by her father, wore a gown of ivory-colored satin made on simple lines, the long skirt terminating in a full circular train. Her veil of tulle was held in place with orange blossoms. She carried a prayer book and a garland of lilies of the valley and maiden-hair fern.

The bride's sisters, Mrs. John Moylan Hayes and Miss Mary Paul Burns, were her only attendants. They wore costumes of apricot-colored chiffon and white picture hats. Their bouquets were of white Summer flowers.

A small reception and a breakfast at Sherry's followed the ceremony.

Mr. Richards and his bride will sail tonight for Europe on the Pennland. On their return they will live at 400 East Fifty-eighth Street.

Miller—Barnes.

The marriage of Miss Eleanor Barnes, daughter of Mrs. T. Howard Barnes of Yonkers and the late Mr. Barnes, to Wyman Richardson Miller of this city, son of the late Dr. and Mrs. E. P. Miller of Boston, took place last night in the Chapel of St. Saviour of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Joseph Fort Newton of the Memorial Church of St. Paul, Philadelphia.

The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Harold S. Barnes. Miss Jean Huddleston was maid of honor. Dr. Richard Henry Miller was best man for his brother.

The ceremony was followed by a reception and a dinner in the Cherry Blossom Room of the Ritz-Carlton. Mr. Miller and his bride will sail on the Caronia on their wedding trip. On their return they will live at 26 West Ninth Street.

Shulman—Wolfson.

Miss Pauline Caryll Wolfson, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wolfson, was married to Joseph Louis Shulman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Max Shulman of Hartford, Conn., yesterday afternoon at the home of the bride's brother, Louis Charles Wolfson, 299 Riverside Drive, by the Rev. Dr. Israel Goldstein.

Miss Rose Wolfson, the bride's sister, was maid of honor, and Maurice Shulman was best man for his brother. There were no other attendants, and there was no reception.

After their wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Shulman will live in Hartford.

Horgan—Morrow.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 18.—Miss Edwina Haskell Morrow, daughter of Edwin P. Morrow, former Governor of Kentucky, and Mrs. Morrow, was married here this afternoon to Dr. Charles Joseph Horgan of Washington by the Rev. Charles T. Warner of St. Albans.

Only relatives were present at the ceremony. Among them were the American Minister to Panama and Mrs. John Glover South, the latter an aunt of the bride, who is a niece of former United States Senator William O. Bradley of Kentucky.

Dr. and Mrs. Horgan on their return Sept. 1 from their wedding trip will make their home in Washington.

Barrett—Farrell.

Special to The New York Times.

PORT CHESTER, N. Y., July 18.—Miss Elizabeth Farrell of 38 Riverdale Avenue, Port Chester, was married here to Grover J. Barrett, son of Mrs. Mary Baret of Greenwich, Conn., today, in the Church of Our Lady of Mercy by the Rev. Hugh Gilmartin. Only relatives were present, owing to the illness of the bride's mother, Mrs. Ellen Farrell.

Miss Helen Barrett, sister of the bridegroom, was maid of honor and Charles Nedley was best man.

SON BORN TO IRENE CASTLE.

Wife of Major McLaughlin and Second Child Doing Well.

CHICAGO, July 18 (AP).—Another child, this time a boy, has been born to Major and Mrs. Frederic McLaughlin. Mrs. McLaughlin is the former Irene Castle. Her husband is a prominent sportsman.

The son was born Tuesday night at Michael Reese Hospital. Yesterday the baby was placed in the hospital incubator and doctors said it had a good chance to grow and thrive. The condition of Mrs. McLaughlin was reported satisfactory.

ASTORS GIVE EXCURSION.

Hosts to Tenement Children and Mothers on a Boat Trip.

Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Astor were hosts to a large number of tenement children and their mothers from the Children's Aid Society, the Jones Memorial and the Sixth Street Health Centre on a boat excursion yesterday to the society's Summer health home in Bath Beach.

This is the third excursion in a series arranged by Mr. and Mrs. Astor. The fourth, for children living in congested districts on the west side, will be held next Thursday.

Paul V. Lundy Has a Son.

A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Paul V. Lundy of New Canaan, Conn., yesterday, at Miss Lippincott's Sanatorium. Mrs. Lundy before her marriage was Miss Louise Waddell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Montgomery Waddell of this city. The infant will be named for his father.

MISS EVELYN WEIL ENGAGED TO MARRY

Mrs. Richard Weil of 1,000 Park Avenue and Rye, N. Y., has announced the engagement of her daughter, Miss Evelyn Weil, to Ernald W. A. Richardson, son of Mrs. Ernald Richardson and the late Captain Richardson of Glanbrydan Park, Caermarthenshire, Wales. Miss Weil is a granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Isidor Straus and a niece of Jesse Isidor Straus, president of R. H. Macy & Co., Inc. Her father, Dr. Richard Weil, died in war service in Nov., 1917. Miss Weil was graduated from Miss Nightingale's School in 1926. Mr. Richardson was graduated from Christ Church, Oxford, in 1923.

The wedding will take place next month in Rye.

Urquhart—Drake.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard T. Urquhart of 220 West 107th Street have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Doris Louise Urquhart, to Orville Glen Drake of South Orange, N. J., son of Mrs. Harvey Drake of Cortland, Ind., and the late Mr. Drake.

Miss Urquhart was graduated from the Hamilton Institute for Girls in 1926. Mr. Drake is a graduate of Purdue University and a member of the firm of Moore, Leonard & Lynch.

Hornor—Clarke.

Announcement has been made by Mr. and Mrs. Harold Hornor of Mount Holly, N. J., of the engagement of their daughter, Miss Ruth Hornor, to Walter Vernon Clarke, son of Dr. and Mrs. Vernon A. Clarke of this city.

HAROLDINE HUMPHREYS QUITS STAGE TO WED

Miss Haroldine Humphreys, daughter of Mrs. Franklin B. Kirkbride of 840 Park Avenue and Darien, Conn., was married to Carl Muschenheim, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick A. Muschenheim of the Hotel Astor, yesterday in the chambers of Chief Justice Frederic Kernochan of the Court of Special Sessions, who performed the ceremony. The bride's mother and stepfather were at the ceremony, as were Mr. and Mrs. Muschenheim and the bridegroom's sister and brother, Miss Linda Muschenheim and William Muschenheim.

The couple have gone on a tour of the Adirondacks. On their return they will live in New York.

The bride, who fitted for college at the Brearley School and graduated from Bryn Mawr in 1923, has appeared on the stage in several productions. For some time she was understudy to Rosamond Pinchot in "The Miracle," and on April 15 1924, went through her first regular performance as the nun in that production. In May, 1926, she played the role of the Hon. Gwendolen Fairfax in the Actors' Theatre revival of Oscar Wilde's "The Importance of Being Earnest." More recently she has been in the Players' Club revival of "Becky Sharp," in which she played Lady Blanche.

The bride is a granddaughter of Mrs. Jawrie Bell and of the late Dr. Alexander C. Humphreys, who was president of Stevens Institute of Technology. It was said last night that she had renounced her stage career.

Mr. Muschenheim, whose father is proprietor of the Hotel Astor and a former president of the Hotel Association of New York City, is a medical student at Columbia. He has studied in Europe also and at Stevens and the California Institute of Technology.

Son to Archibald Douglas Jrs.

A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Archibald Douglas Jr. of 118 East Ninety-third Street yesterday, at the Harbor Hospital. Mrs. Douglas is the former Miss Constance Miller, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. James Alexander Miller.

TOWERS ON AIR COMMITTEE.

Commander Is Sworn in as Member of National Advisory Body.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 18.—Commander J. K. Towers, assistant chief of the Naval Bureau of Aeronautics and commander of the transatlantic flight of the NC flying boat fleet in 1919, who was appointed a member of the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics by President Hoover, was sworn in today. Rear Admiral William A. Moffatt, chief of the bureau, also is a member of the committee.

Since the war Commander Towers has held several important executive posts in naval aviation. He was assistant naval attaché for aviation at the American Embassy in London from 1923 to 1925, after his service soon after the war as assistant director of aviation in the Navy Department before organization of the Bureau of Aeronautics. He was one of the first three naval officers assigned to aviation in 1911.

NEWPORT, R. I., July 18.—Word reached Newport today of the birth in Paris of a daughter to Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Holmsen. Mrs. Holmsen was formerly Miss Mildred Tilton, daughter of Mrs. Herbert C. Pell, who is at her Summer home here.

Gives Dinner for Sven Hedin.

Mrs. Alice Foote MacDougall gave a dinner last night at the Pleiades, 20 West Forty-seventh Street, for Sir Sven Hedin, famous Swedish explorer. Miss Alma Hedin, sister of Sir Sven, was in the party. Afterward the hostess took her guests to the performance of "The Little Show."

RE-HEARING PROBABLE ON EXTENSION OF PIERS

Secretary Good Favorable to Walker's Request—Will Make Reply Soon.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 18.—Secretary Good announced today that he would probably grant the request of Mayor Walker of New York for a rehearing on the question of extending the New York harbor pierhead line into the Hudson River. In normal course the rehearing would be held before the Rivers and Harbors Board of the Army Engineer's Office.

Mr. Good said he would reply to Mayor Walker soon, but that he had not reached a definite decision yet, as he was studying the matter with Major Gen. Edgar Jadwin, chief of Army Engineers. He was not able to forecast the character that the rehearing would take, should it be granted, explaining that this would depend on the claims put forward by New York officials. He added, however, that he desired the city to have the fullest opportunity for presenting its side of the case.

The application for extending the pierhead line was recently denied by Secretary Good upon the recommendation of General Jadwin. The reason assigned was that the harbor is too narrow at present in view of the requirements of ocean liners. It was suggested that increased length of piers could be provided by digging slips inshore.

ALFONSO SAYS KINGS MUST DO WORK NOW

Spanish Monarch Explains Grasp of Industrial Life on Visit to British Coal Mine.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, July 18.—How it feels to be king was explained in some detail today by King Alfonso in an informal chat with the Mayor of Durham. The Spanish monarch had been down in a coal mine and the Mayor expressed surprise that he knew so much about the industrial side of life.

"The monarch of the old days lived in a beautiful palace with beautiful furniture and surroundings, but we are dressed in mufti nowadays," the King replied.

The Mayor remarked that it was extraordinary how much the Prince of Wales knew about the ordinary things of life, which he had noticed during the Prince's coal fields tour.

"Yes," Alfonso replied. "I have spoken to him on it and told him to go on. We are workers. I was born a monarch not because I choose it, but because I had to be and I must do my work as any other man does his job. We have troubles in Spain far worse than yours here, but troubles are meant only to be surmounted."

FIGHT HARRIMAN PROJECT.

Polish Cities and Industries Oppose Electrification Plan.

WARSAW, Poland July 18 (AP).—The project of the American Harriman interests for electrification of Polish industrial centres has met with considerable opposition. This developed at conferences here yesterday with government officials on the part of representatives of municipalities and of existing electric power and light companies.

Advocates of municipal ownership of the plants argued that if the Harriman scheme was put through it would take away much revenue from the cities and prevent reductions in taxes. Managers of existing plants maintained that the plan would prevent them from expanding their establishments, condemning the latter to a stand still policy.

Representatives of the American syndicate assured the present establishments that they would cooperate with them at every opportunity. They argued that the country would gain greatly from having electrification concentrated in a single organization.

After all the conferences the data will be studied by the Ministry of Public Works. A definite decision on the plan is not expected before Aug. 16.

MRS. THAW'S VICTORIA BRINGS $3 AT AUCTION

Old Coach Bought for Sentiment's Sake—Dealers Purchase Eight Paintings.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, July 18.—Eight of nineteen paintings offered today were purchased by dealers at the public auction of the treasures of the late Mrs. Mary Copley Thaw.

An ancient Victoria coach was bought by Mrs. John M. Phillips for $3, and she also bought an old brougham for $6. For sentiment's sake she will turn them over to the Brasheer Settlement for exhibition purposes. Before fame and wealth came to the late Dr. John A. Brashear he rode in the victoria and the brougham many times as a close friend of the late William and Mrs. Thaw.

Many women today avoided the jostling suffered yesterday by bringing along camp stools and luncheon. A painting owned by Harry K. Thaw was offered for sale, but no one made a bid.

The painting, "Canal in Venice," by Ruben-Santos, wasn't sold. The auctioneer had explained that the American Arts Association had submitted a bid of $400.

SEIZES WHEAT STORE OF EX-PRINCE CAROL

Rumanian District to Sell Crop for Non-Payment of $18,000 Taxes.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BUCHAREST, July 18.—Only a few days after Princess Ileana lodged an appeal against the inheritance tax levied by the State on a legacy, notice was given today that a judgment will be executed on property of Prince Carol for non-payment of taxes. In his case, as with his sister, the taxes were imposed on inherited property.

Authorities in the Ilfov district announce:

"On July 21 the goods and property of ex-Prince Carol will be sold at public auction by the director of taxes on account of non-payment of 295,943 lei (about $15,000). The sequestrated goods consist of 100,000 kilograms (about 220,000 pounds) of wheat from the harvest of 1928."

STORM AT TRAINING CAMP.

Drenches Students in Dress Parade at Fort Niagara.

Special to The New York Times.

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., July 18.—When the members of the Citizens' Military Training Camp at Fort Niagara were on dress parade late this afternoon, a thunderstorm swept down on the post from the west and drenched the students.

On Sunday the Irish regiment of Toronto will have a rifle team at the Citizens' Military Training Camp range to compete with the student marksmen. Officers of both commands will be photographed at post headquarters.

Tomorrow night the finals in the boxing contests will be held. After the track meet yesterday Company C defeated Company E, 11 to 5, in a handball game.

Asks Curb on Boat Speeders.

Special to The New York Times.

PATCHOGUE, L. I., July 18.—The village board received a petition today from Village Trustee George Overton, on behalf of others, to have one of the village policemen patrol the Patchogue River to curb the speed of motor boats, the wash of which is said to have caused damage to boats tied to docks.

THE KNICKERBOCKER TO BE TORN DOWN

OWNED BY THE GOELETS

Big Office Building Will Replace Playhouse Opened by Sir Henry Irving and Ellen Terry.

The Knickerbocker Theatre and office building, on the northeast corner of Thirty-ninth Street and Broadway, has been leased for a term of forty-four years by Robert Walton Goelet of Newport, R. I., to the Tanager Construction Corporation, of which Abraham J. Gevirtz of Mount Vernon, N. Y., is president.

In addition to the theatre, the lease involves the seven-story New York Telephone Company Building, at 115 West Thirty-eighth Street, and the twelve-story Knickerbocker Building, at 114-118 West Thirty-ninth Street. Purchase of the last-named property by Robert Walton Goelet was announced last year.

The combined realty fronts 98 feet on Broadway, 200 feet on Thirty-eighth Street and 75 feet on Thirty-ninth Street, forming an "L" around the Casino Theatre, at Broadway and Thirty-ninth Street.

A representative of the leasing interests said yesterday that announcement of the improvement would be made when certain matters concerning obtaining possession of the property had been adjusted.

It is understood, however, that a tall commercial structure will be erected on the site.

The Knickerbocker was built in 1893 for Henry E. Abbey and was originally known as the Abbey Theatre. It opened with Sir Henry Irving and Ellen Terry in Tennyson's "Becket." A few years later it passed into the hands of Alf Hayman and was renamed the Knickerbocker. Mme. Sarah Bernhardt, Coquelin, Mme. Rejane, Beerbohm Tree, John Hare, Mrs. Patrick Campbell and many other stars appeared there.

Many notable successes were produced at the Knickerbocker. Maude Adams there played Rostand's "L'Aiglon" and later his "Chantecler." It was long used by Sothern and Marlow in repertoire, and it was there that the original production of Hall Caine's "The Christian" was made. It has housed many popular musical comedies.

The lease was made at a reserved net rental. The term begins on July 1, 1929, and runs to April 30, 1973. Mr. Goelet's wife, Anne Marie, joins in executing the lease to indicate that she is bound as a party lessor.

PEGGY WOOD MAKES HIT IN 'BITTER SWEET'

Premiere of Noel Coward's Operetta Delights a London Audience.

Special to The New York Times.

LONDON, July 18.—Noel Coward scored a hit at His Majesty's Theatre tonight with the new operetta "Bitter Sweet," in which Peggy Wood contributed largely to the success by her impersonation of the Marchioness of Shayne in the leading rôle. Mr. Coward debates such questions as, "Are the young really more venturesome than parents?" and, "Has ½azz killed romance?"

Lady Shayne finds her young friend in the arms of the pianist of a jazz band at a party on the eve of the friend's wedding after a quarrel with her fiancé. The audience is taken back fifty years while Lady Shayne describes her own love affairs in Vienna and London, when she becomes a prima donna.

Peggy Wood contributed delightfully to a highly colored entertainment, which the audience greatly appreciated, according to The Times.

Miss Wood has been heard here in many musical plays and dramas. She was in the company with the late John Drew on his last tour. She is the wife of John V. A. Weaver, the writer.

The Daily News Critic says: "Mr. Coward has been lucky in his leading lady, Peggy Wood. She has charm, naturalness and personal distinction and sings remarkably well. If only American film stars in the talkies had such beautiful speaking voices—one seldom hears English as well spoken—we should be very happy."

WIDE SCREEN FILM SHOWN.

Paramount Device Makes Figures Seem More Lifelike.

Paramount gave a demonstration in the Rivoli Theatre yesterday of motion picture projection on a wide screen with Magnafilm, the invention of Lorenzo De Riccio.

The screen was 40 by 20 feet and the images occupied almost the entire proscenium. The figures were life-like and seemed to move about with greater freedom than within the confines of an ordinary silver screen of 17 by 13 feet. The three-dimensional quality claimed for the device was not apparent as in pictures viewed through the stereoscope.

The film used is fifty-six millimeters wide in contrast to the usual celluloid frame which is thirty-five millimeters. The extra-width film can be used in a regular projection machine by the attachment of a "head" or special lens that is fastened to the front of the projector in a few moments. With this Paramount hopes to show its films on the enlarged screen in its houses throughout the country within the next six months. It was said yesterday that the regular wide screens would be installed in a Broadway theatre shortly.

The Magnafilm device is said to be the first of its kind that is commercially practical, since it does not require the installation of special machines for projection. A special camera is necessary to photograph the scenes.

LONDON ZIEGFELD THEATRE

Producer Plans to Open New House on Nov. 30 With "Rio Rita."

Florenz Ziegfeld yesterday announced the completion of negotiations for the building of the new Ziegfeld Theatre in London, which will open, according to Mr. Ziegfeld's schedule, on Nov. 30 with "Rio Rita." The plans for the construction of the theatre are virtually those which were announced in The New York Times on Jan. 15 of this year.

Joseph F. Bickerton Jr., representing Mr. Ziegfeld in the negotiations for the building of the theatre, will return to London in a few weeks to supervise building activities. Edwin A. Stone, the London architect, who designed the Piccadilly Theatre, will have charge of construction. According to present plans, the theatre, which will be located at Greek and Compton Streets, across from Soho Square, will seat 1,700 people and will have a stage 40 feet deep.

ERLANGER TO JOIN GEORGE C. TYLER

They Announce Plans for Six Plays to Be Produced in Partnership This Fall.

NEW WORK FOR MRS. FISKE

She Will Also Be Seen in Repertory —Dwight Taylor's Drama Will Be Given.

A. L. Erlanger and George C. Tyler, who have frequently been associated in the production of individual plays, announce that they have formed a definite partnership for the coming season, and that they will make a long list of productions. Six plays are named in the first announcement, with the promise of more to come.

Mrs. Fiske will be seen in a play by Fred Ballard, author of "Young America," "Believe Me, Xantippe" and others. The new piece bears the tentative tile of "The Mixed Jury," and is scheduled to open at the Avon Theatre, formerly the Klaw, on Oct. 14. It will previously be seen in Baltimore and Atlantic City. After her appearance in this play Mrs. Fiske will be seen in a repertoire of plays new and old, both in New York and on tour.

A play entitled "House Party," written by Kenneth Phillips Britten and Roy Hargrave, will open in Great Neck on August 31, and is due at the Knickerbocker Theatre on Sept. 25, after a Philadelphia engagement. The principal rôle will be played by one of the authors, Mr. Hargrave, and the cast will also include Anne Sutherland, Harriet MacGibbon, and Penelope Hubbard. Harry Wagstaff Gribble will direct.

A play written by Philip Dunning, senior author of "Broadway," will open in Pittsburgh on Sept. 30, and is scheduled to come to the Liberty Theatre on Oct. 7. It is entitled "Sweet Land of Liberty."

Also on the list are "Trevelyn's Ghost," a play by Dwight Taylor, son of Laurette Taylor, to be produced in October, and "The Rosebush of a Thousand Years," a dramatization by Catherine Chisholm Cushing of a story of the same name by Mabel Wagnalls. This is also scheduled for October.

"Your Uncle Dudley," the Chicago run of which was interrupted after three performances by Raymond Hitchcock's illness, will resume in the same city early in September.

Some time during the Autumn, also, there will be a play in which H. B. Warner will have the principal rôle. Mr. Warner has been appearing in recent seasons in the films.

Wireless to The New York Times.

LONDON, July 18.—The engagement of Jean Forbes-Robertson, actress, who scored a success in "Peter Pan," to James Hamilton, a prominent London oarsman, was announced today, and a quiet wedding has been arranged for Aug. 31. The betrothal has been rumored for a long time. They became acquainted about a year ago, when Mr. Hamilton attended Miss Forbes-Robertson's play. She watched last Summer his prowess at Henley, where the Thames crew, of which he was stroke, won.

Sir Johnston Forbes-Robertson, commenting on his daughter's engagement, said:

"Jean will not leave the stage. She couldn't give up her art when nearing the apex of her accomplishment. She will be Peter Pan again next Winter."

PEGGY MASTBAUM ENGAGED

Daughter of Late Jules Mastbaum to Wed Representative Golder.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, July 18.—The engagement of Miss Peggy Mastbaum, daughter of the late Jules Mastbaum, owner of a motion picture theatre chain, and Representative Benjamin M. Golder was announced today. The marriage will take place in the Fall.

Miss Mastbaum, with her mother and two sisters, will sail on Saturday on the Bremen. It is expected that the ceremony will be performed shortly after her return to this country.

J. E. Mastbaum of Philadelphia Also Had Large Realty Holdings.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, July 18.—An estate of $5,565,073.84, exclusive of large realty holdings in this and other cities, was left by Jules E. Mastbaum, motion picture theatre owner, real estate broker and philanthropist, who died Dec. 7, 1926.

Tax appraisal returns filed by the executors with the State Inheritance Tax Department here were made public today. The returns show that $68,529 has been paid by the estate to date in direct State taxes on the personal estate.

In addition to the personalty of $3,558,073.84, the estate includes $2,007,000 in life insurance. This, however, is not taxable because of the agreement made by Mr. Mastbaum and the life insurance company for the distribution of the principal.

The bulk of the estate was bequeathed to the widow and three daughters.

PRODUCER ASKS $100,000.

Charges Play "Chuckles" Was Plagiarized in a Movie-Tone.

Suit was filed yesterday in Federal court by counsel for Chuckles, Inc., owner of the copyright of the play "Chuckles," against Paul McCullough, Bobby Clark and the Fox Film Corporation, who are charged with having plagiarized the play in the movietone picture "The Bath Between."

"Chuckles" was written by Paul McCullough in 1919, the complaint asserts, and the rights eventually passed to George M. Kingsley and H. Clay Minor, who organized the plaintiff corporation and copyrighted "Chuckles" on Dec. 12, 1923. The defendants are charged with having appropriated "Chuckles" in the characters, dialogues, dramatic situations and sequence in "The Bath Between." An accounting and $100,000 damages are asked for.

FAST TRIPS FOR SERUM SAVE BOY BIT BY SNAKE

SOMERVILLE, N. J., July 18.—To the New Jersey State police in the person of Corporal Russell Hurden, who knows how to average seventy miles an hour steadily either in an automobile or on a motorcycle, Paul J. Herman, 10 years old, owes his life today.

The boy was bitten yesterday evening by a copperhead. It took a wild night of riding by Corporal Hurden to bring him all the antitoxin that physicians needed to combat the venom from the reptile. The trooper had sped to Trenton, Lambertville and Philadelphia before his quest of the serum was concluded.

The boy was bitten while playing in a barn behind his home on the Pluckemin Road, near Somerville. Unaware that he had been struck by the snake, he could not at first account for the pain in his arm and physicians in the Somerset County Hospital, to which he was removed, were delayed in diagnosing the swelling. Meanwhile an elder brother killed the snake in the barn and identified it as poisonous by the illustrations in a Boy Scout book.

Thereupon Dr. Charles Lawton telephoned from the hospital, which had no supply of the anti-venom serum, to the State Board of Health and the State police. Corporal Hurden was dispatched from the Police Training School at Wilburtha with orders to get serum wherever it could be found.

Arrangements were made with a druggist at Lambertville who had the nearest available supply and the policeman raced his motorcycle the seventeen miles to Washington Corners in sixteen minutes. There he was met by a messenger with one tube of the serum, which was the entire Lambertville supply.

Hurden covered the thirty-eight miles to Somerville in thirty-two minutes, but Dr. Lawton told him that more of the serum would be needed. While the first tube was being administered the corporal rushed back to Lambertville, where the druggist had been arranging for an additional supply in Philadelphia.

Discarding his motorcycle, Hurden drove an automobile at its highest speed to Philadelphia, where he received four more tubes of serum at the H. K. Mulford Company. Leaving that city at 2:30 A. M., he arrived at Somerset Hospital at 3:36, making the seventy-eight miles in sixty-six minutes. Dr. Lawton at once gave the stricken boy another injection of the serum and just after daylight announced that he was almost sure to recover.

Corporal Hurden drove at a lazy twenty miles an hour back to Wilburtha to report that his orders had been carried out.

COHAN TO TAKE PART IN HIS OWN NEW PLAY

'Gambling,' First Written by Him in the Mystery Field, Is Expected Here on Aug. 26.

George M. Cohan, who has frequently jumped into the casts of his own plays on short notice, will play the principal part in "Gambling," which he will bring to the Fulton on Aug. 26. "Gambling," which marks Mr. Cohan's entry as author into the field of mystery plays, has already been performed in Philadelphia. The author was not in the cast at that time.

The play will be tried out again in Atlantic City on Aug. 12, and will then be seen for a week at Werba's Brooklyn Theatre.

In addition to Mr. Cohan, the cast will include Mary Philips, Robert Middlemass, Isabel Baring, Harold Healy and Edward F. Nannery.

'TEMPERANCE TOWN' AUG. 19

Morganstern and Short Also Plan "Her Friend the King."

"A Temperance Town," Morganstern and Short's revised version of the Charles Hoyt satire, will open in New York on Aug. 19 with a cast including Carlton Macy, Charles Williams, Wynne Gibson, Conrad Cantzen and Joe Dailey. Try-out engagements will open at Werba's Jamaica Theatre on Aug. 5 and in Newark on Aug. 12.

Another production by the same firm, "Her Friend the King," with William Faversham, will go into rehearsal on Aug. 18 under the direction of F. Gatenby Bell. It is planned to open in Wilmington on Sept. 12 and arrive in New York on Sept. 30.

OPERA SINGER FOR TALKIES.

Don Jose Mojica, Chicago Tenor, Signs With Fox Films.

CHICAGO, July 18 (AP).—The talkies have invaded opera. Don José Mojica, tenor, of the Chicago Civic Opera Company and of the Ravinia Opera Company, has signed a three-year contract with the Fox Film Corporation to appear in the speakies in stellar singing rôles.

While the monetary consideration involved was not made public, it is understood to exceed half a million dollars.

The contract is so arranged that Mojica's duties on the screen will not interfere with his opera or concert work.

Lew Cantor Completes List.

Lew Cantor's list of productions for next season, several of which have been previously announced, now numbers eight plays and is said by the producer to be complete. "Soldiers and Women," by Paul Hervey Fox and George Tilton, will open the season for Mr. Cantor at the Ritz on Sept. 2. Seven other productions announced by Mr. Cantor are "Mendel, Inc.," by David Freedman; "Good Intentions," by Lois Howell, and "Viola Dodd; "Lovebound," by Thomas Fallon, previously tried out; "Romantic," by Harriet Menken; "The Yellow Glove," by Karl De Bakonyi; "Miss Innocence," by Harry Delf, and "The Wooden Soldier," by Alexander Carr.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

When Mr. Ziegfeld's "Whoopee" reopens on Aug. 5 at the New Amsterdam Theatre the company will have been recostituted, the scenery repainted and special lighting effects introduced.

PINCHOT CAPTURES GIANT SEA BAT

Former Governor, on Scientific Cruise in Galapagos, Takes Unusual Specimen.

TWO LAND IGUANAS FOUND

Special Cable to The New York Times.

BALBOA, July 18.—After a month's cruise around the Galapagos Islands, in the Pacific, the yacht Mary Pinchot, owned by Gifford Pinchot, former Governor of Pennsylvania, in which he, Mrs. Pinchot, their son and a party of scientists are making a 15,000-mile pleasure and scientific voyage, arrived at Balboa last night. While here, the yacht goes into dry-dock for inspection and necessary repairs and the scientific specimens that have already been collected will be shipped to the United States.

The expedition was successful in capturing a huge sea bat of the genus Manta, which was one of the main objects of the cruise.

"We are not sure that the specimen we caught in the same one that was seen by Dr. William Beebe in the waters off the Galapagos Islands," explained Mr. Pinchot. "It measures more than fifteen feet across the wings and it is different from any of the others I have captured or seen described."

White markings on a black back were one of the distinguishing features of the bat seen by Dr. Beebe—the specimen taken by the Pinchot party has a black belly with white spots.

The Pinchot sea bat will be sent to the National Museum at Washington for a definite classification.

Four giant Galapagos land tortoise were captured, one of them weighing 137 pound. It was discovered on Duncan Island and is probably of a species believed to be extinct. Two of the tortoises, including the Duncan Island find, also will be shipped to the National Museum at Washington, and two to the Zoological Gardens in Philadelphia.

Two large land iguanas, described in Dr. Beebe's book "Galapagos: World's End," were captured but no attempt was made to take marine iguanas for they seldom survive shipment.

"Brothers" Not to Close.

"Brothers," which had been announced to close tomorrow night at the Forty-eighth Street Theatre after a run of more than six months, will continue there indefinitely, its producer said last night. It was said Bert Lytell had succeeded in deferring a motion picture contract which, it had been thought, would cause him to leave the cast.

Loughran Beats Braddock and Keeps Title — Giants Stop Pirates; Robins Lose

VICTOR TAKES 13 ROUNDS

Announces After Contest He Will No Longer Defend the 175-Pound Crown.

DEVOS DEFEATED BY SHADE

Semi-Final Produces an Upset When Belgian Loses—Grove Outpoints Ebbets.

By JAMES P. DAWSON.

Tommy Loughran last night made his farewell appearance as light-heavyweight champion, one of his greatest exhibitions of boxing ability. The quiet, popular Philadelphian retained his title against the ambitious, rugged James J. Braddock, Jersey City youngster, in a fifteen-round match at the Yankee Stadium.

In so doing he left no room for doubt as to his overwhelming superiority over the youthful challenger and proved himself one of the most consummately clever boxers ever to hold a ring title. After the match Loughran announced that it was his last defense of the 175-pound championship.

"It's my last as champion; the weight's too tough," he gasped, as his admirers congratulated him for a truly wonderful exhibition. He retires undefeated as light-heavyweight champion, to take a long-sought fling at the heavyweights.

Loughran made his last defense of the title in the interest of charity. He faced Braddock in a fifteen-round encounter which was the feature of a card arranged in the interest of the $1,000,000 hospital fund for the Home of The Daughters of Jacob. The bout was witnessed by about 25,000, including Mayors Walker of New York, Hague of Jersey City and Mackay of Philadelphia. The throng, it is estimated, paid $120,000.

The expense for the show amounted to approximately $96,000, giving the Home of the Daughters of Jacob a sum of about $24,000 to share with the Madison Square Garden Corporation, which helped stage the card.

As Loughran left the ring, the crowd cheered him to a man for the demonstration of boxing perfection he had just completed.

Result Never in Doubt.

Loughran received the decision when the final bell clanged, getting an award which was long fore shadowed. Judges George Kelly and George Patrick collaborated with Referee Eddie Forbes in rendering the verdict, and they voted unanimously. No other vote was possible under the circumstances after Loughran, like the master boxer he is, had subjected Braddock to a boxing lesson that was thorough and convincing.

Quite aside from the margin on points enjoyed by Loughran at the finish the battle long will be remembered for its cleanness and the absence of objectionable features. For in the fifteen rounds, Referee Forbes found occasion only twice to touch the principals as a command to separate from a clinch.

Loughran won by the margin of thirteen rounds to two. He entered the ring a favorite at odds of 13 to 5 and triumphed like a favorite held at 10 to 1, for Braddock, seven the first and in the fourteenth rounds seldom had a chance. Even in those two rounds he won by no great margin.

But it was more in the manner he won rather than in the cold victory that Loughran was impressive, for he did about everything a light-hitting boxer can do to a rival in the specified space of time allotted. Loughran was tired at the final bell, more weary than was Braddock, who had youth and less usage in the ring in his favor. The champion was marked, too, from contact with Braddock's occasional punches. But he looked every inch the champion.

Perhaps the wear and tear and stress of battle, the climax to long, intensive, grinding weeks of preparation, were uppermost in Loughran's mind when he unqualifiedly announced his retirement from the light-heavyweight class. Commissioner William Muldoon of the State Athletic Commission subscribes to this belief, and Loughran, in his dressing room later, repeated his announcement.

Too Experienced for Braddock.

Describing the battle is quite simple—more simple than is usually the case in ring affairs. In a word Loughran knew too much for the youngster facing him and the expected deterioration in the titleholder was conspicuous by its absence. On the contrary Loughran was better than he was in his last defense of the title. He was such an improvement over the Loughran who retained his title against Mickey Walker in Madison Square Garden a year ago as to leave no room for comparison.

Loughran's cuts on the left eye and on the top of the head were sustained in head-on collisions which occurred in the first round and in the seventh session. The first round, which Braddock won because he charged recklessly against a rival who was feeling his way, ended with Loughran half blinded from a cut over the left eye. And the collision in the seventh gave him the gash on the head.

But in each emergency Loughran kept his head and motioned instructions to have his handlers ready to apply lotions to stanch the flow of blood immediately he reached his corner.

Braddock's reckless style nonplussed Loughran in the first round. Against it the champion was troubled for the time being and while Loughran delayed getting his tantalizing left jab in working order, Braddock was thrilling the crowd and drawing the cheers with a determined, business-like style of battle.

Several times Braddock grazed Loughran's jaw with sweeping rights and it seemed that the predictions that the youngster would knock out the champion might be realized.

But Loughran must have known he was master of such a situation and that Braddock's opening flurry was merely the ambitious effort of an unschooled youngster. For, with the second round and right on through the battle until the fourteenth, Loughran gave Braddock a boxing lesson. He stabbed, stabbed and stabbed with his left, he hooked with his left, charged or retreated; he parried Braddock's blows or caught them in mid-air. And as he stabbed with his left Loughran would occasionally cross a right to the head or to the body.

Braddock floundered all over the ring in this treatment but it can never be said that the Jersey youngster gave up. His determination undoubtedly weakened. Late in the fifth round Braddock thrilled the crowd when he drove a solid right to the jaw and a right to the heart, but the bell ended the round and what little possibility Braddock had of following his advantage. Early in the sixth session Braddock grazed the jaw with a wild right but Loughran was unhurt and unscared, though respectful, and danced away from danger.

The real thrill of the fight came in the seventh when Loughran, who was expected by many at the beginning to be the victim of a knockout blow, came perilously near being the deliverer. He shot a left to the body, a left hook to the head and then crashed home a right solidly to the jaw under which Braddock's knees buckled and there came a roar from the crowd. But though he tried his hardest Loughran could not complete the fall of his rival.

By the time the eleventh round was reached Braddock was at that stage of unhappiness where he was trying to talk Loughran into a slugging exchange such as Braddock would have welcomed. By the twelfth round Braddock was raging mad and daring Loughran to fight and in the thirteenth the crowd was jeering as the challenger floundered about the ring, helpless before the superb work of the highly skilled champion.

In the fourteenth Braddock sensing that his foe was weary, heeded the entreaties of his handlers and waded in recklessly, desperately. He pounded the body with both hands and twice grazed the jaw with his right, forcing Loughran to clinch. And always Braddock dared Loughran in vain to discard his wonderful boxing.

Shade Outpoints DeVos.

In the ten-round semi-final which followed the main event Dave Shade, California middleweight, won the decision over Rene DeVos, Belgian, giving the crowd which remained a startling upset. It was the third meeting of the rivals and in two previous contests DeVos was victorious. Last night, however, Shade's bobbing, weaving style proved too great a problem for the Belgian and Shade was entitled to the award. This setback undoubtedly will affect DeVos's standing as the foremost challenger for the middleweight title. Each weighed 159½ pounds.

Izzy Grove, Bronx, weighing 153½ pounds, won the decision from Harry Ebbets, Freeport, 159 pounds, in their ten-round bout. Buddy Howard, New Haven's ex-amateur, knocked out Charlie (Red) Boyette of the east side in the second round of their scheduled six-round bout and in the opening bout of four rounds Joe Barlow, Boston heavyweight, won the decision over Frank Cawley of Pittston, Pa.

STORY OF THE BATTLE TOLD ROUND BY ROUND

Braddock and Loughran entered the ring together and a ringside section of Philadelphia rooters started singing, while the boys' band of St. Monica's C. C. of Philadelphia struck up a lively air to welcome the champion.

Joe Gould was Braddock's chief second, and Joe Smith was chief second for Loughran. It was announced that Loughran weighed 174 pounds and Braddock 170.

First Round.

Sixth Round.

Braddock came out crouched and they went into a clinch. Braddock hooked a left to the head but missed a right to the jaw. Braddock got past Loughran's left jabs with a grazing right to the jaw. Dancing to the centre of the ring, Loughran started pumping his left to Braddock's face and had Braddock missing. Backed to the ropes, Loughran ducked under a right to the jaw and came out hooking his left to the face and driving his right to the head. Loughran's left jab made Braddock miss a left hook and a left hook opened a cut over Braddock's right eye. Braddock drove a right to the head and Loughran came right back with a left and right to the jaw. As Braddock rushed in Loughran ripped a right uppercut to the chin.

Seventh Round.

Loughran stabbed his left to the face and had Braddock missing. Loughran pulled away or stepped inside of Braddock's left hooks. Loughran dug a left to the body and hooked a left to jaw and followed with a terrific right to the jaw which made Braddock's knees bend. Loughran was wide and short with two lefts for the jaw, in another head-on collision Loughran got a butt on the head. Loughran kept jabbing his left and Braddock missed with lefts and rights. Loughran put left and right to the head. Backed to a corner, Loughran blocked Braddock's left and right to the jaw. Braddock drove a right to heart and Loughran was jabbing his left to the head at the bell.

Eighth Round.

Ninth Round.

They exchanged left hooks to the head and they clinched. Loughran blocked a left to the body and uppercut a right to the chin in close. Braddock put both hands to the body and they clinched. They exchanged rights to the head and then Braddock rushed Loughran to the ropes driving both hands to the body. Loughran kept putting his left to Braddock's face and Braddock drove a right to the head. Loughran put a left to the body but missed a right for the jaw. Loughran's left hook almost knocked Braddock off balance. Braddock drove a hard right under the heart and they clinched. Braddock missed a right to the jaw as Loughran backed to the ropes. Loughran put a left to the body and face at the bell.

Tenth Round.

Braddock came out swinging both arms for the body and they clinched. Braddock continued to walk in and drilled lefts and rights to Loughran's body while Loughran clinched. Braddock missed a right for the jaw and Loughran put two straight lefts to the face. Braddock put a left to the body and Loughran a right to the chin. Loughran again uppercut a left to the face and drove a left to the face. Again Loughran uppercut a right to the face. As Braddock came in a moment later Loughran landed another tight uppercut and blocked Braddock's blows for the body. Loughran hooked a solid left to the body and a left to the face. As Braddock missed a right for the jaw Loughran drove a right to the face. Braddock walked in swinging wildly, but his blows were blocked.

Eleventh Round.

Loughran's left jab made Braddock miss two lefts for the body. Braddock came in against a left jab and butt left and right to the body as they went close. Braddock put a right to the heart. Loughran sent Braddock's head back with a sharp right uppercut. Loughran sparred his rival with lefts and rights to the face. Braddock was becoming annoyed and in his desperation was more helpless than ever. Braddock put a hard right to the heart and Loughran crossed a right to the jaw. Loughran beat his rival to a right to the jaw and blocked Braddock's left hook to the jaw and Loughran drove a right to the jaw and Loughran ripped a right to the face. Loughran repeatedly jabbed his left to face and was warned for a low left to the body.

Twelfth Round.

RAIN KEEPS YANKS AND INDIANS APART

Postponed First Game of Series to Be Played as Part of Double-Header Today.

PROSPECTS HINGE ON RUTH

Babe Undergoes Treatment for Muscle Injury to Leg—Johnson Rejoins Hugmen.

By WILLIAM E. BRANDT.

Special to The New York Times.

CLEVELAND, July 18.—A busy week-end to close the Yankees' second Western trip of the year was assured when rain fell most of today. The heavy downpour made baseball impossible, and the last series of the Yanks' current trip will commence with a doubleheader tomorrow.

Cleveland is the only stop with any unfinished business held over from the Yanks' first Western trip. A double-header was already set for Sunday, so the ensuing three days schedule the Yanks for five games here.

If the Babe is in action, the Yankee prospects are bright, for in Detroit the batting order functioned in true Yankee fashion, after George Uhle was out of the way. Ruth spent the day nursing his injured left leg. He made a trip to the ball park to give his muscle kink a long diathermic treatment under the supervision of Doc Weisman, the Indians' trainer.

"I'll be in there tomorrow," he said; "that is, I expect to start the double-header unless I have a relapse."

Doc Woods, the Yanks' trainer, has been laid low with an attack of lumbago.

Everybody else is well. Henry Johnson, whose back has kept him out of action for the past five weeks, joined the Yanks today. At suppertime Herb Pennock had not yet checked in. If Herb arrives and feels fit he will share the pitching in tomorrow's doubleheader with Zachary. Sherid is Pennock's alternate.

The Yanks have won fifteen out of their last nineteen games, and have no reason to moan very loudly, but the moral effect of their ten-inning defeat in Detroit Wednesday cut them deeper than any other game they have lost for a month.

WHITE SOX WIN IN TENTH.

Beat Red Sox, 2-1, When 2 Hits, 2 Passes Bring Deciding Run.

CHICAGO, July 18 (AP).—Red Faber limited the Red Sox to five hits in ten innings today and the White Sox won the opener of the series, 2 to 1. It was Faber's eighth victory of the season.

Chicago scored the winning run in the tenth when Metzler and Reynolds singled, Shires was purposely passed and Danny MacFayden passed Kamm, forcing Metzler across the plate. MacFayden issued five walks, but was otherwise effective in the pinches. Faber struck out eight Red Sox.

ATHLETICS TRIUMPH AND INCREASE LEAD

Conquer the Tigers by 8 to 4 to Gain Half a Game Over the Idle Yankees.

WALBERG REGAINS HIS FORM

Philadelphia Hurler Never in Danger, but Eases in Ninth When Detroit Scores Thrice.

DETROIT, July 18 (AP).—George Walberg regained his cunning today and the Athletics stopped the Tigers by 8 to 4 in the first game of the series. The Mackmen increased their lead to eight and one-half games as the Yankees were idle. George Uhle went the route for Detroit, yielding seventeen hits. Uhle was handicapped by five Detroit errors, but the Athletics hit in enough runs to win.

Walberg eased a bit in the ninth, and the Tigers got three runs, which they probably would have failed to score had not the Macks been indifferent to the advancing of runners.

PIRATES SUBDUED BY HUBBELL, 4 TO 1

Southpaw Ace Yields Only Six Singles as Giants Attack Brame in Early Innings.

LOSERS BLANKED UNTIL 9TH

McGrawmen Tally Pair in 2d and Follow With Two More in 3d—Cohen's Triple Starts Scoring.

By JOHN DREBINGER.

The front-running Pirates and the back-pedaling Giants clashed in the opening encounter of a four-game series at the Polo Grounds yesterday and at once produced a result that was entirely out of keeping with the form chart, but wholly satisfactory to John McGraw and his well-wishers in New York.

The Giants won, 4 to 1, reduced the distance between themselves and the league leaders to a matter of six games, and altogether displayed such decided superiority over the supposedly all-powerful Pirates as to send 10,000 spectators home wondering whether there really is something radically wrong with the standing of the clubs. It is ever so when the sun shines after a lot of rain and fog.

The Giants certainly did come out of the fog which had enveloped them the past few days with a glittering display of their talents that literally bewildered the enemy. Behind a magnificent piece of hurling by the left-handed Carl Hubbell the young men of McGraw sent two sharp thrusts into Ervin Brame, Donnie Bush's starting pitcher, and virtually had the issue decided inside of three innings.

Pirates Never Have Chance.

So far as the Pirates were concerned, it simply was a case of Hubbell, Hubbell, nothing but trouble. The slender, somber southpaw never gave them a chance to get started. He held them to six singles, gave them only one pass, and had a shutout in hand up to the ninth, when Paul Waner, after getting the Pirates' sixth single, was permitted to gallop unmolested around to third, from where he scored on an infield out. Up to then only three Pirates had advanced as far as second and none had reached third.

The Giant offensive, dormant for seventy-two hours, sprang to life in the second inning with Terry punching a single to left. Andy Cohen followed with a lusty triple to right centre, Jackson contributed a sacrifice fly and the Giants had scored two runs, exactly twice the number they been able to register in their last two games against the Cardinals.

Came another pair of tallies in the third and the final decision could well have been rendered right there. Fullis drew a pass, Leach singled, Lindstrom sacrificed the two along and after Britt had fouled out Terry stepped in again, sent a screeching single to left and Fullis and Leach scored standing up, while the Pirates went down for the last time.

Play Not Impressive.

It seems they all can look bad when they are in there taking a beating. At least, there certainly was nothing imposing or impressive about the play of the Pirates as Ringmaster Hubbell made them jump through the hoop for nine rounds.

However, Pittsburgh, as appears to be the case with all the contending teams in the league, is struggling along below full war strength. It should be different when Pie Traynor returns to the line-up, and Pie is due to come back today.

LONG BEACH, L. I., July 18.—By coming home in 34, one stroke under par figures, sandy-haired Jack Forrester, North Berwick Scot who still retains a typical burr, took the lead in the annual metropolitan open championship which started over the Lido links today.

That 34, one stroke below any one else in the field was able to muster, gave him a score of 70 for the first eighteen holes of the 1929 event, which was begun under auspicious weather conditions quite foreign to the links built on the shores of the Atlantic Ocean.

Today was a great one for the members of the old guard of golf, for while some of the young bloods were suffering and struggling to get around Lido in respectable figures the veterans were cutting great capers. Long Jim Barnes, the conspicuous clover-chewing Cornishman, and Mike Brady finished right on Forrester's heels, each with 71s.

After them came Gene Sarazen and Leo Diegel, each with 72, equaling par, and then Wild Bill Mehlhorn and young Henry Ciuci with 73s and the long-hitting Craig Wood with a 74.

With eight scores of 74 or better even in a field as classy as this one is, Lido doesn't seem to be quite Lido, for in its original state a few years ago, when the course was wild and rugged and when every day was a windy day, there was no such scoring as occurred here today.

Wind a Help to Players.

Not only has the course been toned down to suit the whims of those who hate the sight of a niblick, but the ground is baked hard at present, and the wind that blew off the ocean today was almost as much a help as a hindrance. It was dead behind on the first, second, tenth and eleventh holes and not strong enough to prevent the more robust hitters from getting home or practically home on the sixth and the eighteenth. It grew stronger as the day wore on, but by then most of the stars had finished their rounds and were reposing in the clubhouse.

Only one in the field did better than 36 on the first nine, but several did that well. The exception was Diegel, who, banging away at birdies on several of the outgoing holes, came to the ninth with par for a 34 and missed a short putt for a 35. The first hole Leo went over par on was the fifteenth, where he drove far to the left, almost into the rough, tried to get home with an iron and failed, taking a 5.

After that he finished 3, 6, 5, driving into the rough on the seventeenth, trying to get distance by using a spoon, and having to play his next out of the rough also. He was bunkered on the next shot, came out close enough to hole, but missed. A bunkered drive was responsible for the 5 on the eighteenth.

However, when Leo finished his round it was generally believed that he would be the leader until Sarazen came along with a tying score, which it took a hard-fighting finish to get. Then Brady and Barnes came in with their 71s and after them Forrester with his 70.

When Jack reached the turn in 36 no one gave much heed to it, for many others were quite as good for that half. None of them, however, produced the 34 coming in that he produced in spite of a 5 on the finishing hole, where he drove into a bunker.

Out to Collect Birdies.

Forrester, whose game is ingrained and for whom winds hold no terrors since he got so accustomed to playing in them in his early days in Scotland, holed a six-foot putt for a birdie on the tenth, just missed putts for birdies on the next three holes, dropping one of five or six yards' length for a birdie 2 on the thirteenth, got pars on the next three and came up to the eighteenth with a 4 for a 69, which would have broken the competitive course record held jointly by Macdonald Smith and Bobby Jones.

There, however, in his attempt to get on to the plateau with the wind blowing stiffly, he drove into the gully and finished with a 5 for a 70.

Brady, who won the metropolitan open title at the Engineers Club in 1926 and who failed to qualify for the national open when it was played over his home course a few weeks ago, was even pars for the first six holes, but took a 6 on the seventh, where he three-putted the green, and had two more pars for a 36 out. He had another three-putt green at the short fourteenth, got a 4 on the fifteenth and finished 2, 7, 3 for a 35 in.

On the seventeenth, which required two prodigious raps to clear the cross bunker when he came to play it, his drive was on top of a hill and his third shot in the bunker. He was home on the eighteenth with a midiron for his second, however, six feet from the pin and down in one putt for a birdie 3.

Barnes Starts With a 5.

Barnes began his round by taking a 5 on the first hole, offsetting it with a birdie 3 on the fifth, where he was four feet from the pin on his approach. On the edge of the sixth green in two shots, Long Jim got down in two putts for his 4, produced a great birdie 4 on the seventh after being in a bunker off the tee and had a 4 left for a 35 when he stood on the ninth tee. He went over the green on his approach, though, and took a 5. Starting back with three par holes, the lank Cornishman produced two birdies, then wasted a stroke on the fifteenth and, following pars on the sixteenth and seventeenth, needed only a 4 for a 70 to tie Forrester. But, like the man he was after, he took a 5, which made him 35 on the nine and 71 on the round.

Sarazen had a highly spectacular round, consisting mostly of 5s and 2s. Gene and his driver were not on the friendliest terms today, and it was the estrangement between them that almost cost the little Fresh Meadow pro his chance to camp where he is—neither first nor last, but nicely in between. He began his round by misjudging his second shots to both the first two holes, using an extra stroke on each one, got one back by holing a fifteen-foot putt for a birdie 2 on the third, made his 4 on the channel hole and, after holing another putt for a 2 on the eighth, had a par 4 left for a 35, only to take a 5.

Then, after going over the green on his second shot to the punch bowl twelfth and taking three putts for the loss of a stroke to par on the thirteenth, he looked as if he was thoroughly disgusted with the world in general and himself in particular. However, a fine second shot to the fifteenth set him back in the right mental frame of mind, and a great shot and the holing of another fifteen footer for a birdie 2 on the Redan hole seemed to drench the fire of rage smoldering within him, for he fought hard for his 5 and 4 to give him his 72.

Sarazen Gets Long Drive.

After hitting a tremendous drive into the wind on the seventeenth he hooked the next one into the rough, but put his third on the green and got down in two p from a considerable distance away from the hole. He hooked his next drive into the gully, used his head in playing out safe, put the next one on the green, several yards short of the hole, and bagged the putt for his 4.

Both Ciuci and Mehlhorn played steadily for what they got, the former putting none too well for his own satisfaction and the latter running into a bad lie that cost him a 6 on the channel hole. Out in 36 he had a 4 left for a 72, but took a 5 owing to three putts on the last green. Wood was not playing any too well but saved himself by his putting.

A new metropolitan open champion will be crowned Saturday for Tommy Armour, Edinburgh Scot, who won the title at Shackamaxon last year, failed to show up for the tournament, although he was entered. No reason was given for his failure to defend his title but it was assumed that since his new club, Tam O'Shanter, in Detroit, is just opening and as he intends to play in the Canadian open next week he could not spare the time.

LANMAN'S 69 WINS SHENECOSSETT PLAY

Clips Three Strokes Off Par to Win Medal in Annual Invitation Tourney.

6 AHEAD OF NEAREST RIVAL

Moffett Is Runner-Up With 75—Marston in Triple Tie for Third With 77.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW LONDON, Conn., July 18.—W. K. Lanman of Scioto, former Yale golf captain, clipped three strokes off par over the exacting course of the Shenecossett Country Club today and posted a rousing 69, that won the qualifying medal in the tenth annual Shenecossett invitation.

Lanman's 69 was an even half-dozen shots better than his nearest rival, R. A. Moffett of Maidstone, who brought in a 75. On a day that saw only seventeen of a field of close to 200 players getting under 80 and only two of these better than 77, Lanman's cracking 69 was outstanding.

The one-time leader of the Eli Club fingers missed par or better on only one hole, the fourteenth, where he needed a five.

Max Marston of Merion, former national amateur champion and twice winner of the Shenecossett invitation, qualified in a triple tie for third place. Marston had 77, as did Barry Ryan of Baltusrol and Jimmy Lewis of Shorehaven.

3 FAVORITES LOSE IN RYE GOLF TOURNEY

Mrs. Federman, Medalist, Mrs. Hucknall, Mrs. Jackson Bow in Third Round.

MISS HICKS VICTORIOUS

Mrs. Martelle, Miss Brooks and Mrs. Reymond Other Winners at Westchester C. C.

By LINCOLN A. WERDEN.

Special to The New York Times.

RYE, N. Y., July 18.—The ease with which the favorites have been advancing in the first women's invitation tourney at the Westchester Country Club came to an abrupt end today in the third round. Mrs. Lea Federman, the medalist, who a few weeks ago won the Buffalo invitation tourney, was eliminated, while Mrs. Thomas Hucknall, the Connecticut State titleholder, met defeat, and the former national champion, Mrs. H. Arnold Jackson of Greenwich also lost.

The only match that actually ran somewhat true to expectation was the one in which Miss Helen Hicks, the 18-year-old Long Island champion, won, but even she surprised by the wide margin, 8 and 7, with which she disposed of Miss Lillian Holland of Sunset Hills.

Mrs. Martelle Gets Birdie.

It was Mrs. H. A. Martelle of Hartford, Conn., who was responsible for the defeat of Mrs. Federman, and she scored by 1 up at the home green after winning three holes on the second nine and halving the other six. Mrs. Federman's lead of 2 up over the outgoing half gradually slipped away. First she lost the tenth, then at the fifteenth Mrs. Martelle pitched to eighteen inches of the cup and sank a birdie 4.

That made the match all even and Mrs. Martelle's twelve-foot putt ran by Mrs. Federman's that had stopped at the side of the cup at the seventeenth, dropped into the hole to give the Hartford player the lead of 1 up, which she retained, as they halved the eighteenth in 5s.

For the second time in two days Mrs. Hucknall of Woodway played the south course under 80, but her 79 against Miss Jane Brooks of Rockland County was just not good enough. Miss Brooks had a 78 after being out in 37, but she won only by 1 up because of a fine rally on Mrs. Hucknall's part that gained both the sixteenth and seventeenth, which reduced Miss Brooks's advantage from 3 to 1 up. Were it not that Miss Brooks played an excellent pitch to a yard of the pin at the home green to assure herself of a par 4, she might have had to go the extra-hole route, for Mrs. Hucknall took a 4 at the home green herself.

Mrs. Reymond Wins, 3 and 2.

In the other match, Mrs. Ruth Reymond of Baton Rouge, La., the former Southern champion, by 3 and 2 put out Mrs. H. Arnold Jackson of Greenwich, who has had the distinction of winning the national championship twice. Quite a contrast to yesterday, when she had eight one-putt greens, Mrs. Jackson found the putter today a rather unsatisfactory weapon. It failed her several times and she had two three-putt greens which cost her two holes. At the seventh she had to be satisfied with a half in 7s after she touched her ball with the putter in addressing it and then charged herself with the stroke penalty.

PERSICHETTY LEADS JUNIOR QUALIFIERS

Turns in a 74 for Lowest Score—Thorn Heads Boys' Play at Briarcliff Lodge.

Special to The New York Times.

BRIARCLIFF MANOR, N. Y., July 18.—The annual invitation boys' and junior boys' golf tournament of the Briarcliff Lodge Sports Club got under way today on the Briarcliff Lodge course with the qualifying rounds in both divisions being contested. Only eleven entries participated in the boys' division and all of these qualified, while eight of the sixteen who participated in the junior boys' division survived the first round.

Edward Persichetty, Tysen Manor youngster, turned in the lowest score in the junior division. His card read 37, 37—74, three strokes above par for the course. He started off in good form and equalled par for the first five holes going out. On the sixth hole Persichetty went one above par when he required a 4.

John O'Connor and Albert A. Cucinell, both unattached,, were tied for the next best score, each going around in 76, while Mortimer G. Jafes, Scottish-American winner of last year's tournament, scored a 78.

The best score turned in by the boys belonged to Jack Thorn of Mohansic, runner-up last year. Thorn had an 82, A. V. Thomas was next with an 83.

Yale-Harvard Trail Oxford-Cambridge at Tennis, 5-1, After First Day's Play

OXFORD-CAMBRIDGE GAIN TENNIS LEAD

Show Way to Yale-Harvard by 5 to 1 in First Day's Play for Prentice Cup.

INGRAHAM WINS FOR U. S.

Harvard Star Defeats Mather, but English Players Take Two Singles and Sweep Three Doubles.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, R. I., July 18.—The combined Oxford and Cambridge tennis team gained a lead of five matches to one over Yale and Harvard in the first day's play for the Bernon S. Prentice Cup on the turf courts of the Newport Casino today.

The only match of the day in which America came through as a winner was the first to be played, that between Arthur Ingraham Jr., representing Harvard, and E. O. Mather of Oxford. Ingraham came from behind to triumph. The two other singles matches played in the morning went to England, and the latter players made a clean sweep of the three doubles matches in the afternoon.

Coming from behind to win seemed to be the order of the day's play, for two of the doubles matches were determined in this way after the American players had gained good leads. The matches were played under ideal weather conditions, though there was quite a stiff breeze blowing across the courts during the morning, and they were witnessed by a large and fashionable gallery, made up for the most part of members of the Summer colony and their friends.

Makes a Game Finish.

The feature match of the morning was between Mather, the tall, blond-haired Oxford Rhodes scholar, who hails from Texas, and Ingraham. A game finish in which Ingraham overpowered his clever opponent with speedy drives gave the Harvard man the match, two sets to one, 7–5, 2–6, 6–3.

Mather held a commanding 5–2 margin in the first set, but his racket propelling dazzling placements, Ingraham reeled off five successive games and took the set after overcoming a 40—love disadvantage in the last game.

Mather captured the second set without difficulty, 6–2, running off the first three games. The opening six games of the deciding set found the rival net man taking each other's service, but Ingraham then broke through, took three straight games and registered the only American triumph of the morning.

Meanwhile, though, Guy Cooper of Oxford was trouncing G. A. Holloway of Yale in straight sets. Cooper's varied assortment of shots had the Yale man baffled and it was only in the last set that he was able to make the going interesting. The score of the first set was 6–2 and the second 7–5.

First Set a Thriller.

R. W. Ryan, another Eli player, faded before the magic of Norman Farquharson, the towering Cambridge lad from South Africa. The initial set was a thriller, Farquharson gaining a 3–1 lead over the youthful Ryan, which the latter wiped out in a flash. Ryan's hard smashes seemed to be puzzling the Cambridge player, as he led at 5–4, 6–5, 7–6, but finally Farquharson spurted to win by taking the last two games for a 9–7 victory.

The South African sent booming drives and deft placements spinning across the velvet green stretches of the championship court in the second set that forced Ryan to commit numerous errors. The result was a smashing 6–0 triumph, but it was filled with sparkling rallies and sensational shots, and was not as one-sided as the score indicates.

THE SUMMARIES.

Singles.

N. G. Farquharson, Cambridge, defeated R. W. Ryan, Yale, 9–7, 6–0; Arthur Ingraham Jr., Harvard, defeated E. O. Mather, Oxford, 7–5, 2–6, 6–3; H. G. N. Cooper, Oxford, defeated G. A. Holloway, Yale, 6–2, 7–5.

Doubles.

Farquharson and Cooper defeated R. H. Whitbeck, Harvard, and Ingraham, 6–4, 4–6, 6–2; Mather and F. De Ricou, Oxford, defeated A. S. Wright, Yale, and Holloway, 6–2, 6–2; E. R. Avery and R. T. Young, Cambridge, defeated W. H. Wood, Harvard, and Ryan, 7–5, 5–7, 8–6.

VINES PUTS OUT REID IN WESTERN TENNIS

18-Year-Old Player Upsets Cleveland Veteran, 6-2, 7-5—Pare and Sutter Score.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, July 18.—Ellsworth Vines, 18-year-old Pasadena boy, upset Kirk Reid, Cleveland veteran, 6–2, 7–5, to reach the semi-final round of the Western tennis championships at the Skokie Country Club today.

Cliff Sutter, a 19-year-old youngster from New Orleans, conquered Leroy Weir of Evanston in three sets. Sutter is rated the dark horse of the tourney and is the only unseeded player to reach the semi-final bracket.

Emmett Pare, the present title-holder and national clay court champion, was forced all the way by Jack Harris, also of Chicago, but won at 6–4, 6–3. Harris was playing beautifully, but Pare was just a little bit better.

THE SUMMARIES.

Men's Singles.

Quarter—Finals: Ellsworth Vines, Pasadena, defeated Kirk Reid, Cleveland, 6–2, 7–5; Emmett Pare, Chicago, defeated Jack Harris, Chicago, 6–4, 6–3; Keith Gledhill, Santa Barbara, defeated George O'Connell, Chicago, 3–6, 6–2, 6–3; Cliff Sutter, New Orleans, defeated Leroy Weir, Evanston, 6–3, 6–1, 6–3.

Women's Doubles.

Second Round—Misses Zinke and Oexmann defeated Misses Bolton and Bolton, 6–0, 6–0; Misses Bailey and McHale defeated Misses Carpenter and Mitchell, 6–2, 6–3; Misses Swartz and Russell defeated Misses Stalsmeyer and David, 6–2, 6–1; Misses Willard and Hoffmeister won by default; Misses Riese and Duff defeated Misses Alschuler and Collier, 6–1, 6–3; Misses Wolf and Adams defeated Misses Ruffner and Gilden, 6–0, 6–1.

All Tickets Sold in Berlin For the U. S.-Germany Matches

BERLIN, July 18 (AP).—All tickets for the Interzone Davis Cup final between the United States and Germany, which begins tomorrow, have been sold out in an unprecedented rush. The Red-White Club, where the contests will be staged, was overrun today by mobs of enthusiasts, hundreds standing in line in the hope of being the lucky ones to get seats.

Functionaries of the club tape-measured the stands this morning most carefully, but squeezed out only 500 additional standing room places.

U. S. AND GERMANY START PLAY TODAY

Berlin Is on Edge for the Opening Singles Matches in Davis Cup Interzone Final.

HUNTER WILL FACE PRENN

Tilden Will Oppose Moldenhauer—Hunter Rests While Team-mates Hold Final Drills.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, July 18.—Even the greatest optimists of the German tennis world don't expect a German victory over the American team in the interzone Davis Cup final which begins tomorrow afternoon—especially after they saw Wilmer Allison and John Van Ryn at practice.

"Germany has no pair which could match these American wonders," a prominent member of the Red-White Tennis Club declared frankly. And William Tilden seems unconquerable, says the German press, which is full of praise for Big Bill, as he is familiarly called, and he is expected to win two singles—not easily but surely.

Hence there is only Frank Hunter left as far as Germany's chances go and the press predicts Daniel Prenn will win his singles match against Hunter and if Hans Moldenhauer is at his best he might be able to book a second point for Germany, but there it ends.

Tilden opens the battle in singles against Moldenhauer, followed by the singles match of Prenn against Hunter. Saturday the doubles will take place between Allison and Van Ryn and Prenn and Moldenhauer. Sunday Tilden is matched against Prenn and Hunter against Moldenhauer in the final singles. Dr. Schomburck will be the umpire.

Tennis Is Chief Topic.

BERLIN, July 18 (AP).—Tennis was the talk of the town in Berlin tonight on the eve of the opening of the Davis Cup matches between America and Germany.

Speculators had no difficulty getting three, four and five times the printed price for seats around the Red and White Club court, where the interzone final starts tomorrow.

Members of the two teams were satisfied with light workouts today. Frank Hunter of the American delegation decided not to take any exercise at all. Bill Tilden had a short practice session in the morning, and the energetic doubles team of Wilmer Allison and John Van Ryn banged the ball back and forth this afternoon for two hours until a thunderstorm drove them off the court.

The Germans, in their methodical way, went through their tennis "daily dozen," and those who watched Daniel Prenn and Hans Moldenhauer, who are to represent the Fatherland in doubles as well as singles, were not at all pessimistic over Germany's chances to win one or two of the five matches. No German, however, was so carried away as to bet that the home team would beat the Americans, although it is considered hardly probable that the visitors will make a clean sweep.

Still a Drawing Card.

Tilden may have lost some of his old stamina and playing skill, but his power as a drawing card apparently is unimpaired. A goodly share of those lucky ones who will jam their way into the stands will be drawn by the prospect of seeing the American master in action, and this desire is not lessened by the feeling that he may be beaten.

The optimistic Prenn is already looking forward to Sunday when the first day's pairings are reversed and he is to try conclusions with Tilden while Hunter matches strokes with Moldenhauer.

"Big Bill, like many great players, has his weak side," remarked Prenn in an interview published in the Lokal-Anzeiger. "If he gets nervous he is not half so strong as before. I'll do my best to get a lead at the start. If I can manage that I am satisfied. We can lose, 5 to 0, but we might win, 3 to 2."

The Americans were surprised during practice by the number of German newspaper cartoonists lounging under the trees or near the courts unexpectedly sketching the visitors in all attitudes in order to satisfy the German public's marked preference for sketches rather than photographs.

JACOBS BROTHERS WIN.

Advance to Final in Middle Atlantic States Doubles Play.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, July 18.—Eddie and Billy Jacobs advanced to the final in the Middle Atlantic doubles tournament today, at the Baltimore Country Club by defeating Eric Jacobsen and George Hebner in straight sets, 6–4, 6–2, 6–2.

This was the third time in the tourney that the Jacobs brothers won in straight sets over their opponents. Eddie continued his sensational service. In the seven games he served he won twenty-eight points, had two love games and allowed only one point in each of the other five. Three of these five were double faults.

The other semi-final will be played tomorrow afternoon. This will bring together John A. Magee and Warren K. Marruder of Baltimore and Dooley L. Mitchell and Gwynn King of Washington.

SHIELDS ELIMINATED IN BROOKLINE TENNIS

New Yorker Loses in Bitter Five-Set Contest to Mangin, 6-0, 6-3, 6-8, 0-6, 6-4.

FOUR REACH SEMI-FINAL

Doeg and Mercur, Each a Holder of Leg on Longwood Bowl, Meet Mangin and Hall.

Special to The New York Times.

BROOKLINE, Mass., July 18.—Two college rivals and two teammates will meet in semi-final matches for the classic Longwood Bowl tournament at the Longwood Cricket Club tomorrow as a result of the four quarter-final matches contested today. All the four semi-finalists were seeded.

Two of the players, who each have one leg on the bowl, will play in opposite halves and, in the event that each comes through the final on Saturday, should produce some scintillating tennis, for they will strive their mightiest to gain a second leg.

John H. Doeg of Santa Monica, Cal., winner of a leg in 1927 and, who represented Stanford University in the intercollegiate net play, is to meet Gregory Mangin of Newark, N. J., a Georgetown racquet wielder of reputation.

Hall to Play Mercur.

In the other semi-final clash J. Gilbert Hall of South Orange will play Fritz Mercur of Bethlehem, Pa. Mercur won a leg on the Longwood Bowl in 1924. Hall and Mercur were the victors in the finals for the national clay court tennis championship this Summer and each contestant should have a fair line on his opponent's style of play.

Two of the four matches today were won in straight sets. One went to four and another the full distance of five. Mercur, seeded first, and Doeg, second seeded player, won in straight sets; while the other two semi-finalists had to face stiff competition before entering the round before the finals.

The real match of the day was the struggle between Mangin and Frank X. Shields of New York, the national junior champion. For five sets the players belted away at the ball, and if Shields was steadier on his feet he might have won. As it was, the terrific strain took its toll and Shields was unable to withstand the grueling pace.

Mangin Gains Good Lead.

Mangin started off snappily. He made few, if any, errors, winning the first two sets at 6–0, 6–2 and gaining a lead that appeared insurmountable. Mangin led 5–2 in the third set and led 30–15, 2 points from winning the match.

Then Shields unleashed some wonderful tennis. His volleying, which was a trifle off in the first set, began to pierce the Mangin defense. This worked wonders with Shields's game and he brought the count to 5-all in games. Then the score went to 6-all and Shields fought his way into the lead by making many earned points. A service ace, a dazzling shot down the right lane and a volley to the left. With Mangin's failure to return his opponent's service, Shields won out, 8–6.

After the intermission Shields came back stronger and piled up a lead of 3–0 in games. Mangin, finding it almost impossible to cope with Shields's effective play, made little or no effort to keep the ball in play. Mangin was probably storing up plenty of reserve energy for the final set. In winning the fourth set, Shields at one time stumbled in reaching for a drive and twisted his leg.

Mangin Takes the Match.

Mangin broke through Shields's service in the final set and was off to a 2–1 lead in games. Shields in return smashed past Mangin and evened the set. Mangin, playing cautiously and slowing up his game as compared with his early offense, began to get results. The stage got to 4—all when Mangin broke through the New Yorker's service and he won his own, to take the match. It was a game battle that Shields fought but he was weary at the finish. Mangin was in no excellent condition himself.

The doubles division advanced into the semi-finals. Tomorrow's matches will be the best three sets. Malcolm T. Hill and Henry L. Johnson Jr. will play Bradshaw Harrison and Kenneth Appel in one semi-final, while in the other Mercur and Hall will try to gain the final in a match against Shields and Mangin.

THE SUMMARIES.

Singles.

Third Round—Fritz Mercur, Bethlehem, Pa., defeated S. Ondo, Japan, 6–3, 8–7, 6–2; J. Gilbert Hall, New York, beat H. H. Hyde, Hartford, 6–3, 6–8, 6–3; John H. Doeg, Santa Monica, Cal., beat Weller B. Evans, Princeton, 6–3, 6–2, 8–6; Gregory Mangin, Newark, beat Frank X. Shields, New York, 6–0, 6–3, 6–8, 0–6, 6–4.

Doubles.

Third Round—Malcolm T. Hill and Henry L. Johnson Jr. beat G. A. D'Arcy and S. P. Crowell, 6–3, 6–4; Bradshaw Harrison and Kenneth Appel beat Henry R. Guild and G. P. Gardner Jr., 6–4, 7–5, 6–3; Mercur and Hall beat C. O. Wellington and Josiah Wheelwright, 6–3, 6–0; Shields and Mangin beat J. Evans and Edward McKnight, 11–9, 6–2.

FRIEDMAN WINS NET TITLE.

Takes Philadelphia Boys' Singles Crown, His Sixth of Year.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, July 18.—Bernard Friedman, captain-elect of the West Philadelphia High School tennis team, in winning the Philadelphia boys' singles championship today, gained his sixth title for the year.

The youthful Middle States champion defeated Herbert Oritzky of Overbrook High in the final, 6–2, 6–1. Paired with Joseph Kassoway, Friedman was beaten in the final of the boys' doubles by Daniel Cressman, Pitman, N. J., Cottagers' Association, and Edward Berdon, Central High, 6–1, 8–6.

In the semi-final junior doubles matches Friedman and Joseph Borda of Atlantic City, defeated Jack Mann and Cressman, 6–3, 4–6, 6–3; and Fred Roll, Mercersburg Academy, and Frank Hale, Germantown High, eliminated George McFarland and Dick Chapman, 6–0, 6–1.

Lacoste's Health Improves, but the Star Is Definitely Off French Davis Cup Team

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, July 18.—René Lacoste, present French national tennis champion, is definitely out of the Davis Cup challenge round matches this year.

Lacoste took cold in Germany ten days ago and since has been suffering from grippe. He is much better now, but today it was announced that he could not possibly be in condition to play in the Davis Cup matches, which will take place July 26 to 28.

The French team, therefore, probably will be composed of Henri Cochet and Jean Borotra in the singles, with Borotra and Jacques Brugnon as the doubles team.

Lacoste's brilliant tennis career has been marked by illness and it was thought at one time that it would be ended entirely because of poor health. Several years ago, following the United States indoor championship tourney in New York, and recently, on the eve of his winning match against Bill Tilden in the French hard-court tourney, Lacoste was stricken by illness.

Following the French tournament, Lacoste announced that he would not take part in this year's Wimbledon championships, in which Cochet won the singles title.

MISS BLAKE GAINS AT LONGWOOD NETS

Eliminates Miss Francis in Thrilling 3-Set Match in Brookline Play.

MISS GREENSPAN DEFEATED

Loses to Miss Burkhardt in Extra Games—Misses Palfrey Win in Doubles.

Special to The New York Times.

BROOKLINE, Mass., July 18.—Two Californians, one Massachusetts and one Connecticut player gained the semi-final round of the women's invitation tournament at the Longwood Cricket Club today.

The final will be an East-West clash for tomorrow. Miss Ethel Burkhart of San Francisco opposes Mrs. Lawrence A. Harper, also of San Francisco, in one semi-final match, while in the other Miss Margaret Blake of Lenox attempts to gain the final round at the expense of Miss Dorothy Andrus of Stamford, Conn.

Miss Blake, the lone survivor of the local group, continued her devastating game and won a three-set thriller from the favored Miss Alice Francis of East Orange, N. J. After losing the opening set at 4–6, Miss Blake, who yesterday put out Miss Marjorie Gladman, staged a great rally and with a wide variety of strokes out-battled Miss Francis, 6–3, 6–3.

Miss Greenspan Rallies.

Miss Ethel Burkhardt of San Francisco started off as if to make easy pickings of Miss Clara Greenspan of New York when she won the first set at 6–1. The left-hander from the metropolitan district was by far a more difficult problem in the second set.

Her smashing down and fine court work brought her a 3–1 lead in games in the second set. Miss Burkhardt quickly evened the match at 3-all. At this stage it looked like another victory for the Pacific coast singles champion, but a surprise was in store for her.

Miss Greenspan broke through Miss Burkhardt's service in the seventh game and won her own in the eighth to take a 5–3 lead. Miss Burkhardt won the next game, but on two occasions in the tenth a single point separated Miss Greenspan from the set.

Set Goes Into Extra Games.

The Californian won out and the set went into extra games. Miss Greenspan led at 6–5 and it was then 7–6 in favor of Miss Burkhardt, who was never headed from then until the finish, although the New Yorker won the fourteenth game.

Four quarter-final doubles matches were completed. The Palfrey sisters, Miss Sarah and Miss Mianne, teamed perfectly and fighting for every point, won a great victory by vanquishing Miss Mary Greef of Kansas City and Mrs. A. H. Chapin of Springfield in three sets, 6–1, 8–10, 6–2.

The California doubles team of Mrs. Harper and Miss Josephine Cruikshank triumphed over Mrs. Henry R. Guild and Mrs. J. R. Corbiere, a local pair.

THE SUMMARIES.

Singles.

Fourth Round—Miss Dorothy Andrus, Stamford, Conn., defeated Miss Josephine Cruikshank, Santa Ana, Cal., 6–2, 9–7; Mrs. Lawrence A. PARTRIDGE REACHES QUAKER RIDGE FINAL Defeats Minster, 3-6, 6-1, 6-3, in Title Play at the New Rochelle Tennis Club.

MATCH HAMPERED BY WIND

Hammett and Manchester Eliminate Bacon and Hargan in Second Round of Doubles.

Melvin Partridge, the top seeded player in the tournament, reached the final round of the Quaker Ridge championship yesterday on the courts of the New Rochelle Tennis Club. He defeated Jerome Minster in the upper semi-final, 3–6, 6–1, 6–3.

A strong wind blowing down upon the court made it difficult to control the ball and in the opening set Partridge was constantly overdriving. Minster adapted his game to the conditions more quickly and played pretty tennis in this chapter to win it after a close fight.

In the second set Partridge got the range of the lines and from then on was in command. His hard, low drives that crowded his opponent in his back court were fairly irresistible, and Minster was unable to plug up the gaps in his court. After being swept off his feet in the second set, Minster rallied in the final chapter to make a fight of it, but Partridge always had the edge and was never in difficulties.

Tomorrow the remaining fifth-round match between Arthur S. Fowler and Richard Lewis will be played and the winner will face A. Baisley Sheridan in the other semi-final on Saturday. The final will be held Sunday.

In the second round of the doubles Alfred D. Hammett and Herbert H. Manchester defeated Bacon and Hargan, 6–2, 8–1. The concluding round of this event also will be staged on Sunday.

STOCKTON WINS AT TENNIS.

Eliminates Bragan in Feature Match of Spring Lake Title Play.

Special to The New York Times.

SPRING LAKE, N. J., July 18.—J. P. Stockton, a previous winner of the tourney, eliminated W. R. Bragan in the feature match of the annual North Jersey coast championships held today at the Bathing and Tennis Club, at 4–6, 11–9, 6–2.

J. Strahan and H. Wolf, other favorites, advanced in straight sets.

BUXBY TAKES FINAL IN JUNIOR NET PLAY

Conquers Christensen, 6-2, 6-3, 6-4, to Capture the Montclair Centre Championship.

Special to The New York Times.

MONTCLAIR, N. J., July 18.—Martin Buxby of Miami, Fla., captured the Montclair Centre junior tennis championship today when he defeated Harold Christensen, star of the Summit High School net team, in the final match of the annual tournament on the courts of the Montclair Athletic Club. The score was 6–2, 6–3, 6–4. Buxby recently annexed the Florida State junior title.

Buxby, the favorite from the start, won by his great backhand driving and remarkable steadiness. The match was featured by long and spirited rallies, with the Florida youth invariably gaining points at the termination of such rallies by beautiful placement shots.

First Official Blazer Adopted By British Wightman Cup Team

LONDON, July 18 (AP).—Great Britain's Wightman Cup team members, sailing Saturday for New York, will for the first time be equipped with an official blazer. The jacket was designed by the former Wimbledon champion, Miss D. Boothby, now Mrs. Arthur Green. It is of white cloth with silver buttons. On the breast pocket is the Union Jack, with crossed racquets and the year 1929 underneath.

The British girls meet a United States team at Forest Hills next month in the annual renewal of their international tennis rivalry.

Joe Marrone III Wins at Empire City—Katinka Scores at Fairfield Horse Show

FRIAR CLIFF BEATEN BY JOE MARRONE III

4 LENGTHS DIVIDE LEADERS

By BRYAN FIELD.

The shortest-priced favorite of the meeting ran and won at Empire City yesterday, gladdening the hearts of most of the spectators, as the horse was enthusiastically played despite the lean odds of 1 to 2.

The horse was Joe Marrone III and he galloped in easy fashion to win the twentieth running of the Melrose Claiming Stakes over the mile and a sixteenth route from four others, one an added starter. This was the Dorwood Stable's Friar Cliff, and, as things turned out, he provided the only real competition the race afforded Mrs. R. T. Queen's 7-year-old son of Glencairn and Tiara.

That competition, however, was not very much, as Joe finished four lengths ahead of Friar Cliff, which beat Laurie by a head. Bridegroom and Negopoli finished in the order named. The winner earned $2,960 by his brief workout, which took 1:47 2-5 for the mile and a sixteenth.

Friar Cliff Off Fast.

The start of the race was in front of the grand stand, and as the favorite carried top weight of 120 pounds a good many of the spectators would have felt more comfortable if he had gone to the front at once. This was evident from the sighs and groans which were audible when Friar Cliff broke running and rushed to the clubhouse turn as if in chase of a rabbit. Laurie ran second and then came that heavily weighted 1-to-2 shot.

Jimmy Burke was riding the favorite and he chose to rate his horse as Friar Cliff dashed out to a four-length lead. Laurie was still rated second and Negopoli and Bridegroom began to close in the backstretch at one time so that it looked as if Joe Marrone III were having a hard time.

Friar Cliff got loose for a moment or two in the backstretch and attempted to run out, but Jockey McKeonie quickly regained control and maintained his lead.

The move of the favorite came on the bend. Burke sent him up steadily and Laurie went up also, but he was now third. Bridegroom and Negopoli had already given up the ghost, so that all the favorite had to beat was in front of him.

Friar Cliff found Joe Marrone III alongside at the head of the stretch and the former was easily passed. The favorite drew off and won with Burke sitting tight and four lengths between the winner's heels and Friar Cliff's nose. Tired from the early pace, Friar Cliff just saved the place from Laurie's closing rush.

Whimill's Horse Surprises.

There was a surprise in the Brevoort Claiming Handicap when R. C. Whimill's Wonderful suddenly came to life and led all the way to win easily and pay 10 to 1. Six started in this event over the mile and seventy yards distance. The favorite was M. L. Allen's Penalo, and he ran disappointingly, finishing fifth in a race that was run as slow as 1:45 2-5 and it remained for Light View to chase the victor to the wire. Two lengths was the winner's margin and John B got third from Ruby Keller.

The result of the Geneseo purse was also a bit of a shock, as P. S. P. Randolph's Sturdy came from fifth place to first place in the final sixteenth to win the race by a head from Burlap, which had been the contender for almost all of the race behind Irish Holiday. Irish Holiday had a four-length lead at one time and led until the final sixteenth, but then stopped like a rundown clock and was lucky to save third.

A lot of the second flight 2-year-olds paraded for the Larkspur Purse, and they are still trying to beat George W. Loft's Mahla, the undersized On Watch filly. She had a six-race winning streak before the race and now she has extended it to seven.

The start was poor, but Mahla and Wrestler, the two contenders, were away well. Mahla went to the front going to the far turn and drew away to hold off Wrestler's challenge. The time was 1:01 for the five furlongs. Peto finished third.

Post and Paddock.

The Yonkers Handicap tomorrow will have a good field if the workouts yesterday at Empire City may be taken as an indication of what horses are going to start. Distraction from the Wheatley Stable dashed around the oval for a mile at lunch time and was clocked in 1:41 2-5. He turned the six furlongs in 1:14 2-5.

In the early morning hours, Recreation and Princess Tina worked, the former six furlongs in 1:18 2-5 handily, and the latter a mile in 1:44 2-5, also handily. Recreation was left at the post in her last race and Princess Tina lost out ran a smashing race to whip Irresistible. They will run coupled if they start.

Gifford A. Cochran's pair of Healy and Valkyr each breezed a mile. Healy was timed in 1:47 2-5 and the daughter of Man o' War in two-fifths of a second faster time. Healy has a fine performance behind him in his Empire City derby victory and will be heavily backed if he goes in the Yonkers.

William Ziegler Jr.'s Polydor is still training at the Hilltop course and went six furlongs yesterday in time that left the clockers comparing watches. He was caught in 1:13 2-5, which is just about the fastest workout for that distance at Empire City this season.

But Saturday's racing at the Hilltop will again be eclipsed by that at Arlington Park in Chicago, where the Arlington Park Handicap will be run. Sun Edwin and Demand are two of the well-known Eastern horses which will try for the Western prize.

It is possible that Gifford A. Cochran's good colt Flying Heels, which has won four consecutive races and is undefeated, will come out for the Sprightful, companion piece to the Yonkers Handicap, tomorrow. Flying Heels is the Tijuana futurity winner and ran a very impressive race in the Nightcap Wednesday to score his fourth victory.

England's Rifle Team Defeats Canada to Win Mackinnon Cup

BISLEY CAMP, England, July 18 (Canadian Press).—The Mackinnon Cup was won by England today by a margin of 10 points over Canada, the runner-up. The cup was won by Australia last year. England's team total was 1,022 against the Canadians' 1,012. The cup was shot for by teams of twelve men. It was the second of the two great team trophies of the National Rifle Association's meeting. The first, the Lolapore Cup, was won by Canada on Tuesday. Canada lost the Mackinnon Cup last year to Australia by 45 points.

LANE ALLEN VICTOR OVER JACK HIGGINS

Lasts in Hard Drive in Stretch to Win Arlington Feature by Neck.

CHICAGO, July 18 (AP).—G. Collins's consistent 4-year-old Lane Allen had to exert himself to the utmost to win the Parkview Purse, the feature number at Arlington Park, today. Jack Higgins from W. Curran's Stable was a close second and Star O'Morn from W. F. Benton's Stable was third. All nine entrants started.

Lane Allen, Away-fast moved into a good lead and held on well under light restraint and in a hard drive through the stretch lasted to win by a neck. Jack Higgins was rated along close up, made a game bid for the purse in the stretch drive but had to be satisfied with second money by five lengths.

KATINKA TRIUMPHS IN JUMPING CLASS

HIS ELEGANCE WINS BLUE

Gimbel's Chestnut Gelding Excels in Hunter Group—Warfield Farms Score in Hunter Events.

By HENRY R. ILSLEY.

Special to The New York Times.

WESTPORT, Conn., July 18.—Competition of the warmest character marked the first se n of the sixth annual Fairchild County Hunt Club horse show which opened this morning on the club's picturesque grounds.

In all respects, it was a record-breaking opening, not only in the matter of attendance, but in the number of entries and the keenness of the battles in the ring and over the new outside jumping course.

One of the closest contests came in the jumping event in which the contestants had to negotiate ten jumps, covering a half-mile course. It was for hunters and performance counted 50 per cent, manners and way of going, and conformation, 25 per cent each. The event attracted one of the largest classes of the show and close interest was maintained from the first jump until the final award.

The result was a most popular victory for young Herbert A. Howard with his chestnut mare, Katinka. When Katinka jumps her best, she is an extremely hard horse to beat and today she was at the top of her form to defeat the hunter class of the East, taking the measure, as she did, of such noted jumpers as the Warfield Farms' Prince Charming II, Bernard F. Gimbel's crack hunter, Captain Doane, and the Warfield Farms' big gray, Nimrod, all of which finished in that order.

Jumping Competition Close.

Behind Katinka more than two score took the obstacles and about a dozen hunters were in the front rank when the judges came to separate them, with another group just a shade below them in the matter of performance.

Rufus C. Finch of the Monmouth County Hunt Club and J. Garner West of Garnersville, N. Y., a hunter and jumper judges, finally placed the ribbons, but the margin among the money-winners was extremely narrow.

Bernard F. Gimbel's chestnut gelding, His Elegance, scored in a select group of hunters, winning from the Warfield Farm's Prince Charming II, the Hickory Hills Farm's Balmer Boy and Mrs. John J. Farrell's Jasper. This class was shown at a walk, trot and hand gallop.

While there was no jumping in the class for model hunters, which were shown in hand, there was competition and the result was a fine victory for the Warfield Farms' outstanding bay gelding, Prince Charming II, which was placed over Mrs. John C. Loud's good jumper, Little Jeff. Captain Doane was placed third and the Sunridge Stables' Flood Tide, fourth.

Jack Pot Wins Blue.

The Warfield Farms scored hands only in the hunter events. In addition to taking two ribbons in the feature jumping class, the stable captured first, third and fourth ribbons in the lightweight hunter event and also led the class for thoroughbred hunters. The latter event went to the veteran Jack Pot, which scored at the expense of Little Jeff. Katinka being third, but Jack Pot went through to carry off the blue in the lightweight hunter class, but he had to show his best form to beat Captain Doane and his stablemate, Port Light and the striking black gelding, Ebony.

Miss Edith Anderson of Brooklyn, apparently unbeatable as an equestrienne among the youngsters in horsemanship competitions, triumphed in a class of twenty-two. She followed this success with her victory in the contest for the "good hands," the trophy offered by the S. P. C. A. to encourage good horsemanship among the juniors.

A Western horse excelled in the class for saddle horses over 15.2 hands. This was Beau Cavalier, which R. L. Corby of New York recently purchased in Kansas City and which made his début in the East today.

He is a gray gelding of 16.1 hands and took the measure of the noted Kentucky Red, with Miss Frances Farnsworth's mare, Cynthia McDonald third, and Mr. and Mrs. Eric's Cambridge fourth.

VALENTINO SCORES IN DORVAL FEATURE

Finishes Two Lengths In Front of Pygmalion, Choice, in Cote de Liesse Purse.

Special to The New York Times.

MONTREAL, July 18.—F. C. Frisbie's 7-year-old horse Valentino won the Cote de Liesse Purse, which featured the card at the Dorval Jockey Club's course today.

Valentino followed Pygmalion closely most of the way and displaced him as leader in the stretch to win by two lengths. Pygmalion took the place by a length and a half over Doctor Rankin.

The race was at a mile and a sixteenth and the winner paid $26.15 for $2. Pygmalion was the favorite.

Canada and U. S. Start Yacht Racing Series Today

U. S.-CANADA START YACHT RACES TODAY

International Series Will Get Under Way Over Barnegat Bay Course.

BOTH SIDES ARE CONFIDENT

Invading Yachtsmen, Familiar With Bay and Changes in Weather, Hope to Retain Championship.

Special to The New York Times.

SEASIDE PARK, N. J., July 18.—Having completed to their own satisfaction carefully thought out plans for tomorrow's international races, the captains and crews representing the United States and Canada are resting quietly tonight. Both sides eagerly await the boom of the gun that will start the yachts on their first race of the series.

The Barnegat Bay skippers and crews, who have been selected on merit founded on past performances to uphold American yachting laurels, are confident of success. So are the yachtsmen of the Royal St. Lawrence Yacht Club of Montreal.

All young in years, but veterans in sailing, on the eve of the big race, the Canadians display unwavering confidence that they will be able to score a triumph, as they did last year. Both sides concluded their last conferences today and the plans decided upon will be adhered to strictly. Under the captaincy of Commodore G. Victor Whitehead of the Royal St. Lawrence Club, Canadians have lost no time in getting the feel of the boats which they are to sail against the Barnegat Bay skippers, also veteran sailors who know every inch of the bay, its eddies and tidal flows.

Experience Weather Changes.

Since arrival here the Canadians have had experience of various kinds of weather. Today there was a stiff breeze, which was ideal for sailing, while yesterday the breeze was poor and at times the boats were almost becalmed.

They have worked hard and know their craft and the selected course and will be able to navigate in such skillful manner as to get the best results from their yachts, notwithstanding weather conditions.

Headed by Captain G. S. Hanna and Captain Alexander P. Shearwood, the Maple Leaf teams are in fine form. Bruce Field, also a veteran, is alternate skipper. With Captain Shearwood will be T. C. Darling and Neal M. Stewart. With Captain Hanna will be R. S. Hanna and F. B. Coward or M. D. Smith. These sailors have tried out the four selected sloops, the scowlike sailing craft. The Canadians are delighted with the craft selected and expressed their admiration of their sailing qualities.

Dale and Horrocks Chosen.

The boats are twenty-eight feet long, flat of bottom, have two centreboards and two rudders. Captain F. Slade Dale, a Barnegat Bay veteran and a young man who has sailed many seas, recently completing a 4,000-mile cruise in a tiny craft, and Captain Thomas Horrocks, also a veteran, have been selected by the fourteen captains of the Barnegat Bay Yacht Racing Association to try to win a victory for America.

With Captain Dale will be Peter Jennes Jr., who accompanied him on his cruise, and Edward J. Scoville. With Captain Horrocks will be his brothers. In the series of races the special committee in charge consists of former Commodore Henry H. Crose of the Seaside Park Yacht Club, Commodore Benjamin Adams of the Island Heights Yacht Club and Major T. Mitchell Chance, also of the Seaside Park Club.

The judges of all four races will be Commodore G. Victor Whitehead of the Royal St. Lawrence Yacht Club, Frank Henry for the Barnegat Bay Yacht Racing Association, and Herbert I. Stone as the neutral judge. The four yachts in the race will be the Phantom, the Scamp, the Spray and the Witch, all fast craft and winners of many Barnegat Bay trophies.

BASS DEFEATS PISANO IN BOUT AT NEWARK

Floors Rival in Sixth and Ninth Rounds to Win Easily—Mosco Knocks Out Greb.

Bennie Bass, Philadelphia, boxed his way to a ten-round decision at Dreamland Park, Newark, last night, defeating Angie Pisano of Brooklyn. Bass weighed 130 pounds and Pisano 133.

Pisano was outclassed from the start. He went to the floor for a count of three in the sixth, and again in the ninth for a count of five.

Jay MacAdon, 141 pounds, Orange, fought a ten-round draw with Billy Took, 145, New York.

Mastro Loses on Foul.

CHICAGO, July 18 (AP).—After establishing a lead during the first four rounds tonight of a ten-round bout at Mills Stadium tonight, Earl Mastro, Chicago featherweight, lost to Billy Shaw of Detroit on a foul in the fifth.

Stribling Defeats Cook.

Taylor Knocks Out Corbett.

MONCTON, N. B., July 18 (Canadian Press).—Frank Taylor, Moncton, knocked out Young Corbett of Hartford, Conn., in the first of a scheduled ten-round bout tonight.

Sports of the Times

By JOHN KIERAN.

WHEN the Cardinals departed from the Polo Grounds they were nine games ahead of the last-place club and twelve and a half games behind the league-leading Pirates. In short, they were closer to the bottom than they were to the top, which shows how fast a good team can fall and how much damage one dolorous losing streak can accomplish. The Cardinals were actually leading the National League parade in the forepart of the season, but several weeks back they began to fall so fast that Branch Rickey rushed them a crate of parachutes.

Winsome Will Southworth shook his head sadly when questioned about the misfortunes of his club.

"I don't know what happened," said the Cardinal manager, "we just began to lose and then we kept on losing. Old Alex, he went out—went to the hospital, in fact. That started it. The pitching was weak—and—and—well, when we got started losing I want to tell you we did a masterly job at it. Can't blame it on accidents, because most of our accidents came after the losing streak was well under way."

Did Winsome Will hold out any further hopes for a pennant this year?

"Why not? All we have to do is put on a winning streak to match the losing streak and we'll be back in there again. I don't think those Pirates are going to keep up that pace. They'll slow up a bit. As for the Cubs, they have a bunch of games with the Reds just before the season closes and the Reds will be laying for them after that fight they had. Sure, we've got a chance."

Then he borrowed Earl Smith's catching glove and went out to warm up Jess Haines for batting practice.

Observations by a Wounded Veteran.

Rubbing his left leg behind the knee, Frank Frisch sat in the visiting dugout at the Polo Grounds and rambled on about players in particular and teams in general. It went something like this:

"Same old injury I had with the Giants. Well, as long as I don't have to hit blindfold I guess I'm lucky. Say, notice Hallahan out there in batting practice? Lays the ball in nicely. Now, why can't he do that in a game? Know what I'd do if I had that fellow's high hard one?"

Jim Bottomley didn't know what Frank would do if he had Hallahan's "high hard one," the same being the players' term for a fast ball.

"Well, Jim, I'd just pitch once every five days. I'd buzz 'em down the alley on that day and the next four days I'd sit back with my sweater on and I might even go so far as to smoke a big cigar. About $25,000 a year would do me. I wouldn't even talk to you, Jim, and I'd want a drawing room every time we traveled and I'd take a trunk with me. Yes, sir, a bird with a high hard one like that should be sitting on top of the world."

Sitting on the Bottom.

But Lefty Hallahan isn't sitting on top of the world. He's much lower down than that and, if he doesn't gain some measure of control, he may fall through the big league floor into the minors.

Owner Sam Breadon counted heavily on that "high hard one" to help the Cardinals to a pennant this year, but Hallahan can't seem to get it anywhere near the plate, which puts it at a 90 per cent discount or more. But this is interrupting the monologue by Master Frisch.

"Watch that bird now" said the Fordham Flash as Chick Hafey went up to take his turn in batting practice, "the hardest right-hand hitter in baseball, Hornsby? No comparison. This guy hits much harder than Hornsby. Look in the records and see. Great fielder and thrower, too. One of the best throwing arms in baseball. Say, Bill Terry's going great this year, isn't he? He sure can field around that bag and he's hitting way up this season. Always was a good hitter. Well, Old Man Frisch had better get out there and see if he can catch a few grounders and get the ball across the diamond. See you later."

Being somewhat handicapped by his lame leg, the best he could do on that particular afternoon was to bang out a couple of hits and steal a base. If he sustains any further injuries he won't be much better than the average star player.

Herman the Great.

When the Giants of a few years ago mentioned "Herman" they were referring to Frisch. That was his nickname among the Polo Grounders. When the Yankees referred to "Herman the Great" they meant Herman Pillette, a former Detroit pitcher who stood them on their collective ears for a stretch and then lost his effectiveness and disappeared.

But when any one mentions "Herman" or "Herman the Great" now, the reference is to Babe Herman of the round Robins, the man who had the distinction of masticating the biggest "chaw" of tobacco in either league until the Great Shires bobbed up with the White Sox.

Babe covers the outfield as if he were on roller skates. He himself says that on a windy day it's "fifty-fifty" whether he gets the ball or the ball gets him. But they can't keep him out of the line-up or the limelight because he is just about one of the best hitters in baseball.

Adopting a Slogan.

Babe's slogan is: "Be nonchalant. Hit a double." Sometimes he is too nonchalant and then he hits a triple or a homer. He is nonchalant in other ways, too.

He was playing for Atlanta one time and the manager didn't like the way he made certain plays around first base. The manager told him how they should be made.

"I always play 'em my own way," said Babe.

"Well, you'll play the way I tell you if you want to stay on this club," said the manager decisively.

"Good-bye," said Babe. And that was that. He left.

Babe is a real Marco Polo of baseball. He has traveled in strange regions. He has been in both big leagues and in practically all the minor leagues in the hinterlands. He began to play in Canada, and three years later he was playing in Texas. When new players appear in rival line-ups against the Robins, Babe is a mine of information to his own pitchers.

"This bird," says Babe, "comes from the Western League. I played with him out there. He hammers the stitches loose on a low ball. Keep 'em high and inside for him. No curves. Lay off a curves. He'll knock 'em down your throat. That other guy there, he comes from the Southern. He's a sucker for a low curve outside. He's got a bad arm, too, and his cousin sells cigars in Chicago. Don't buy any. There ain't no tobacker in 'em."

Yes, sir, a mine of information, not to say amusement—and a rousing hitter into the bargain.

COLLEGE ATHLETES END THEIR DRILLS

Oxford-Cambridge and Cornell-Princeton Squads Finish Work for Meet Tomorrow.

CLOSE SCORE IS EXPECTED

Rivals Are In Good Condition—Athletes Are Guests at a Tea in Kingston, N. J.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., July 18.—Closing their period of training, the track athletes of Oxford, Cambridge, Cornell and Princeton had a light work-out in Palmer Stadium early this afternoon, and afterward were guests at a tea given by Mrs. George R. Murray at her home in Kingston, N. J. The men will not practice tomorrow, but will rest on the eve of the meet to be held on Saturday at Travers Island.

All of the members of both squads are in good condition after a week spent here devoted to light work, golf and rest. Both Coaches John F. Meakley of Cornell and Keene Fitzpatrick of Princeton think that the score will be closer on Saturday than it was last week when the Oxford-Cambridge team met Yale and Harvard. They agreed that the Princeton-Cornell combination has a better chance to win than in any of the previous meets, but would make no further prediction as to the probable victors.

The first meet between the teams, held in 1921, resulted in a 5 to 5 tie, the English leading in second places. The second, in 1926, went to Oxford and Cambridge 9 1-3 to 1 2-3, and the third, held in England in 1928, also went to the Englishmen, 7 to 5.

The tea this afternoon is to be the only formal entertainment offered the athletes before the meet. On Saturday night a dinner will be held at the Apawamis Country Club in Rye, N. Y. Among the guests at the dinner will be William J. Bingham, director of athletics at Harvard and referee of the meet; John M. Gates, director of athletics at Yale, and an inspector at the meet; Dr. Howard J. Savage, director of the Carnegie Foundation; Major William Kennelly, president of the New York Athletic Club; Evan Hunter and Dr. Rex Salisbury Wood of the Oxford-Cambridge team; Dr. Charles W. Kennedy, chairman of the board of athletic control at Princeton.

Also William Church Osborne of the Princeton board of trustees, Romeyn Berry, director of athletics at Cornell, and John T. McGovern of Cornell, chairman of the committee on arrangements. Mr. McGovern will act as toastmaster.

Other guests will be Norman Scott of Cornell, Paul E. Pilgrim and Matthew Halpin of the New York A. C. and Asa S. Bushnell, George R. Murray, Ralph A. Gamble and André E. Thomas Jr. of Princeton, members of the committee on arrangements.

Six Buses for Meet Tomorrow.

Six luxurious buses, each accommodating twenty-six persons, will be available for travelers to Travers Island tomorrow, where the combined Oxford-Cambridge track team will clash with the Princeton-Cornell squad, it was announced yesterday. These buses will leave the city home of the New York Athletic Club at 1, 2 and 3 P. M., two leaving at each time. The meet is scheduled to start at 4 P. M.

CHAPMAN BIKE VICTOR IN PHILADELPHIA RACE

Covers 43 1-3 Miles for New Track Mark in One-Hour Motor Paced Event.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, July 18.—Henry Bruhn of New York, representing the Century Road Club of America, was disqualified in the two-mile amateur bike race at the Municipal Stadium tonight before a crowd of 7,000. Bruhn and Edward Seufert of Newark were in a jam when the latter was thrown. In the last 150 yards Seufert took another spill and had to be carried to the dressing rooms. His right leg was cut and he also received injuries about the body. Disorder among the handlers and riders broke out while Seufert was being revived.

George Chapman, Philadelphia, won the one-hour motor-paced championship race by covering 43 1-3 miles and picked up 5 points to boost his total to 17 points. Charles Jaeger, Newark, was second, and Franco Giorgetti, Italy, third.

THE SUMMARIES.

One-Hour Motor-Paced Championship—Won by George Chapman, Philadelphia (paced by William Ostt, Hillside, N. J.); second, Charles Jaeger, Newark (paced by Charles Stein), Newark; third, Franco Giorgetti, Italy (paced by Otto Miller, Brooklyn); fourth, Alfred Letourneire, France (paced by Frank Joshua, New Haven); fifth, Harry Gaffney, Brooklyn (paced by Tom Grimm, Irvington, N. J.); sixth, Franz Duelberg, Germany (paced by James Hester, Newark); seventh, Victor Hopkins, Davenport, Iowa (paced by Jean Autenrieth, New York). Distance—43 1-3 miles (new track record).

Two-Mile Handicap (Amateur)—Won by Marius Baard, Newark; second, Alfred Nanfelt, Newark; third, Maurice Maeyaert, Paterson; fourth, Pete Amaresco, Philadelphia; fifth, William Reichelder, Philadelphia. Time—5 21 1-5.

15-Mile Junior Motor-Paced Race—Won by Louis Mattoni, Italy (paced by William Sies, Hillside, N. J.); second, Alfred Nanfelt, Newark (paced by Charles Stein, Newark); third, Angelo Bostco, New York (paced by Frank Joshua, New Haven; fourth, Victor Gaudet (paced by Otto Miller, Brooklyn). Time—23 :12 2-5.

One-Third Mile Handicap (Amateur)—Won by Pete Amaresco, Philadelphia, 100 yards; second, William Shaw, Whitehall, 50 yards; third, Adolphe Gaudet, Philadelphia, 100 yards. Time—0:32.

BOXING BOUTS TONIGHT.

Dreamland Playland Stadium—Kid Chocolate vs. Milton Cohen, Oscar La Rosa vs. Herman Wallace, ten-round bouts; Pat Gillen vs. Johnny Vasta, six rounds; Frank Arcuri vs. Willie Shaw, four rounds.

Golden City Arena, Coney Island—Young Sorchet vs. Nat Rocco, Georgie La France vs. Marty Rose, six-round bouts. Seven four-round bouts.

THOMPSON ENTERS TENNIS SEMI-FINAL

Eliminates Povey in 36-Game Two-Set Match in Public Courts Tournament.

The semi-final bracket of the Greater New York Public Courts tennis tournament yesterday was completed when Edward H. Burns Sr. and William Thompson, both members of the Westminster Tennis Club, took their fourth-round matches at the Kingston Courts, Brooklyn. Dick Winfield, defending champion and Ben Brownstein, Brooklyn Public Parks champion, entered the last four on Wednesday in straight-set victories.

Both of yesterday's winners engaged in exceptional matches. Thompson, third seeded man, and Stanley Povey, also of the Westminster club, played a two-set match that required 36 games. The score was 14–12, 6–4. In beating Sidney Kahn, local ranked player, Burns was extended to three sets, 0–6, 6–3, 6–3.

Kahn started off well and was successful in his first set, winning at love from his rival. He played every shot right up to net and choked off any returns with a hard, accurate overhead smash which ended the volley. Burns, meanwhile, contented himself with a back-court stand.

With the first set tucked away so decisively and an ending of the match in sight, Kahn was forced to give up his effective style when his opponent took over the attack and would not relinquish it. Burns's net attack lasted longer than the one Kahn had offered. The Westminster veteran played the ball hard and kept forcing the play, while his younger rival took the defensive.

The last two sets of the match went to Burns at 6–3, with Kahn failing to show the power he had exhibited for his first-set victory.

KYNASTON ELIMINATES BURNS IN FOUR SETS

Lewis Defeats Fisher in Last Quarter-Final Match of Richmond County Play.

Percy L. Kynaston of Rockville Centre and Richard Lewis of Staten Island advanced in the Richmond County tennis singles championship held yesterday at the courts of the Clifton Tennis Club, Arrochar, S. I. Both eliminated players were seeded.

Kynaston, first seeded entry, defeated Edward Burns of the Crescent Club in four sets. Burns was erratic in the opening set and Kynaston's steadiness proved his rival's undoing. In the second set Burns released a series of brilliant service aces and, with Kynaston ever on the defensive, ran out at 6—4.

The third set was hotly contested, with the issue always in doubt, but the defending champion's ability to keep the ball in play triumphed and he ran out in the tenth game. After the intermission Burns could not find his stride and Kynaston carried the match at 6–2, 4–6, 6–4, 6–2.

In the last quarter-final match of the tournament Dick Lewis, last year's runner-up, eliminated Kenneth Fisher, New Rochelle veteran, in straight sets. Fisher could not cope with the consistent steadiness of his opponent and lost at 6–4, 6–2. Lewis meets Russel Phillips tomorrow for the right to oppose Kynaston in the final on Saturday.

MISS TURPIE GAINS GOLF SEMI-FINALS

Defeats Mrs. Hynes by 6 and 4 in Trans-Mississippi Tourney at Denver.

Special to The New York Times.

DENVER, Col., July 18.—Miss Marian Turpie of New Orleans and Mrs. O. S. Hill of Kansas City, favorites in the women's trans-Mississippi golf tournament, won their way to the semi-finals today in easy fashion. Miss Turpie played the same steady brand of golf that won her the medal honors and easily disposed of Mrs. I. S. Hynes, St. Louis district champion, 6 and 4.

Mrs. Hynes was not up to her best game, but it would have taken more than that for her to win. Mrs. Hill won as she pleased from Miss Mary Petrikin of Denver, 7 and 6. Mrs. Hill was playing brilliantly although not up to her record-breaking round of Wednesday when she had a 73.

Miss Phyllis Buchanan of Denver and Miss Ann Kennedy of Tulsa staged the only real match today, the former winning, 2 and 1. The final break came when Miss Kennedy pitched her approach into a trap. Miss Ruth Replogle of Oklahoma City won from Mrs. A. E. Hardick of Joplin, one of Horton Smith's pupils, 7 and 5. Miss Replogle astonished tournament followers by her game.

Miss Turpie meets Miss Buchanan tomorrow and Mrs. Hill will oppose Miss Replogle.

VOIGT'S 71 CAPTURES MEDAL AT BUFFALO

Is Only Player in Field of 150 to Break Par in Country Club's Invitation Golf.

Special to The New York Times.

BUFFALO, N. Y., July 18.—George Voigt, North and South champion, carried off medal honors in the qualifying round of the Country Club's twentieth annual international invitation tournament today. Voigt was the only one in the field of 150 to break par, scoring a fine 71.

Al Hakes, Wanakah star, was runner-up, getting 73. Paul Hyde, Buffalo district champion; F. G. Hoblitzel, Toronto, and Leo Shea of South Shore, tied at 74.

Voigt's card, marked by birdies on the second, third, seventh and eighth holes, follows:

Out	4	4	3	4	4	4	3	5	36
In	4	4	3	5	4	4	4	4	35—71

German Knocks Out Bellandra.

TROY, N. Y., July 18 (AP).—Joe Reno, Trenton, N. J., won a decision over Mike Denton, California, in the main ten-round bout tonight. Joe Gorman, New York, knocked out Tony Bellandra, Staten Island, in the ninth round of the semi-final.

Reynolds in Wrestling Victor.

CLEVELAND, July 18 (AP).—Jack Reynolds, welterweight wrestler, defeated Basanta Singh of India in two straight falls at Taylor Bowl tonight. Singh was downed the first time in 22 minutes and 14 seconds. Reynolds won the next fall in 7½ minutes.

JUNIOR POLO PLAY WILL START TODAY

Cleveland and Rumson Quartets Clash in First Match at Rumson Country Club.

Play will open this afternoon on Herbert Field at the Rumson Country Club in the first of the season's national polo championships—the junior championship, open to teams whose total handicap does not exceed twenty goals. Starting time and the line-ups for this afternoon's game and the others in the championship have been announced by the United States Polo Association.

The play today, and on all weekdays, will start at 5:15 o'clock, Daylight Saving Time, with Saturday and Sunday games starting at 4 o'clock. The first of the Western fours, whose entry featured this year's record total of eight teams, goes into action this afternoon, the Cleveland aggregation riding against a strong Rumson team. Edwin Stewart, who has handled Rumson polo games for some years, will be the tournament referee.

A last minute shift in the make-up of two teams sent Raymond Guest, younger brother of Winston, to the Rumson line-up instead of the Greentree team.

In Guest's place on the Greentree line-up will be young William Post, Princeton player. With Raymond Guest on the Rumson team will be three experienced players, Gerald Balding, W. Strother Jones Jr. and Benjamin K. Gatins. They are apt to prove a hard team for the Cleveland four, which will line up with T. H. White, Holden White, former Harvard player, and the two Firestones, Leonard and Raymond, who have been playing with Princeton.

Tomorrow the United States Army will send its new quartet into action against the mid-West team and games on Monday and Tuesday will bring the tournament down to the semi-final round. On Sunday, a start will be made in the Herbert Memorial Cup tournament, which is to be run off with the same teams competing. Tickets for each day's games will be obtainable at the gate.

English Cricket.

LONDON, July 18 (Canadian Press).—First-class cricket matches in England today produced a fine crop of centuries. Heading the big scorers was Jack Hobbs, the noted batsman, who hit up 204 for Surrey against Somerset. Shepherd, also of Surrey, scampered 131 and was not out. Three centuries came out of the match between Yorkshire and Glamorgan. They were: Barber, 114; Oldroyd, 168, and Greenwood, 104, not out. The three batsmen played for Yorkshire. Grcom batted out 131, not out, for Warwickshire against Northamptonshire.

Scores when play ceased today were:

Gentlemen vs. Players at Lord's: Players, 253 and 29 for no wickets; Gentlemen, 158 and 319 (Freeman, five wickets for 103).

Surrey vs. Somersetshire at Kennington Oval: Somerset, 363 and 161 for one wicket (Eyres, 57, not out); Surrey, 555 for four wickets, declared (Sandham, 74; Ducat, 63).

Lancashire vs. South Africa at Liverpool: Lancashire, 324; South Africa, 218 (Siedle, 64; Iddon, five wickets for 34).

Why pay $75 for a suit?

Long experience as tailors has taught us that with the present cost of materials and labor $75 is the lowest price at which a really economical suit can be sold.

You can buy a cheaper suit, of course, but it will cost you more to wear. D'Andrea Brothers sell looks and length of satisfactory service rather than first price.

THE MAYOR ACCEPTS.

The 682 "non-partisan committeemen" shared with the rest of us a feeling of certainty that Mayor WALKER would announce yesterday his willingness to stand for another term. In fact, because Mr. WALKER was about twenty-five minutes late, many telegrams and letters congratulating him on his decision, and timed to reach him after the end of his speech, actually were piled on his desk while Mr. HECKSCHER was enumerating the forty reasons. But in what new and gracious manner would the Mayor utter his foreshadowed assent?

Mr. WALKER did not disappoint his eagerly expectant hearers. At the very end of an address, made up of the clarity and boldness which are so familiar to his audiences, he smiled and softly asked a rhetorical question. "Who could say 'No'?" will go down as one of the most felicitous of the phrases d'occasion of Prince Charming. Beside it the customary "I accept" is harsh and cold, and the contrariwise "I do not choose to run" is repellant. Contrast it with what Coriolanus said as he stood among the citizens of Rome to ask for the consulship:

> You know the cause, sir, of my standing here. Mine own desert, sir, and not mine own desire.

The Mayor is too skilled a public speaker to have repeated all forty of the exploits ascribed to him by Mr. HECKSCHER; he accepted the credit without enumeration. On two points he was especially interesting—the five-cent fare and the funds for his program of expansion. Economists may groan over both, but the charmed citizenry will dance the saraband around such a Mayor. He believes "in doing the things" that need to be done and worrying "about getting the money afterward." Mr. WALKER understands the five-cent fare to have been guaranteed in perpetuity to citizens who moved out into the suburbs on that assurance; any deficit resulting, necessarily made up by taxing those same outlying citizens on their dwelling places, is for economists to wrinkle their brows over. If you take money out of one pocket and put part of it back in another, who notices the loss? Not those who were cheering in the Council Chamber.

It will be time hereafter to weigh the points made by the committee chairman and to give ear to what Mr. WALKER'S opponents, if any, have to say about these things. Of yesterday's proceedings as Casca once remarked to Brutus:

> It was mere foolery, I did not mark it. I saw Marc Antony offer him a crown—yet 'twas not a crown, neither; 'twas one of these coronets.

RUMORS IN MANCHURIA.

Part of the penalty which China has to pay for her short-sighted policy of trying to control the news and to force out correspondents whose dispatches displease Nanking is that the outside world is flooded with rumors about Chinese affairs, some of them obviously prejudiced and others probably untrue. Censors have prevented the trustworthy news associations from sending full stories from China. Several correspondents best fitted by background and knowledge to report the present Manchurian crisis are in the bad graces of the Chinese authorities.

In the absence of authoritative reports from China there is a glut of stories from neighboring countries, with Russian news in the van. The Soviet Russians, skillful in propaganda, seek to place China in an unhappy and undignified position. The versions from Japan naturally are colored by the keen interest which Japan has in the Manchurian problem. Censorship within Manchuria itself has had the usual result of allowing wild rumors to receive credence in the absence of disproof.

Persons who have followed Manchurian matters closely during recent years are inclined not to take too seriously the rumors of war and of the movements of troops. Doubtless Chinese guards have been sent along the right of way of the Chinese Eastern Railway as far as the Siberian border at Manchuli. Doubtless also the Russians driven out of North Manchuria, together with guards sent to protect them and to guard Russian railway property, have been massing on the border. But this does not mean that war is inevitable. The Soviet Russians and the Chinese are past masters in the great game of bluff.

As the nation most immediately concerned with the possible outcome of the Russo-Chinese quarrel Japan is anxious to do what she can to compose the difficulties. It is not improbable that, through her recent friendship with Russia, and through the known partiality of the new Japanese Government for the Chinese Nationalists, she will be able to mediate. Certainly it is to her interest to do so.

The outside world is also interested in a settlement, not so much because of the case itself as because of the precedent which it may set that may be used against foreigners in general. Whatever degree of control the Nationalists have maintained over internal affairs in China, they have been successful in depriving the foreigners of many of their rights. The present trend is in the direction of the good old days when foreigners were refused recognition as equals by the Chinese and had to fight to obtain the right to pursue their peaceful business within Chinese territories. That China would sooner or later take over the improvements in the form of railroads like the Chinese Eastern, cities like the English concession in Hankow, and other similar products of Western initiative and capital, has long been admitted. But it had been the hope of foreigners that they would receive due compensation. Perhaps in time they will. But the arbitrary procedure in connection with the Chinese Eastern indicates that in their desire to oust foreigners the Chinese are little disposed to live up to formal obligations entered into in good faith and with open eyes by previous governments in China.

LABOR PEERS.

Some have come to believe that the perennially proposed "reform" of the House of Lords is about as lingering and humorous as the still more widely advocated "reform" of the weather. Without dipping into ancient history, it may be mentioned that in the last Parliament plans were offered to give Labor a larger representation without surrendering its opposition to the "hereditary principle." Nothing was done. A future Labor Government could take up the matter in its own way. In his first Administration Mr. MACDONALD made but a handful of Peers, every one without children. He is thought to need a few more. Exactly why it is a little hard to see.

The argument that the few Labor spokesmen in The Lords need the encouragement of greater numbers of supporters looks rather thin. The Commons is the head shop. So far as political power is concerned, what the Duke of WELLINGTON told "TOM" CREEVEY a hundred-odd years ago is a good deal truer than it was then: "Nobody cares a damn for the House of Lords." Aside from its members by birth, many of whom seldom or never come to "the dormitory," and the Spiritual Lords who will disappear when Disestablishment, now seriously spoken of even by Bishops, comes, it is a chamber of notables, eminencies plutocrats, retired statesmen who have had enough, campaign fund "angels."

No ambitious politician wants to be sentenced to it. At present the only Peers for life are certain Judges. For years The London Times has been urging that this restriction be removed. This would be for the benefit of all parties, and especially of the Labor Party. The lugubriously named "dissolution honors" conferred by the late Conservative Government remind us that there are still persons who like a "handle" to their names. It will be singular if the Labor Party, among whose supporters are some purple aristocrats, doesn't manifest the social aspirations of its older rivals. If The Lords is Conservative, Mr. LLOYD GEORGE has been one of the most active of peer-makers. Mr. MACDONALD has more momentous matters to think about; and a sort of proportionate representation of parties in a House which can never be on an equality with the popular branch may not deeply engage his attention.

In a letter to The London Times Mr. A. F. POLLARD, the historian of Parliament, objects to more Peers. Formerly, lack of ancestors was thought a disqualification for the Peerage. "Lack of children is the "most ridiculous qualification ever "required of an occupant of a Min"isterial bench." Then he dips into the precedents:

> The requirement of the Peerage itself has not even the merit of antiquity. Every one knows that Sir THOMAS MORE presided over the House of Lords as Lord Chancellor without ever being a Peer; as late as the eighteenth century Sir NATHAN WRIGHT held the same post for five years; and even Sir FREDERICK SMITH and Sir JOHN SANKEY were Lord Chancellors and sat as such before they were admitted to the House of Lords. Moreover, a sixteenth century act of Parliament (31 Henry VIII, c. 10), still, I think, unrepealed, provided that Secretaries of State and other members of the government might sit and speak in the House of Lords.
>
> The Lord Keeper of the Great Seal was not necessarily a Peer. Lord Keeper WRIGHT was the Speaker of the House of Lords. So far as Sir NATHAN is concerned, Mr. POLLARD'S argument is weakened by the fact that the former merely presided, but wasn't permitted to speak or vote. Still we cling fondly to 31 Henry VIII, c. 10. In the last Parliament Lord BUCKMASTER tried to persuade the government to pass a resolution enabling a government in office to "appoint people to assist "in Your Lordship's House in order "that their bills might be properly "presented." Lord DARLING has instanced legislative chambers where a Minister, familiar with a government measure, takes charge of it while it is under consideration by the chamber of which he is not a member. If Mr. POLLARD is right, new Peers, "life or lifeless," are superfluous. Any member of the government in the Commons has a right to sit in the other House.

ORGANIZED MINORITIES.

One of the great questions in Europe since the war has been how to prevent minorities from being oppressed. In the United States the difficulty has been to prevent minorities from oppressing the rest of us. This subject is touched upon by ex-President COOLIDGE in his article printed in The American Magazine for August. Explaining why the President has come more and more to stand as the exponent and defender of the rights of the whole country, he declares that this is partly because in "hours of timid"ity the Congress becomes subser"vient to the importunities of organ"ized minorities." Mr. COOLIDGE goes on to say that the organizing of such minorities has "come to be a well-recognized industry at Washington." Funds are collected, skilled men are employed, publicity is engineered, petitions and appeals are printed and poured in a deluge over Senators and Representatives. By contrast, the people of the country in general appear to be "formless and inarticulate." The ex-President thinks that "against a compact and well-drilled "minority they do not appear to be "very effective."

Mr. COOLIDGE apparently did not think it advisable to name names. Nor did he specify the causes and movements which have been pressed to more or less success by means of organizations representing only a minority of the citizens. His readers will know how to supply the lacking particulars. But the general observations and conclusions of the ex-President in this matter are borne out not only by his experience but by that of hundreds in Washington. Many a vocal and pushing minority has won the ear of Congress more often than it should. It has made clever use of ingenious devices to cause Congressmen to believe that their constituents are deeply interested in some project or bill or constitutional amendment. While the majority go about their business in silence the loud minority assumes that it is the true voice of the people. The whole situation recalls BURKE'S figure about the chirping crickets in the meadow and the stolid ox under the British oak. But when the crickets are well organized and adroitly led, Congress has an unfortunate habit of dancing to their chirping.

THE SKY THE LIMIT.

Chicago said the first word in skyscrapers. Is she to say the last? The Home Insurance Building, the Rookery Building and the Tacoma Building, all erected in the early '80s, were monuments to those who pioneered in structural steel. In later years New York outstripped her rival. Today she has 188 buildings more than twenty stories high to Chicago's 65. The Woolworth Building, with its 792 feet, is still the tallest here, although the Chrysler Building and the Bank of Manhattan Building will soon top it. Some weeks ago plans were announced for a Chicago skyscraper to be known as the Crane Tower, which will rise 1,022 feet above the ground. A recent dispatch from Chicago states that the City Council has now taken the lid off the zoning ordinance there, which will hereafter permit buildings to rise 440 feet sheer without setbacks, leaving the sky the only limit on towers.

Chicago architects are organizing to fight this amendment, which seems to have been put through with scant public consideration. They fear that it will bound Michigan Boulevard and Wacker Drive and other important thoroughfares by a Chinese wall, depriving neighboring buildings of light and air and tending to increase congestion. The effect on traffic will not be so great as it would be had Chicago been less foresighted in the business of planning. Her boulevards and two-level streets and "superhighways" and advanced traffic regulations have been the envy of other cities. She has even been experimenting lately, and apparently successfully, with bridges and elevated arcades for pedestrians. The first of these links the new Chicago Daily News skyscraper with the Northwestern Railroad terminal across Canal Street. Thousands of commuters have found this bridge so useful that it is now proposed to carry it over streets and through skyscrapers for three-quarters of a mile to the State Street shopping centre.

New York with her subways and vehicular tunnel led the way under ground. Chicago with her up-to-date traffic ways has shown her sister cities how to go about planning in the plane. Which one will develop the mastery of the perpendicular, in which they have been friendly rivals? There, too, New York can claim to be a pioneer, for although Chicago built the first skyscraper, it was this city which discovered in zoning a practical device for curbing unrestricted building.

LAWYERS AND THE BENCH.

There is unusual significance in the action of Governor ROOSEVELT accepting the offer of the two bar associations of this city to aid him in passing upon the disclosures affecting Judge MANCUSO in connection with the recent scandalous bank failure. This does not mean a wish on the part of the Governor to avoid his official responsibility. It merely implies his desire to profit by expert aid in a special and difficult inquiry. More is involved than a plain question of the law. Some of the nicest distinctions of legal ethics will have to be considered. Then there is the almost impalpable but highly important element of popular confidence in a judge. How seriously has this been shaken in the present instance? Who is to decide whether a man on the bench has so conducted himself off it as to impair the respect and trust which are indispensable for a judge?

On all these matters having to do with the Mancuso case, it seems clear that the opinions of lawyers ought to be more intelligent and impressive than those of other men. The profession has the best means of putting the right estimate on an occupant of the bench. Lawyers ought to be, and usually are, extremely sensitive to anything which may properly be used as a reproach to the judiciary in any of its branches. Some such feeling must have been in the minds of the officers of the City Bar Association and of the County Lawyers Association when they made their proffer of help to Governor ROOSEVELT. They must feel that they are doing something not merely for the honor of their profession but for the public good, and doing it with a knowledge of both law and judicial propriety, and a jealous regard for the reputation of the bench, which few in the community can command so well as they can. It is a form of service to the Commonwealth which ought not to pass without recognition and approval.

THE WORLD AWHEEL.

The world has not yet attained the ability of which the president of one of the Western State universities boasted a few years ago—for his own State—to empty itself of all its men, women and children in one day by automobile. Probably any State in the United States would be able to achieve this, if the roads would hold the cars, except Texas, and that would not be for want of cars, but because of the distance from its centre to any point in its circumference. The story is still told to newcomers that the town named Echo on one side of the State was given its name because it takes even an echo all night to travel back across the State from the mountains on the farther border.

It would take more than ten times the present motor capacity to make such a provision for the rest of the world. The ratio for the United States is reckoned to be one car for every 4.87 persons, while for the world as a whole it is one for sixty-one. The point of motor saturation, which has obviously not been reached even in America, is so far away in such countries as Arabia, for example, where the ratio is one car to 75,000 (or about a hundred cars in all) as to be economically unattainable, but there is not one of these countries in which the automobile has not made its entrance, from Alaska to the Yemen and from Iceland to Papua in New Guinea.

It is interesting to imagine how history would have been changed if man had attained such a state of mobility earlier. A day's journey in ancient times was from fifteen to thirty miles, according to whether one traveled in caravan or with the speed of a courier. Man's mobility has now been multiplied by at least ten, and if the general state of mobility is indicative of the degree of civilization, then America is not only first, but is doing most to lift the level in other lands. According to the tables published in THE NEW YORK TIMES of July 15, the percentage of American automobiles in service throughout the world is so high as to give it a place as civilizer above all others. Even in British East Africa it has supplied from 75 to 85 per cent of the cars, in British and Italian Somaliland from 100 to 90 per cent and 80 per cent in Afghanistan. Like the wheels of the vision of EZEKIEL, they are as things possessing intelligence unto whom it was cried "O Wheel."

THE TWO-JOB WOMAN.

Housewives who work in offices, factories and shops are busy women, probably too occupied with their duties at home and outside it to give a thought to the forthcoming census. Miss MARY ANDERSON, chief of the Women's Bureau of the United States Department of Labor, does some of their thinking for them on such matters as their status in the eyes of the government, and she is indignant at the prospect of their exclusion from the forthcoming count. A census on unemployment, to be accurate and usable, should certainly include all persons who customarily work at gainful occupations. Whether they are men or women, married or unmarried, ought to make no difference. Nor should it alter their position as workers if they also work at home after the factory whistle blows at night.

Among the directors of the census there appear to be some who still cherish the notion that a housewife who works outside her home does so in order to have a little money to throw away on high-heeled slippers and French perfumes. They visualize her husband as a hard-working slave who provides her and the children with all necessities, while she, seeking variety from the monotony of housework as well as "pin money," fosters in her frivolous heart the desire for knickknacks. The trifles which she actually buys with her money consist of food, clothes for the family and other useful articles. Her earnings go into the family budget, and she works because the family needs more money than the father brings in. If she happens to be out of work temporarily, she should be counted in the census as among the unemployed and not as a housewife who has the single job of keeping the home, looking after the children and making a small salary go just a little further than it should.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Clean Beaches and Popular Demand.

Once more we witness the strange coincidence of cleanliness on the beaches following closely upon attacks on the methods of disposing of garbage and refuse. This time The Brooklyn Eagle has taken the lead. As usual, the authorities and the representatives of the towing companies have been grieved at the suggestion that the barges have not been emptied at the prescribed twenty miles off shore. The old scapegoats have been solemnly passed in review—southerly winds, ocean liners, local dumping practices, unusual tides and all the other alibis.

However, as has happened on other occasions when public indignation has been roused, the waters have been surprisingly clean and free from refuse during and after the campaign. The mystery is thus deepened, for to the inability of the authorities to divine whence came the filth is the inability of the public to understand whence came relief.

To cynics the problem remains simple and clear. If the beaches are fouled when the scows dump at the prescribed limit of twenty miles, that limit should be extended. If they dump within it, the contractors should be severely punished. If there is any doubt about the source of the garbage, it can best be dispelled by hastening the day when the dumping system is abolished and incinerators are used.

A Welcome Visitor.

The Earl of DERBY is entitled to a holiday for the services he has rendered the British Empire and the cause of peace. Americans will be pleased to know that he is coming over here for the first time in thirty-six years to have a look at racing. It was in 1780 that the twelfth Earl of DERBY in the Stanley line gave his name to the particular race which has its American analogue in the Kentucky classic for 3-year-olds each Spring.

While the recreational side of life connects Lord DERBY with horse racing and hats, there are few more distinguished or more beloved citizens of the empire. He has been Lord Mayor of Liverpool and Chancellor of its university. He was private secretary to Lord ROSEBERY, the immortal Boss. He was Secretary of State for War and President of the Army Council from 1916 to 1918 and Ambassador to France in the trying days from 1918 to 1920. He is the democratic ideal of the first rank of English nobility, with traditions maintained from the days when MARMION'S last words were: "On, Stanley, on!"

Americans will find him without that portentous solemnity which characterizes many whom nations have honored. The French were inclined to marvel at the quickness and sureness of his decision in conference. "I'll tell you why they think that," said Lord DERBY to a friend. "They address me in French, which I understand. But I permit the interpreter to go ahead while I am thinking of my reply. By the time he has finished I or any one else would be ready. Did you ever notice how long an interpreter takes?"

Breaking In the New Bills.

It would seem that the new bills are not like the old bills—to the tellers in the banks. Banking opinion is said to be 5 to 1 against them. They have, it seems, an unkind way of slipping out of touch in counting a bundle of currency.

This complaint can be only temporary. In a short time it will be as easy to handle the new sizes as the old ones. People will learn how to fold them conveniently for carrying, and bank employes will solve the difficulty that comes from two different kinds of notes.

In Europe—and especially in England—our American notes are thought confusing to handle because the denominations are all printed on paper of the same size. European currencies make a connection—slight, to be sure—between the value of the banknote and its size.

We in this country have so long been accustomed to distinguish bills by their markings that the European complaint seems unreasonable. The only exception is, perhaps, the much-debated two-dollar bill is so often confused with the one-dollar. The new twos have a large engraving of Monticello on the back which should make them sufficiently distinct, and remove a part, at least, of the curse under which they have long rested.

Clothes and the Man.

A man may dress as he likes provided "he doesn't make a song about it," according to an article on dress reform for men in The Saturday Review. Ambassador DAWES supplies an apt example. At a luncheon in Vintners' Hall he wore a "gray tropical-weight suit," while most of the distinguished guests at his table wore conventional morning attire. England was "interested" but not at all distressed.

The Men's Dress Reform party in England is making more of a song about their efforts toward comfortable dress. But they are not carrying it off nearly so well. At a rally to celebrate three weeks of existence only about a hundred reformers showed up. This number included several schoolboys and a number of ladies.

All varieties of costumes for men were paraded on the platform. The most radical consisted of corduroy shorts and a pullover. The conservative extreme was represented by a suit "reminiscent of Mr. Pickwick." One advocate of radical changes tacitly admitted that it would take courage to adopt the costume he advised, for he suggested the slogan "Clothes fit for heroes to wear."

One ardent reformer who attended the meeting in shorts slunk in under a protecting mackintosh, in spite of the heat. "Making a song about it" doesn't seem the proper tack. Rather let time and temperature counsel gradual changes, as in the case of, say, a Wall Street banker. Fifty years ago he wore a black suit and high hat in the hottest weather; now he wears a "tropical-weight" suit of light color and a straw hat.

Viva Italia!

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Contrary to much that is said of Italy outside of Italy, I find in my six weeks' sojourn here from Naples to Venice and in Italian Tyrol, that:

The water is excellent.
There are no fleas.
Nearly every one can speak English or French.
Every one is polite and smiling.
Italians are efficient.
The cities are clean.
Their sleeping cars, first or second class, are more comfortable than and as clean as the American Pullman.
The hotel service is the dernier cri in comfort and individual treatment.
Good wine is not cheap.
Taxi drivers are excellent chauffeurs.
Railway porters and conductors try to be as helpful as possible.
You don't have to eat spaghetti or noodles at every meal.
Every one seems happy.
There are no beggars.

History Repeating Itself.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In their speeches commemorating the seventy-fifth anniversary of the birth of the Republican party at Jackson, Mich., July 6, Secretary of Agriculture Arthur M. Hyde and Dr. Hubert Work, chairman of the Republican National Committee, "called upon the American citizenry to abjure liquor and lend their moral as well as their physical support to President Hoover in his efforts to enforce the Volstead act."

Similar appeals were made in behalf of the stamp act of King George III in 1765, and in behalf of the fugitive slave law in the years preceding the Civil War.

Neither Secretary Hyde nor Dr. Work had a word to say urging respect for and enforcement of the Fourteenth and Fifteenth Amendments or any other part of the Constitution. Apparently the Eighteenth Amendment is not only paramount but the only portion of the Constitution to which any interest attaches.

GYPSY SONG.

I live where dusky olives grow,
Where myriad flowers faintly blow
Exotic breath with every breeze
That sways Sevillian orange trees.

Oh, I have sipped old Cádiz wine,
And had my fill of love divine;
I've crossed my palm by witch-moon pale,
That lovers may read my every tale.

I wander at will through scented glooms;
With satyrs than men I'm more at home.
Just this I ask of my guiding Fate—
Blue sky, green trees and my gypsy mate.

IRELAND MOVING FORWARD.

There Were Reasons for Delay in Overcoming National Aloofness.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In a recent dispatch to THE TIMES under the caption "Ireland Now Seeks Contacts" the correspondent states that "Ireland, to a greater degree than other countries, has suffered from a policy of national isolation and aloofness dictated by a narrow, perverted idea of patriotism, a brand of patriotism which, though not so pernicious as that described by Dr. Johnson as 'the last refuge of the scoundrel,' must still be held responsible for the division between the North and South today and for many difficulties the Free State is encountering in establishing her place among the nations of the world."

It must seem to those who know Ireland and her past that this statement requires some modification.

It is to be remembered that Ireland has not been a wholly independent country since the twelfth century. Her "policies" from that time until the most recent period have not been freely in her own hands. Her record, however, prior to the twelfth century, and especially during the medieval period, when she was known as the head of the "Gaelic nation," shows anything but an "aloof and isolated policy." Instead, it exhibits her as being widely in touch with every community on the Continent. More appropriately, therefore, it might be said that Ireland is now finding a freer hand to re-establish her long-broken contacts with other nations, and to exercise again her natural vigorous tendencies toward such.

It was precisely Ireland's prosperity, due to her successful and widespread trade communications with Continental countries during the Middle Ages, which made her appear a tempting morsel as well as dangerously powerful and illustrious to the Norman adventurers, who at last invaded her eastern provinces after the wedge was entered through the charter drawn up between the traitor Dermod MacMurrough and Henry II in the twelfth century.

During the succeeding centuries Ireland's relations with her English neighbor were unassimilable politically, though not wholly so socially. To go no further into the unhappy vicissitudes and distractions of native conditions which these centuries represent as they progressed into our modern period, it may be said that no nation can express its own policies or develop generously or creatively in respect of enterprise when under unwelcome and incompatible domination, whether this is accepted or resisted. Regardless, however, of the material domination over her, which became the fact, Ireland retained her individuality of national spirit, too anciently rooted in its tradition for any power to kill. Today's international tendency, fortunately, is no longer to crush such a valuable spirit, but to cooperate with it toward a universal benefit.

Nations find it difficult to clear up the messes their ancestors have made for them, and the results of wrongs these have done to each other, and it must be an ungenerous person who now doubts that it is with a friendly will on both sides that the enterprise of the Saorstatt Eireann is being administered. Nations which have gone through a long period of incompatible relations must find themselves at last involved in snarls of conditions which cannot readily be smoothed out. The whole economic, social and industrial life of the peoples concerned has, in respect of many elements, become intertwined in the course of a long-protracted relationship, no matter how incompatible, and at last innumerable questions of rights on both sides come into almost inextricable conflict. This is as a layman sees it, inexpert in politics, but looking on; and to such it must seem that in accord with our modern groping tendencies toward cooperation and arbitration as the way out of snarls, political as well as social and domestic, the present process of adjustment adopted by England and Ireland is a constructive way calculated to bring good results, however slow its steps may appear, or accompanied by certain—perhaps inevitable and justifiable—compromises.

To and on a pleasanter note, THE TIMES correspondent speaks of the plans of Mr. McGilligan, Minister of External Affairs, to establish closer relations for Ireland with other nations, and of his establishment already of a number of new legations abroad. This is but another of the manifestations one is seeing on every hand of new, buoyant, healthy Irish enterprise, intellectual and commercial. It promises well for renewal—on, of course, an increased modern scale—of Ireland's former trade and general foreign relations when her medieval handicraft products, linen, wool and leather, were sought by the gentlefolk of the Provençal, Italy and Spain, and when her scholars taught, founded libraries and schools, and as jurists and philosophers discoursed among the savants of learned European groups.

ANNE THROOP CRAIG.
New York, July 15, 1929.

Senator Caraway's Remarks.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Senator Caraway's remarks about the unfitness of Mr. Wickersham as one of the President's instigators because of his opinion that the Volstead act might be modified is very characteristic of the attitude of the unthinking drys. "Nobody believes Mr. Wickersham capable of an impartial survey of the prohibition question," says Senator Caraway.

The implication is plain that if Mr. Wickersham upon investigation does not agree with the Senator, he can't be impartial. It harkens back to the Inquisition, and one wonders how any man with Senator Caraway's apparent type of mind gets to be a Senator. At least he will have the hearty support of a hundred thousand bootleggers.

EDITOR SAYS PRESS UNITES AMERICA

PARTY TO RETURN TONIGHT

The rôle of newspapers in unifying America was especially impressive to Dr. Alfred Bihlmans, chief of the press section of the Latvian Ministry, he told the guests at a luncheon at the Newspaper Club yesterday for the group of foreign editors who have been touring America. The luncheon, in the club's rooms at 136 West Forty-second Street, was a farewell event for the visitors, who spent sixty days studying America under the auspices of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace.

Advertising was credited equally with editorial content in the work of unification between States and social classes by Dr. Bihlmans, who is one of Europe's leading statesmen and writers.

"The newspapers, through bridging social classes and keeping all the people equally informed," he said, "continually make America a greater unit. Also, they are introducing Europe to America in a manner which we hope to use to introduce America to Europe."

Georges Lechartier, editor of the Journal des Débats of Paris and himself a member of the Carnegie committee, who previously had repeatedly expressed the party's thanks for courtesies shown in America, added to that thought yesterday the observation that the frequently heard comment that New York is not representative of America is not true.

"In its bigness, its magnificence and its art New York is truly expressive of the country over which we have traveled in all directions," he declared.

Kasimir Smogorzewski, editor of the Warsaw (Poland) Courier, whose English is limited to what he has learned on the trip, was invited to speak in French. Language limitations also kept A. Corneanu, editor of the Argus, Bucharest, Rumania, and Conte Leone Fumasoni Biondi, editor of Corriere della Serra, Milan, Italy, from making any extended remarks.

Last minute invitations kept the five other members of the party from attending the affair, at which some thirty-five members of the club acted as hosts.

Louis W. Fehr, president of the club, greeted the editors in the name of "New York's working newspaper men who are so occupied that they have no leisure or opportunity to send forth welcoming committees."

The party will sail for Europe tonight on the Carouia.

ROOSEVELT TO BE SPEAKER.

Will Address State Federation of Labor at Syracuse, Aug. 20.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., July 18 (AP).—Governor Roosevelt will be one of the speakers at the convention of the New York State Federation of Labor, which will open here Aug. 20. William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, will be one of the speakers.

Others invited to attend include Lieut. Gov. Herbert H. Lehman, Attorney General Hamilton Ward, P. J. Brady, president of the Federation Bank and Trust Company; Miss Frances Perkins, State Industrial Commissioner; George R. Lunn, State Public Service Commissioner, and George L. Berry, president of the Printing Pressmen's and Assistants' Union.

One of the principal subjects discussed will be that of court injunctions in industrial disputes. In his announcement of the convention President John Sullivan stated:

"Undoubtedly the sixty-sixth annual convention will again place at the head of our legislative proposals the bills to abolish ex parte injunctions in industrial disputes and to provide jury trial for those accused of violating injunctions when issued after a hearing in court."

MAY SUCCEED DR. LITTLE.

Dean Ruthven Choice of Michigan Regents, Paper Says.

BAY CITY, Mich., July 18 (AP).—The Bay City Daily Times in a copyrighted article today says Alexander G. Ruthven, dean of administration at the University of Michigan, will be named president of the institution at the meeting Aug. 2 of the board of regents.

The newspaper quotes William L. Clements, one of the regents and a member of the committee of three named to select the new president, as saying the board will vote 6 to 2 in favor of Dean Ruthven.

Mr. Ruthven would succeed Dr. Clarence Cook Little, whose resignation, handed in last January, becomes effective next September.

The statement attributed to Regent Clements states that the committee had given serious consideration to the selection of Dr. Albert W. Jessup, president of the University of Iowa.

WARS ON STREET DEBRIS.

Broadway Association Moves to End Overloading of Trucks.

A check-up on overloaded trucks carrying débris from excavations to the outskirts of the city is now being made by the Broadway Association with a view to ending the scattering of refuse along Broadway and adjoining thoroughfares, according to J. E. Gratke, managing director of the association.

In some instances, Mr. Gratke said, stones weighing more than 750 pounds dropped from overloaded carriers have barely missed passing automobiles or pedestrians. These stones have remained on the streets for several days, endangering traffic, Mr. Gratke declared.

Dust from the same source is a hazard to cleanliness and health, and can be eliminated through more careful trimming of loads, in the opinion of the association.

WIN HONORS AT PURDUE.

Four New York State Students Are on Distinguished Roll.

LAFAYETTE, Ind., July 18.—Four young people from New York have been named on the distinguished student roll at Purdue University for the excellence of work done during the second semester of the 1928-29 school year, it was announced by President Edward C. Elliott.

FORBIDDEN TO HAUL PRIVATE CARS FREE

Railroads Told by I. C. C. That Practice Causes Less and Discrimination.

MILEAGE RUN IS LISTED

Board Points Out That Many Not Connected With Roads Travel In Officials' Coaches.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 18.—The practice of railroads of transporting over their lines free of charge the private cars of other carriers was ended today by an order of the Interstate Commerce Commission, which ruled that in the future adequate charge must be made.

The decision came as the result of study of information submitted at the request of the commission by the railroads for the period from 1923 to 1925 inclusive. This data, the commission said, showed that not only officials, but members of their families, servants and, in many instances, persons not connected with the railroads or families of the officials had benefited by the system.

Sightseeing Trips Listed.

The commission found further that frequently the private cars which were being hauled free were not being used for official business purposes. It pointed out that many thousands of miles had been covered by these cars in sightseeing trips throughout the country and in trips to and from Summer and Winter resorts. Such a practice, the commission held, was not in line with court decisions, which had ruled that one of the fundamental purposes of the law was to "cut up by the roots every form of discrimination, favoritism and inequality."

The main points made by the commission in its decision are:

1. The transportation or movement of private passenger cars, including so-called office cars, by one carrier for another or its officials, free or at other than published tariff rates is contrary to the provisions of the Interstate Commerce act. The assessment of a just and reasonable charge by carriers transporting private cars for others and for services rendered in connection therewith, is not only required by the act, but will be in keeping with efficient and economical management.

2. It is unjustly discriminatory and unduly preferential and prejudicial to haul such private cars of other carriers free or at less than published tariff rates while charging certain minimum fares and revenues for the movement of privately owned or chartered cars.

3. The transportation of persons in private cars, including berth and other accommodations, at the rate charged passengers provided only with ordinary coach accommodations is unjustly discriminatory and unduly preferential and prejudicial.

The commission said a substantial percentage of the occupants of private cars hauled free or at less than tariff rates were business associates, relatives or friends holding tickets which entitled them only to transportation in the ordinary coach.

Cites Miles Traveled.

"A total of 22,391 passenger miles were traveled by such persons in private cars of the Nickel Plate," the commission said, "and a total of 208,203 passenger miles were traveled by such persons in private cars of the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific during the three-year period. The returns of other carriers show similar travel.

"Carriers according passengers the comforts and facilities of private cars, including berth and other accommodations, are treating unequally and unfairly the passengers accorded the ordinary coach facilities but who are charged at the same rate as those traveling in private cars, and they also discriminate against those who pay the surcharge for riding in ordinary sleeping or parlor cars and privately owned or chartered cars alone.

The commission said the carriers would be expected to "cease and desist from the violations of the act herein found," but that in view of the penalties provided for such violations no order was necessary.

Movements to Resorts Large.

The commission said that the movements of private cars to resorts commonly patronized by those seeking recreation or amusement and located on foreign lines were very noticeable.

"For example," it stated, "the total mileage of private cars of other carriers over the Atlantic Coast Line leading to Florida during the three-year period was 436,683 and over the Richmond, Fredericksburg and Potomac it was 227,312. In considering this figure it is to be borne in mind that the latter line is only 116 miles in length.

"The return of the Maine Central shows that the mileage of foreign private cars over that line was 41,324, which is almost twice the mileage of Maine Central private cars on its own line. During the same period private cars of the Maine Central were moved only 2,028 over other lines."

The commission said that the principal objection to a change in the present practice had come from the Association of Railway Executives, who urged that the question whether it was unjustly discriminatory to furnish private car accommodations to invited guests without charge depended upon the circumstances in each individual case.

LOOKS TO END OF STRIKE.

Employers' Delegate Says Irigoyen Has Ordered Men's Readmission.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BUENOS AIRES, July 18.—Although the government has made no announcement regarding measures for avoiding the threatened nation-wide strike, the delegate who represented the Rosario employers at the conference with President Irigoyen and the Labor delegate, has announced a plan for a settlement.

He informed a meeting of employers today that the President had instructed that the strikers should be reinstated and paid wages for the time they were on strike and also that he had ordered the dismissal of non-union men if their presence hindered a settlement.

When the Regional Labor Federation delegate, who attended the conference with the president and the employers' delegate, returned to Rosario, he refused to attend a conference with the employers and denied having attended a presidential conference. General Rosario labor leaders this afternoon stated he was not authorized to represent the strikers. It is still uncertain whether a peaceable settlement will result.

Letzelter, Carnegie Tech Star, Is Appointed to West Point

WASHINGTON, July 18 (AP).—An already famous football player from Carnegie Tech will be available to West Point when the Army eleven of 1929 is selected. Cyril Letzelter of Martins Ferry, Ohio, who starred three years as a back on the strong Carnegie eleven, is a plebe at the military academy. His appointment was made in June by Representative Frank Murphy of Ohio, and his friends here say it was the realization of a long-cherished desire to get a chance to play on the Army eleven and become an officer in the army.

PLANS LOW MAIL RATE FOR FOREIGN PACKAGES

International Postal Union Will Probably Adopt It, American Delegate Says.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 18.—The recommendation of a new merchandise rate which is expected to be of value to American exporters, which would admit to international letter mail merchandise packages weighing not more than two pounds at a rate of 1½ cents an ounce, was the most important accomplishment of the Universal Postal Congress in London, Eugene R. White, superintendent of the International Postal Service and American delegate to the congress, declared today upon his return to Washington.

Mr. White predicted that most of the member nations of the Universal Postal Union would adopt the recommendation. He was accompanied to Washington by Brig. Gen. F. H. Williamson, director of Postal Service for Great Britain, who spent the day here conferring with Postmaster General Brown and other postal officials.

Mr. White said the congress agreed to continue temporarily the regulations adopted two years ago at The Hague conference concerning international air mail handling and rates. Because of the rapid growth of the air mail service throughout the world it was decided not to bind the new arm of transportation by hard and fast rules. Under The Hague agreement each country affiliated with the Universal Postal Union is required to place its own air mail service at the disposal of all other countries on equal terms.

Some of the most important accomplishments of American delegates to the congress, Mr. White asserted, included the blocking of numerous proposals by other nations which would have seriously affected American postal services.

Among these were recommendations proposing a tax on mail received in excess of the volume of outgoing mail, requiring that serial numbers of registered mail should be fixed by a uniform label instead of being stamped, and requiring member stations to charge a registry fee in domestic service not higher than that charged in international service.

WIFE OF EX-CONVICT FREED IN A THEFT

Court Suspends Sentence on Mrs. Gwynne Who Aided State at Trial of Husband.

Judge Collins in General Sessions freed yesterday 19-year-old Ecco Welland Gwyne, wife of an ex-convict, on her guilty plea to petit larceny in the theft last May of a $700 diamond ring from a Fifth Avenue jewelry firm. The court let it be known, however, that he was against granting a suspended sentence and only had done so on the pleas of the prosecutor and others.

The woman was the principal witness for the State at the trial last week in Judge Collins's court of her husband, Edwin C. Gwynne. He was convicted and faces a possible life term as a fourth offender today if a Baumes jury decides he previously had served three felony terms.

She told the jury that Gwynne, whom she married about a year ago when he posed as the son of a wealthy Chicago packer, had threatened her life if she did not fall in with him in a scheme through which the couple defrauded many firms in that city. In each instance she made purchases, using the name of a prominent family in this city or Chicago, and paid for them with bogus checks. Gwynne was with her when she obtained the ring, she alleged.

Assistant District Attorney Robert V. Santangelo, who prosecuted the husband; Alpheus M. Geer of the Marshall Stillman Movement for the redemption of criminals, and Harry Wallach, her lawyer, pleaded for clemency when she was arraigned on a grand larceny indictment charging her with the theft of the $700 ring from Pickslay & Co. in the Sherry Netherland Hotel and two other indictments charging similar offenses, on all three of which the court had accepted a guilty plea to the lesser offense before she testified against her husband.

Mr. Geer told the court that he was willing to supervise the future of the girl. He said that he felt she had been dominated by Gwynne.

Mr. Santangelo told the court that the Tombs physician had reported the woman had tuberculosis and needed treatment by a private physician.

"All right," said the court, "I'll give way," and, turning to the prisoner, he added: "I'll place you under probation, under Mr. Geer's supervision, for two years, but I want to warn you that you had better turn to honest pursuits or you'll go to prison."

The St. Louis Robin, piloted by Dale Jackson and Forest O'Brien, had been up 125 hours at 12:17 P. M. The other ship, piloted by Joseph Hammes and W. Gentry Shelton, had flown twenty-four hours at 10:32 A. M.

GOURAUD REVIEWS PENNSYLVANIANS

French General With Gov. Fisher Sees 10,000 National Guardsmen on Parade.

AIRPLANES TAKE PART

Every Military Branch Except Cavalry Represented in Spectacle at Camp Thompson.

CAMP THOMPSON, Pa., July 18 (AP).—Under the eyes of prominent civil and military authorities, 10,000 manoeuvre-tested National Guardsmen marched over a parade field here today in the first review of the Twenty-eighth Division since its reorganization after the World War.

The troops, seasoned by a four-day "war," were reviewed by Governor Fisher, commander-in-chief of the State's military forces, and the famous French General Henri Etienne Gouraud, "Lion of the Argonne," and others, including Mayor Harry A. Mackey of Philadelphia and Major Gen. Fred W. Sladen, commander of the Third Corps Area.

It was a dusty but dauntless division that filed past the reviewing stand. Returning only this morning from their manoeuvres, the soldiers changed to their dress uniforms and started for the drill field at Colebrook, where the parade was held.

Every branch of modern military life, except cavalry, was represented in the review. While airplanes of the 103d Observation Squadron flew overhead the men began their march past the stand. They marched with bayonets fixed to their rifles, gleaming in the hot sun, and wore the heavy woolen uniform that is regulation parade equipment, despite the heat.

Several thousand spectators lined the reviewing field and broke through the lines several times.

ARMED VOLUNTEERS BARRED IN DRY RAIDS

Order Issued by Doran Follows Killings by Citizen With an Agent in Oklahoma.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 18.—Dr. James H. Doran, Prohibition Commissioner, today sent instructions to all administrators forbidding armed volunteers to accompany prohibition agents in making dry raids. Copies of the order will not be made public for several days. The hiring of special deputies, except under extreme circumstances, Dr. Doran said, was prohibited.

Dr. Doran's new instructions are the outgrowth of the recent epidemic of "prohibition killings" which has added eight names to the prohibition death toll in the past six weeks, four of these killings being at the hands of mixed Federal and civilian raiding parties.

The regulation, which follows by only a few weeks the Treasury order barring the use of the riot guns by prohibition patrolmen assigned to the Canadian-American border, is understood to have been prompted by the recent occurrence at Tecumseh, Okla., on July 4, when Jeff Harris, a voluntary citizen dry raider, accompanied W. W. Thomason, Federal dry agent, on a raid in which two farmers were killed.

Reports to the Treasury disclosed that Jeff Harris had gone to the farm alone and fired shots that resulted in the deaths of James Harris and Oscar Lowry, his brother-in-law, both World War veterans.

Thomason, according to the official reports, headed the raiding party, but disclaimed responsibility for the actions of Jeff Harris and asserted that he was on another farm when the shooting occurred.

"The Oklahoman case was a most regrettable affair," said Dr. Doran. "We have not yet been able to determine just how Jeff Harris happened to join the Thomason raiding party. The information denied that he hired him, but there is no doubt that Harris was there and was armed."

CONCILIATORS GIVE UP IN STREET CAR STRIKE

New Orleans Citizens See No Hope of Settlement as 17th Day of Walkout Passes.

NEW ORLEANS, July 18 (AP).—The New Orleans street car men's strike passed its seventeenth day in stalemate, with union leaders ready to make a major move after an open-air mass meeting tonight to consider a general labor sympathetic walkout.

Tonight the union and company were as far apart as they have been and the citizens' committee, appointed by the Mayor as conciliators, threw up their hands in despair, declaring they saw no hope of an amicable settlement.

Alarmed by the growing car service with non-union labor, union executives will meet in private session to consider the proposal for a general walkout in other industries in an effort to force the Public Service, Inc., to deal with the carmen's union.

Officials of the Public Service said in a statement that the local car men's union was controlled by outsiders and by executives who disregarded contracts and agreements. The company denied being unfriendly to organized labor.

In a counter-statement union officials demanded to know why the company officials would not accept Secretary of Labor Davis as arbiter. "We and the people of New Orleans are entitled to the reason," it added.

W. I. FERRIS'S BODY FOUND.

He Fell Off Yacht in Cold Spring Harbor on July 4.

Special to The New York Times.

HUNTINGTON, L. I., July 18.—Relatives late this afternoon claimed the body of William I. Ferris, vice president of the L. E. Waterman Company, who lived at Westfield, N. J., and who was drowned off his yacht, on July 4, while he was watching the yacht races. His yacht at the time was anchored between Centre Island and Lloyds Neck, in Cold Spring Harbor.

The body was discovered about noon today by Mrs. Willis D. Wood, daughter of Dr. William J. Matheson of Fort Hill, Lloyds Neck, who was cruising in the Sound with a party of friends on the Matheson yacht Seaforth. The body was floating off Lloyds Harbor buoy, about three miles from the Matheson estate. Identification was made by the clothing.

HERZL TERMED EPOCHAL BY DR. WISE IN LONDON

New York Rabbi, in Memorial Address, Says He Dared to Bid the Jew to Be a Jew.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, July 18.—Rabbi Stephen S. Wise of the Free Synagogue, New York City, was cheered tonight in Kingsway Hall when he delivered a dramatic memorial address to Theodore Herzl, champion of Jewish liberty, who died just twenty-five years ago.

When Rabbi Wise arose, after an introduction by Lord Melchett, he declared, seriously:

"Theodore Herzl was one of the few men truly epochal. He was epochal because he dared to bid the Jew to be what, for nearly two millenia he had not dared to be—to be himself, a Jew. And as a result his entire life was given to this cause and he succeeded though he never lived to see the rebuilding of the national home in Palestine.

"Before Herzl came the Jews had been so hurt by the world's ill will that many had denied their own Semitism. Such a denial is infinitely more provocative than a courageous admission. But since Herzl's day there are fewer Jews concealing their Semitism.

"Herzl was a true Messiah, whose great miracle was the helping of people to help themselves.

"I was the last comrade that Herzl talked with. He was a worn and spent man. I asked him whether we could not free him from the necessity of pot-boiling for his Vienna newspaper so that he might devote himself altogether to the Zionist cause.

"'I dare not,' he answered, 'lest it be said I live on Zionism rather than for it. Yet I should be in London, for it is from England that the salvation of the Jewish people will come.'

"Herzl was the most vital figure in Jewish history for centuries and his banner must be borne aloft by all the people of Israel, no matter what their differences."

Nahum Sokolow, Zionist, who has just returned from visiting President Hoover in Washington, delivered an intimate address on Herzl's struggles in Russia. "Herzl," he said, "was not a religious man. He did not know the Talmud—he was religion and a living chapter of Talmud. He always dreamed of going to America, for he felt the great possibilities of Jewish salvation there. But he never had the opportunity."

Other speakers were Sir Herbert Samuel, Joseph Cowen and the Rev. J. K. Goldbloom.

MRS. J. D. WILLIAMS ENDS LIFE WITH GAS

Act Is Laid to Overstrain in Caring for Producer During Illness.

Mrs. John D. Williams, wife of the theatrical producer, committed suicide by inhaling gas last evening in their apartment at 9 East Eighth Street. Her act was attributed to overstrain in caring for her husband through a recent illness.

Carlos Williams, nine-year-old son of the couple, returned home shortly before 9 P. M. to find the apartment permeated by a heavy odor of gas. When he was unable to open the kitchen door he ran downstairs and notified other residents of the building, one of whom entered the kitchen through a window opening on the fire-escape.

Mrs. Williams was slumped on the floor before the stove with a blanket over her head. Dr. Kennedy, an ambulance surgeon from Bellevue Hospital, and a Consolidated Gas Company crew, with pulmotors, endeavored unsuccessfully to revive her.

Mr. Williams, who has not fully recovered from his illness, was asleep in a front room until awakened by the resuscitation work. The odor of gas in the apartment house was so strong that police broke into the apartment on the floor below, only to find that no one was at home.

Mrs. Williams appeared on the stage under the name of Jane Brown before her marriage. She was 29 years old.

BROOKLYN GAS RATE ORDERED REDUCED

Public Service Commission Dismisses Complaint Against Two-Part Charges.

BUT ALSO CALLS FOR CUTS

Old Flat Rate Is Condemned as "Unjust, Unreasonable and Discriminatory."

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, July 18.—The Public Service Commission found today that the flat rate for gas formerly charged by the Brooklyn Borough Gas Company was "unjust, unreasonable and unduly discriminatory." The memorandum of the commission was adopted by the votes of Chairman Prendergast and Commissioners Van Namee and Brewster in the affirmative. Commissioner Pooley was not present, but advised that if he were he would vote for the memorandum. Commissioner Lunn dissented with a memorandum.

The order of the commission is that the complaint against the two-part rate which was instituted on Aug. 1, 1927, should be dismissed and that the company be required to file a schedule containing a charge of $1 for the first 200 cubic feet or less and a commodity charge of 10 cents a hundred cubic feet, applying to all residential and pre-payment meter users, which is a reduction in rate to all consumers, effective Oct. 1, 1929.

On Feb. 18 the commission began hearings in a proceeding initiated upon its own motion. This proceeding is still in progress. "It should therefore be understood," the commission's memorandum declares, "and the commission so declares, that its approval of the present form of schedule of the Brooklyn Borough Gas Company is not to be construed as a general or unconditional endorsement of that form."

The effective rates of the Brooklyn Borough Gas Company were attacked on two grounds: First, that the form of rate is illegal and contrary to the provisions of Subdivision 6 of Section 65 of the Public Service Commission law; second, that, in any event, the initial charge of $1 per month per customer is excessive, and therefore unjust and unreasonable.

The tariff complained of fixed the rate for all domestic consumers of $1 a month for the first 200 feet or less and 11 cents per 100 cubic feet for all gas consumed in excess of 100 cubic feet. The superseded tariff schedule was in block form, the initial rate being $1.20 a 1,000 cubic feet a month, but the first block of such superseded schedule was so large as to constitute practically a flat rate to domestic customers.

"We come then to the question as to whether the initial charge of $1 per month for the first 200 cubic feet of gas, or less, is justified." The memorandum reads, "the statute (Section 65) authorizes a sliding scale of rates, as well as classifications of service based upon the quantity used and other considerations, no exact scientific rate structure has yet been devised for gas companies. The best that can be done is to approximate the ideal by the institution of that form of rate which will yield to the company that reasonable average return upon the value of its property to which it is entitled and at the same time distribute the cost of its service fairly and reasonably among its consumers.

"The flat rate has failed to do this and has been quite generally discarded in favor of the block rate. Under the flat rate, if the consumption was too small, the rate was too low, and if the consumption was large, the rate was too high."

LIQUOR BOAT SEIZED WITH $100,000 CARGO

Nova Scotia Craft Is Captured Near Great Egg Harbor—Crew of Nine Held.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., July 18.—A Diesel motorboat from Nova Scotia, carrying a thousand cases of liquors valued at $100,000, was seized by Coast Guardsmen of the Great Egg Harbor Station this afternoon near Great Egg Harbor Inlet, only a short distance from Guard Headquarters.

The ship and its crew were brought to Atlantic City early tonight and the men were detained on board the craft pending hearings before United States Commissioner Herbert Voorhees.

The owner of the ship and her destination were not ascertained. The ship, apparently recently built, is about 90 feet long. The name Malpa is painted on both sides of the bow, and on the stern the name appears again, with "Nova Scotia" beneath. She carried a crew of nine men.

Coast Guardsmen declared that the skipper, Captain Paul Meisner, destroyed the manifest and log. She cleared from Halifax, it was said by officers, who added that the cargo was picked up at sea. Luther Sterner, special officer of the Treasury Department, boarded the craft with the Coast Guardsmen and other Federal officers arrived from Philadelphia. The craft is valued at $80,000.

AIDS SELIGMAN IN SUIT.

Hillside Man Says Actress Suing Banker Was Engaged to His Son.

Testimony that Vera Brody, an actress known as Kittens Leightner, was engaged to wed another man at the time she asserts in her $100,000 action against Jefferson Seligman, retired banker, that she was engaged to Mr. Seligman, was filed in the Supreme Court yesterday in behalf of Mr. Seligman. The testimony was given by Harry W. Hughes of Hillside, N. J., who was examined before trial on a court order obtained by counsel for Mr. Seligman.

Mr. Hughes testified that his son, Bernard Hughes, now dead, introduced the actress to him in 1921 as the woman he intended to wed, and that an announcement of the engagement had been made in a newspaper on Sept. 26, 1921. Young Hughes quarreled with his mother over Miss Leightner and left home, the witness said. They were reconciled and his son returned home later after breaking off his relations with the actress, he said.

BRONX RING'S THREATS TO CONTRACTORS TOLD

Witness Says He Was Forced to Give Up Four Jobs and to Leave Borough.

Evidence tending to show the existence of a "ring" of building trade "racketeers" who "rigged" bids, parcelling out contracts to their favored members and frightening off others who had presented lower bids, was disclosed yesterday in the inquiry being conducted by District Attorney John E. McGeehan in the Bronx.

Mr. McGeehan kept secret the name of the witnesses, who feared reprisals if their identity were revealed. Some of the witnesses told of efforts made to have them deal with the Bronx Electrical Survey Bureau, Inc.

One electrical contractor who had four contracts in the Bronx said he was informed that he could not do the work because his bids and estimates had not gone through the bureau. When he refused to give up the jobs his life was threatened, he declared. He paid no attention to the threats but when they were repeated in a convincing manner he finally relinquished his contracts, which were awarded to contractors whose bids were higher than his.

Upon leaving the Bronx, the witness said, he went to Brooklyn. However, he discovered very soon that the same group which had forced him out of the Bronx insisted that he get out of business altogether. He was intimidated and found it difficult to get mechanics to do his work.

It was intimated yesterday that the racketeering was not confined to the plastering, lathing and electrical trades, but that it extended into other crafts.

INDICTMENT RETURNED IN NIGHT CLUB KILLING

East Side Gangster and His Body-Guard Reported Accused in Hotsy Totsy Murders.

An indictment charging first degree murder was returned by the grand jury yesterday against two men in connection with the shooting of William Cassidy and Simon Walker, an ex-convict, in the Hotsy Totsy Night Club at 1,721 Broadway, shortly before 3 o'clock last Monday morning. It was reported that the indictment, based on the death of Cassidy, named a former east side gangster, who recently had been cleared of connection with the slaying of Tony Marlow, a beer runner, on Broadway near Fifty-third Street last October, and a man said to be known as the gangster's bodyguard.

The indictment was handed up to Judge Donnellan in General Sessions and bench warrants for the pair were reported to have been turned over to detectives. It was voted after Thomas Merola, a waiter in the club, who is under $20,000 bail as a material witness, had been called before the grand jury a third time. Merola had identified the photograph of a man as one of those who were in the club at the time of the slaying and was reported to have identified the picture of another man yesterday as the companion of the first man.

Peter Cassidy, a brother of one of the slain men, who was slightly wounded by a bullet of one of the slayers, was released in $10,000 bail as a material witness yesterday.

JONES TO SUE COL. GREENE.

Former State Architect to Ask $1,000,000 in Libel Action.

BUFFALO, N. Y., July 18 (AP).—Announcement was made tonight by Sullivan W. Jones, former State Architect, that he is instituting a $100,000 libel suit against Colonel Frederick R. Greene, State Superintendent of Public Works.

The development srvede to dispel an air of mystery thrown about a letter received from Albany by Mayor Frank X. Schwab and expected to be a deciding factor in the Mayor's approval or rejection of a Council resolution authorizing the construction of a Buffalo City Hall to cost $6,500,000. Mr. Jones is associated with Buffalo architects in planning the municipal building.

Mr. Jones said tonight that a letter written by Colonel Greene to Mayor Schwab declared, in effect, that the Jones plans for the foundations of the State Office Building at Albany, drafted when Mr. Jones held the position of State Architect, proved inadequate and had to be revised.

"I am taking this action," Mr. Jones declared, "in order to carry this matter out of the realm of whispers and hints and insinuations into open court where facts and open statements will prevail."

TO RESUME GAMBLING WAR.

Prosecutor to Renew Activities Against Bayonne Concessions.

Prosecutor John Drewen of Hudson County announced at his office in Jersey City yesterday that he would renew his war on alleged gambling in Bayonne's "Little Coney Island," which was interrupted on July 12 when Merritt Lane, counsel for the owners of the concessions opposed by Mr. Drewen, obtained an order from Vice Chancellor John J. Fallon restraining the prosecuter from further interference.

Mr. Drawen said he had served notice on Mr. Lane yesterday that he would go before the chancellor on July 22 and ask him to vacate the restraining order on the ground that its issuance was a wrongful and improvident exercise of the injunctive power of the chancery court because it enjoined and restrained the prosecutor from the performance of his sworn public duty.

DERRICK FALLS, 3 HURT.

Three derrick men were slightly injured by snapped cables when a 115-foot derrick collapsed at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon at West End Avenue and Sixty-sixth Street, where a warehouse is under construction for the New York Central Railroad.

The injured, who were treated and allowed to go to their homes, are Victor Johnson, 39 years old, of 114-42 Forty-eighth Street, Jamaica; Charles Anderson, 38, of 349 Eighty-third Street, Brooklyn, and Heikki Hiltunen, 49, of 2,920 Coddington Avenue, the Bronx. They are employed by the Turner Construction Company. A steel girder weighing twenty tons was being lifted when the cables snapped.

What Does It Mean That "He Is A Man Of Straw"?

—a friend was asking. We passed the question along, and the answer was invariably, "One who did not amount to much." Another said a person of no consequence. Still another says a man of straw is one that is accepted as bail, as a matter of form, who is known to be worthless. There are men all around us that count up larger the longer we know them.

RESERVE FUNDS END TAMPA BANK RUNS

Anxiety of Depositors Allayed by Receipt of $5,000,000 in Currency From Atlanta.

23D FLORIDA BANK CLOSES

Examiner States That Several of the Small Institutions Probably Will Reopen.

FRUIT GROWERS GET HOPE

Secretary Hyde Announces That Quarantine May Be Modified to Permit Crop Shipments.

Special to The New York Times.

TAMPA, Fla., July 18.—Runs on the First National and Exchange National banks, following the closing yesterday of the Citizens Bank and Trust Company, a State bank affiliated with the Federal Reserve System, and nine of its subsidiaries, subsided today. While a number of depositors withdrew their money, the bank officials reported at closing time that deposits during the day had exceeded withdrawals.

Indications were that confidence had been restored and that in the next few days most of the money withdrawn yesterday and today will be returned to the vaults of the banks.

The arrival of $5,000,000 here today and yesterday from the Atlanta Federal Reserve Bank and the sight of the money in huge stacks in the cages of the bank tellers had a reassuring effect. Crowds about the banks were much smaller than yesterday and were there out of curiosity. During the day a run continued on the Latin-American Bank in Ybor City, Tampa's foreign section, but officials were able to meet all demands by depositors.

Auditing of the books of the Citizens Bank began today under the direction of Captain R. A. Gray, assistant to the State Controller. When the assets are determined and the receivership perfected, if a receiver is appointed, it is announced the depositors will be paid off as the resources of the bank permits.

Believes Banks Will Reopen.

Captain Gray stated that several of the banks affiliated with the Citizens Bank will probably be reopened after the situation has cleared. Plans for the reorganization of the Citizens Bank are to be withheld until the audit by the State authorities is completed. Auditing crews were sent to check the conditions of the nine smaller banks affiliated with the Citizens.

Many expressions of confidence in the ability of the Citizens Bank to pay its depositors 100 cents on the dollar were made today by leading business men.

The Citizens and its affiliated banks had combined deposits of $17,347,968, according to the last statement published. Their resources amounted to $22,828,003. Deposits in the Citizens Bank and Trust Company alone totaled $13,605,270 and its resources were $18,012,084.

Frozen assets from the Florida real estate boom and the inability of citrus growers and truck farmers to meet their obligations after the invasion of the Mediterranean fruit fly, and the quarantine against the State, are blamed for the closing of the banks.

Another State Bank Fails.

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., July 18 (AP).—The State Banking Department announced that the State Bank of Bowling Green had failed to open its doors today, bringing to fifteen the number of bank failures in the State in two days.

The capital and surplus of the Bowling Green Bank were listed at $34,000, deposits $300,390.85 and assets $425,168.41.

Banking officials said that the announcement from Washington that Dr. C. L. Marlatt, chief of the Department of Agriculture's plant quarantine and control board, hoped for a modification of the fruit fly quarantine before the October shipping season had given strong encouragement to the people of Florida in the present situation.

May Modify Fruit Quarantine.

WASHINGTON, July 18 (AP).—Secretary Hyde believes there is a possibility that the Florida citrus crop of this year can be moved without exposing areas in addition to those quarantined to the risk of infestation.

He said tonight that research work which has been intensively prosecuted in Florida on methods of destroying the fruit fly indicates that by modification of existing practices in precooling and coloring, fruit may be made safe for shipment.

"There is reason to believe," the Secretary announced, "that the development of these methods as a supplement to the other suppressive measures now in force will make possible the movement of the citrus crop of this year without exposing additional areas to the risk of infestation."

Secretary Hyde emphasized that while this will involve distinct modification of present restrictions on the movement of citrus fruit from all areas and will avoid the general destruction of fruit in none one, it is believed that it will aid the eradication effort by the relief it will afford to the present acute economic situation, and by making it more possible for growers to continue full cooperation.

The action was recommended by the committee of experts which returned from Florida today after a study of the situation, and by Dr. C. L. Marlatt, chief of the plant quarantine and control administration of the Department of Agriculture.

NEW YORK YACHT IS ASHORE

CURLING, N. F., July 18 (AP).—The yacht Carmago, owned by Julius Fleischmann of Cincinnati and flying the colors of the New York Yacht Club, went ashore on Woods Island near here today.

The yacht was leaving the harbor when it went aground. The extent of her damage was not determined. The yacht was launched at Boston June 10, 1928.

Pigeon Is Injured by a Hawk In Combat Atop a Skyscraper

Mortal combat between a pigeon and a chicken hawk atop the Equitable Building yesterday morning ended when the pigeon, hopelessly outclassed, escaped its formidable foe by flying more dead than alive through an open window on the thirty-eighth floor. At the approach of employes of the Bankers Club the pursuing hawk took a precipitous departure.

Medical assistance was necessary for the bird and a bandage was prepared in the club. The main wound was on the lower breast, which was badly pecked. As ordinary pigeons seldom fly so high it was thought the bird might be a carrier pigeon, but no indentification could be found.

FOX IS IMPROVING; INQUIRIES POUR IN

PLANS TO 'PLAY GOLF SOON'

Telephone Operator Busy With Calls All Day—Deluge of Telegrams and Flowers Arrives.

Special to The New York Times.

MINEOLA, L. I., July 18.—William Fox, head of the Fox Film Corporation, who was injured on Wednesday at Old Westbury, L. I., when his automobile overturned after it was in collision with a car driven by a woman, is resting comfortably and his condition is favorable, it was said at the Nassau Hospital tonight.

The condition of the patient is entirely satisfactory to Dr. Wilfred M. Post, who is attending Mr. Fox, and to Dr. Theodore Armstrong, the house surgeon, according to the attendants, and hope was expressed that he will be able to return to his country home, Foxcroft, in Woodmere, L. I., in a comparatively short time.

Has Quiet Night After Transfusion.

He was able to take breakfast today, after a fairly quiet night, following a blood transfusion on Monday evening.

His first visitors this morning were Maurice Fox, his brother, and his two brothers-in-law, Jack Leo, vice president of the Fox Film Corporation, and Joseph Leo, president of the Fox Metropolitan Playhouse.

They spent several minutes at his bedside, and when they left Maurice Fox said: "My brother seems to be getting along fine. Among the things he said was: 'I'll be playing golf again with you fellows soon.'"

Later Mrs. Elva Fox, the producer's wife, arrived, and his two sisters, Mrs. William Fried of New Rochelle, N. Y., and Mrs. Herman Livingston of New York paid him a visit.

Mr. Fox, however, will not be permitted to receive callers for the time being, outside his immediate family, rest and quiet being considered essential now by the physicians. The producer was moved from the room he first occupied to a room in a rear corner of the hospital to insure quiet.

The telephone operator at the hospital was kept busy all day answering inquiries as to the condition of Mr. Fox. Telegrams from friends and associates in all sections of the country were received for Mr. Fox. Jack Leo, his brother-in-law, said the messages already received would fill a bushel basket.

Many flowers have also been sent to the hospital for him. Mr. Fox requested that some be sent to Jacob Rubenstein, a friend who was riding with him and was slightly injured. Mr. Rubenstein is still at the hospital, but will probably leave for his home in Woodmere tomorrow. Mr. Fox also had flowers distributed among the other patients in the hospital.

Regrets Death of Chauffeur.

Jack Leo said after his visit with Mr. Fox that they had discussed business matters. He said Mr. Fox regretted deeply the death of his chauffeur, Joseph W. Voyes, 36 years old, of Cedarhurst, who was killed in the collision and who had been in his service for only two months. Mr. Fox, the brother-in-law said, would take care of the chauffeur's family.

Voyes, who was single, was born in Cedarhurst and lived all his life there. His mother survives. Funeral services will be held on Saturday, morning at 9:30 o'clock in St. Joachim's Roman Catholic Church, Cedarhurst. The Rev. Henry Jordan, pastor of the church, will celebrate the solemn requiem mass. The body will be buried in St. Mary's Cemetery, Lawrence, L. I.

The Nassau County grand jury, convening next Tuesday, will make its own investigation of the accident, according to District Attorney Elvin N. Edwards. The summons charging Miss Dorothy Kane of 430 East Fifty-seventh Street, New York driver of the car which was in collision with Mr. Fox's car, with operating an automobile without a license, is returnable next Tuesday morning before Justice of the Peace Wilmot Y. Hallock, in Westbury, L. I. The only subpoenas issued for the grand jury hearing the same day are addressed to Miss Kane and her two sisters, the Misses Agatha E. and Mildred Kane, who were riding with her.

John P. Kane, brother of Miss Dorothy Kane, said today his sister is a skilful driver and was in no hurry at the time of the accident. She served in the World War. While her sisters have driver's licenses, he said, she had not requested her license this year because she had no car of her own.

All three sisters are still suffering from shock, it was learned, and have expressed deep regret for the injuries sustained by Mr. Fox and Mr. Rubenstein and for the death of Mr. Fox's chauffeur. The Kane family maintains a Summer home at Huntington, L. I.

INGKILT, Greenland, July 18 (AP).—The Swedish airplane Sverige, which is attempting to reach New York from Stockholm with several intermediate stops, returned here at 4 P. M. G. M. T. (6 A. M. E. S. T.) Dense fog caused abandonment of the attempt to reach Labrador.

QUESTION GANGSTER IN MARLOW MURDER

Police Free Augie Aide, Sought Since June 25, After Three Hours' Examination.

SAYS HE "CAN'T REMEMBER"

Five Material Witnesses to Resume Their Fight for Freedom Today—Wilson Fails to Get Bail.

Joseph Masseria, known to the police as Joe the Boss, sought since June 25 for questioning in the murder of Frank Marlow, was picked up yesterday afternoon in Sixth Avenue, near Forty-fourth Street, by Acting Lieutenant Grover Brown and Detective Joseph McNully, and later released after being questioned for three hours at Police Headquarters.

The detectives who brought him to Police Headquarters triumphantly explained that he was the man whom Commissioner Whalen has said repeatedly the police wanted to question.

The commissioner has said almost daily that the man who planned the killing and hired the gunman was the head of a powerful gang. The commissioner also declared on July 8 that the man sought, whose name he never revealed, was interested in gambling and knew Johnny Wilson, former middleweight champion, who has been held since the murder as a material witness, and that he also knew Anthony Carofano, otherwise known as Little Augie, former right-hand man of the murdered Frank Yale.

Was With Little Augie.

Masseria made no secret of his acquaintanceships. He gave the police the same address as Carofano, at 65 Second Avenue, but told them little else, according to Inspector Edward P. Mulrooney.

He was freed at 7 P. M. after three hours of questioning.

By that time Commissioner Whalen had departed for Philadelphia "on private and personal business having nothing to do with police work," and Inspector Mulrooney was left in charge.

Inspector Mulrooney said: "We got nothing of any significance from Masseria. He doesn't remember anything, except that he has been in jail before."

Masseria seemed thoroughly at his ease with the police, who said his criminal record extends through twenty-two of his forty-three years of life. Under questioning he denied everything, including being the leader of a powerful gang. He said he had been in the vicinity of New York ever since the murder.

He assured the police that he would keep himself available for further questioning.

Meanwhile the release of the five material witnesses continues as their efforts to secure their freedom grow more intense.

Wilson Fails to Get Bail.

On behalf of Johnny Wilson, who was middleweight champion under Marlow's management, an unsuccessful effort was made yesterday to produce the $30,000 bail to which Judge Adel had reduced the original $50,000 figure the previous day in Queens County Court.

Wilson's counsel, Edward J. Reilly, said he would apply for a further reduction to $10,000 on Monday and would put the Police Commissioner and Inspector Mulrooney on the stand to find out what cause, if any, they had for holding these witnesses longer when the police were not prepared to accuse any murderer.

Today, Mary Selden, known as Mickey of the Rendezvous, because she danced there when Marlow was a part owner of the resort, will again attempt to have her $50,000 bail reduced.

A similar application by Ignatius Coppa, who operates La Tavernelle Restaurant, on West Fifty-second Street, where Marlow had his last meal, was denied yesterday by Supreme Court Justice Black on the technical ground that the District Attorney and the Police Department had not been served with notice of the application eight days in advance of the hearing.

The two other material witnesses held are Al Siegel, dancing instructor, and Edward Lewis, otherwise known as Boston Louie.

Lewis Indicted in Boston.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, July 18.—Boston racketeering and sporting circles were hard hit tonight when a Federal grand jury returned liquor smuggling indictments against twenty-three persons, including Edward M. Lewis of Boston, who is held under $50,000 bail in New York as a material witness in the murder of Frank Marlow.

The indictments were found following the grand jury investigation of charges surrounding the capture of the fast British schooner Mareuillabole, Captain Weston Wagner, off Cape Cod on July 10, by the Coast Guard Destroyer Henley which confiscated a liquor cargo valued at $165,000.

Ten of the indictments are secret.

Besides Lewis the indictments name Abe Stepanoff of Stoughton and Revere, John Harnisch, Methuen farmer and the entire crew of the British schooner.

GANGSTER DIES SILENT.

Man Shot on Rivington Street Refuses to Name Slayers.

Edward Winger, who was shot as he walked along Rivington Street Wednesday, died yesterday in Gouverneur Hospital, refusing to give the police any information that might lead them to his murderers.

He told no more than that he came here Monday night from Philadelphia and registered at Libby's Baths in Delancey Street, where he met a man whose name he gave only as "Louie." He was with "Louie" when several shots were fired into him from a slowly moving sedan. "Louie" disappeared as the shooting commenced. According to the police, Winger was killed in a gangster feud.

The body was identified late yesterday by Winger's brother Jack of 248 East 173d Street, the Bronx. The funeral will take place today from Athelman's Houston Street undertaking establishment.

Convent Raided for Liquor in California; Protests Follow Disclosure of Mistake

LOS ANGELES, July 18 (AP).—A "tip" passed by a constable to the vice squad of the District Attorney's office here, which resulted in a "liquor raid" July 13 at a Catholic convent in Belvedere, a suburb, today caused two investigations and attempts to institute two more.

The raiding squad, led by Sergeant O. L. Childers, broke down a door when nuns refused to admit the officers, but no liquor was found.

News of the incident became known yesterday when District Attorney Buron Fitts demanded that officers obtain a warrant before searching private residences in the future. Childers, who did not carry a warrant, blamed the error on Harry Tucker, a Belvedere constable.

Tucker said he had received a tip that a still and liquor were in the vicinity of the convent and W. T. Overholt, chief of the Belvedere constabulary, started an inquiry into the source of Tucker's information.

Meanwhile Fitts said he had begun an investigation of the raid and was considering the dismissal of six members of his vice squad. Their names were kept secret.

Bishop J. J. Cantwell of the Catholic Diocese of Los Angeles and San Diego, although concerning Fitts's office of any blame, sent a formal protest to Senator Hiram Johnson of California.

Isidore Dockweiler, wealthy Catholic layman, has demanded a grand jury investigation of the affair and expressed the opinion that some one had attempted to embarrass the District Attorney's office.

Explanations of the raid by Tucker and Childers differed. Tucker declared some unidentified physician informed him Mexicans were operating a still and he telephoned the vice squad, giving them a street but no number. The constable said he made no direct mention of a convent and was unable to explain how the vice squad happened to suspect the cloister. He did not explain why he disregarded the usual routine and notified the vice squad rather than his own chief.

Childers' men insisted Tucker gave them an exact address. They said the convent was approached about 4 o'clock in the morning, but that they had no knowledge that they were attempting to raid church property. Unable to understand the protests of the nuns, spoken in Spanish, they broke down the door, but apologized and paid for the damage out of their own pockets when they discovered their error.

No report of the raid was made to Fitts, it was claimed, and not until a letter from a Catholic clergyman here to a friend in Wichita, Kan., telling of the raid had fallen into possession of a newspaper, did the affair come to the District Attorney's attention.

EXAMINER CLOSES UP-STATE BANK

DEPOSITS ARE $319,000

State Official Expresses the Belief There Will Be No Loss by Depositors.

Special to The New York Times.

DELPHI, N. Y., July 18.—Because of an excess of "frozen credits" secured by assets difficult to liquidate, the Citizens' Bank of Fleischmanns was closed by the State Superintendent of Banks, James A. Broderick, this morning.

The following notice of the closing was furnished to the press:

"The State Banking Department has today taken possession of the business and property of the Citizens' Bank of Griffin Corners, Fleischmanns, N. Y., for the reason that the bank is conducting its business in an unauthorized and unsafe manner and cannot with safety and expediency continue business.

"The bank was organized in 1910. The published figures under date of June 29, 1929, show capital $25,000, surplus $28,000, deposits $319,000.

"The amount invested in banking house, real estate and bonds and mortgages during the past two years has been out of proportion to the amount of its resources. These assets appear to be substantially good but may be slow in realization.

"After the examination on May 18, 1929, the bank appeared solvent, but the department insisted upon steps being taken to improve its position. Since then negotiations have been under way for a merger, but the prospects appear problematical.

"Certain improper and unsound practices have just come to our attention which render it inadvisable for the bank to continue business under the present management.

"In order to conserve the assets and protect the depositors the department has taken possession of the bank."

For several days there had been a number of withdrawals, and when the line at the bank increased today the closing was determined upon to protect all the depositors.

George W. Egbert, chief examiner, while declining to commit himself upon present information, expressed the belief that there would be no ultimate loss to the depositors.

While using the word "improper" in the public statement, the chief examiner gave the impression that no culpability was involved, but that nothing more than "unwisdom" could be charged.

Delaware County has $64,000 on deposit in the closed bank.

SAYS WALKER FEARS HYLAN.

Houtain Sees Tammany Trying to Influence Republicans.

George Julian Houtain, city chairman of the Better City Government League, asserted yesterday that members of Tammany were urging Republicans to nominate anyone but John F. Hylan for Mayor at the unofficial Republican city convention on Aug. 1.

"Hylan is the only opponent Walker fears," Mr. Houtain said. "If the Republican convention can be Tammanyized into an anti-Hylan meeting, then Walker is confident of success. Tammany is marshaling all its forces at the present time to defeat Hylan in the Republican convention."

City Magistrate David Hirshfield in a speech at a Hylan meeting at Twentieth Avenue and Sixty-third Street, Brooklyn, last night said that the spectacle of Mayor Walker, who had been angling for four years for renomination, being asked by a committee "please to run again" was a matter for laughter. He declared that if those who control the Republican Party really desired to defeat Mayor Walker and Tammany they would nominate Mr. Hylan.

SEES INTIMIDATION OF GEORGIA W. C. T. U.

Organizer Says Thousands of Members Probably Will Be Lost There.

MINISTERS ARE ATTACKED

Ocean Grove Convention Is Told of Browbeating Tactics in Other Parts of South.

Special to The New York Times.

OCEAN GROVE, N. J., July 18.—Georgia members of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union who supported President Hoover in the election last November are being "intimidated and heckled and browbeaten," with the result that the Georgia organization probably will show a loss of thousands of members this Fall, according to a letter that was read here today at one of the sessions of the tri-State convention of the W. C. T. U.'s of Pennsylvania, New Jersey and New York.

The letter was sent by Mrs. Mary Harris Armor of Greenville, Ga., national organizer and lecturer of the W. C. T. U., to Mrs. Nina G. Frantz, president of the New Jersey organization, who read the following excerpt to the 400 women present:

"We are having very hard times. The work seems at a standstill on account of the election last Fall. Our women who spoke and voted for Hoover are being intimidated and heckled and brow-beaten as you can hardly imagine. Thousands are standing true—all the officials (of the W. C. T. U.), thank God. But I fear our books this Fall will show a loss of thousands of members. If the women had the courage to plan meetings, I would be glad to speak for them free of charge, but they are too timid to ask for the churches. The ministers in most places have been so bitterly attacked because they refused to stand for Al Smith that the women feel they cannot subject them to further attack by asking them to open their churches for W. C. T. U. meetings."

Mrs. Frantz said after the session that Democratic women voters in the W. C. T. U. in other States in the South, besides Georgia, have been encountering similar difficulties, because they did not support the Democratic national ticket last Fall.

The three-day tri-State conference ended tonight with presentation of a patriotic historic pageant based on the themes of temperance and law enforcement.

The topic discussed at the morning session was "Woman's Part in the Campaign." Mrs. A. B. Dillinger of Uniontown, Pa., summarized the work of her organization in Fayette County, Pa., in opposing Mr. Smith's candidacy because of his wet stand. Mrs. Helen G. H. Estelle, State corresponding secretary of the New York W. C. T. U., said that a questionnaire sent to women all over the country had shown that Mr. Smith's attitude on the liquor question was the principal reason for his overwhelming defeat. Mrs. H. H. Goodwin, vice president of the New Jersey W. C. T. U., warned the women against the activities of the various women's organizations opposing the Volstead act.

PLANS OCEAN AIR SERVICE.

Lufthansa Will Test Rohrbach Planes for Latin-American Trips.

BERLIN, July 18 (AP).—Three Giant Rohrbach Romar planes of the Lufthansa Company are to be given longer and longer endurance tests and if these are satisfactory an attempt will be made to establish a regular route to Latin America by way of the Azores, Cape Verde, Pernambuco, Rio de Janeiro and Buenos Aires.

MOVE FOR FARE RISE DENIED BY L. I. R. R.

But Rawson Admits Increase in Terminal Rental Would Go Into Operating Expense.

AMOUNTS TO $1,600,000

Engineer Tells Commerce Board Facilities Would Not Be Enlarged —F. J. Fell Jr. Testifies.

At a resumed hearing yesterday before the Interstate Commerce Commission on the application of the Pennsylvania and Long Island Railroads for a new agreement under which the latter would pay an increased rental for the use of the Pennsylvania terminal, Hobart Rawson, special engineer for the railroad, asserted that no preparation had been made on a petition for a higher fare. He admitted that an increased rental would be added to the operating expenses of the road. The application has been interpreted by intervenors as a move for an increased fare on the Long Island Railroad.

Mr. Rawson testified during practically the entire day under questioning by Vincent Victory, Assistant Corporation Counsel, who is opposing the petition on behalf of the city. Mr. Victory questioned mainly the contention of Mr. Rawson that the railroad car was the best unit for measurement in apportioning the maintenance charges of the terminal between the two railroads.

Holds Car Not Exact Standard.

Mr. Victory held that the car was not an exact standard of measurement since the Pennsylvania cars were 35 per cent heavier and 25 per cent longer than the Long Island cars. It was brought out that the seating capacity of the Pennsylvania cars was for eighty-four passengers, while the Long Island cars seat only seventy.

In reply, Mr. Rawson pointed out that the Pennsylvania cars were seldom filled while the Long Island cars were not only filled, but a good many passengers were obliged to stand. He admitted that the Long Island cars were "somewhat lighter" than the Pennsylvania cars, and that although "the car is not an ideal standard, it is the most practical unit we can arrive at."

Mr. Victory contended that the Pennsylvania cars should be rated 1.35 per cent against 1 per cent for the Long Island cars in apportioning the maintenance charges for the terminal and tracks used by both lines. The heavier Pennsylvania cars, Mr. Rawson argued, have "very little economic effect" on depreciation of tracks than the Long Island cars. He added that the Long Island cars used more power because they were electrically heated while the Pennsylvania cars were steam heated.

Mr. Rawson admitted that the Pennsylvania did not intend to enlarge facilities for the Long Island if the increased rental were allowed. Under the proposed new agreement, the Long Island would pay for the use of the properties used jointly more than $1,600,000 a year in excess of the amount paid under the present agreement.

"Have you been preparing data for a new application for higher commutation fare?" asked Mr. Victory.

Not Preparing Higher Fare Data.

"No." Mr. Rawson replied, adding that the railroad had not prepared a petition for a rate increase since the last hearing before the Public Service Commission and Transit Commission when applications for increased rental and increased fare were denied. He admitted that if the road paid an increased rental the cost would be added to operating expenses.

Mr. Victory asserted that the Pennsylvania terminal was built "as a monument to the Pennsylvania Railroad's renown and benefit," and not for the direct benefit of the Long Island Railroad. He said the great rotunda of the station attracted passengers, aiding the Pennsylvania in its competition with other roads, while the Long Island needed only platforms for loading and unloading commuters who were compelled to use the Long Island service regardless of the character of the terminal.

The space on the track level occupied and used by the Long Island Railroad, Mr. Victory said, amounted to about 13 per cent of the total space of the station and the cubic content of the part occupied by the Long Island was only 1.59 per cent of the total cubic content of the building. Mr. Rawson held that improvements had been made in the terminal in the past few years and it was felt that Long Island passengers had use of the entire system.

The cost of maintaining the terminal and its facilities from Tenth Avenue to and including the Sunnyside yards in Queens, Mr. Victory said, was $9,150,212, and the Long Island was asked in the petition to pay $3,960,619 while the Pennsylvania paid $5,180,593.

Mr. Victory contended, in questioning F. J. Fell Jr., vice president and controller of the Pennsylvania and Long Island Railroads, that $50,000,000 in the cost of the terminal was written off several years ago by the Pennsylvania and charged to surplus as a non-productive improvement. Mr. Fell denied that the terminal could be classed as an unproductive improvement.

The hearing, which is being held before T. F. Sullivan, attorney-examiner for the Interstate Commerce Commission, in the rooms of the Merchants' Association, 233 Broadway, will continue this morning.

ADMITS EMERALD THEFT.

Salesman Held for Taking Tray of Gems From J. L. Warner.

The theft of a package containing $2,000 worth of emeralds from the firm of Joseph L. Warner of 38 West Forty-seventh Street a week ago was solved yesterday, the police said, when Irving Robinson, 23 years old, jewelry salesman, of 2,850 Claflin Avenue, the Bronx, admitted the theft to Deputy Chief Inspector Edward P. Mulrooney.

Robinson was arrested late Wednesday in the offices of Charles L. Seale, jeweler, at 180 Broadway, when he offered the gems for sale. Seale became suspicious and telephoned for the police.

According to the police, Robinson visited the Warner offices last Thursday, and when Edward Warner, son of the proprietor, turned around, Robinson picked up the package of emeralds and walked out. He was held in $2,500 bail for a hearing today.

Will Rogers Says Diplomats Should Stay With Their Wars

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., July 18.—Russia has called home her diplomats from China. China has called home hers from Russia. If they had both done that before the argument started there would have been no argument. That's why diplomats don't mind starting a war, because it's a custom that they are to be brought safely home before the trouble starts. There should be a new rule saying: "you start a war while you are your country's official handicap to some other country, you have to stay with any war you start." Then diplomats would begin to "dip."

Yours,
WILL ROGERS.

ELECTRIC BOND WINS FIGHT OVER BOOKS

Court Holds Demand of Trade Board to Inspect Records to Be Unreasonable.

BUT OFFICIALS MUST TALK

Commission May Force Them to Answer in Anti-Trust Inquiries, Judge Knox Rules.

The application of the Federal Trade Commission for an order requiring officers and employes of the Electric Bond and Share Company to produce the books and records of the company for examination was denied yesterday by Federal Judge John C. Knox. The denial was made on the ground that the commission has not yet established that its demand for them is reasonable. The court, however, held that the commission has the power to compel the attendance of witnesses.

The commission alleged that the company, through its system of management contracts, imposes a burden upon the gross earnings of operating companies engaged in interstate commerce, and is in a position to control interstate transactions and commerce through collusion and combination. It contended that the records sought were necessary to determine whether such a burden had been imposed in violation of the anti-trust laws.

In his decision, Judge Knox said that it would be assumed that the company, as a part of its business, was engaged in interstate commerce, which would bring it within the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission act of Sept. 26, 1914. He found that the commission may compel the "personal attendance of such witnesses as may be regarded as able to furnish information" concerning the matter under investigation. The decision pointed out that Congress has not undertaken to regulate the interstate carriers of electricity in the same manner as interstate common carriers. The decision also said:

Holds Demand Unreasonable.

"Until the powers of the petitioner with respect to such inquiries as it may undertake shall have been enlarged by appropriate statutes the present limitations which hedge about its inquisitorial functions must be recognized. One of them is that until particular documents, including books, become evidentiary, respondent corporation is not obliged to lay before the commission its books and papers for scrutiny."

The decision held that, so far as shown by the papers, the books and vouchers sought relate not alone to interstate business of the company, but also to its intrastate business, and "that even as to intrastate business, petitioner cannot say to a suspected corporation, 'Stand and deliver the possible evidence of the crime of which you are suspected.'

"A time may come when the petitioner will have established the reasonableness of a demand for particular papers or books from the company, but it does not appear to have arrived. So far, the suggestion that the corporation may, perhaps, have violated the anti-trust laws rests only on hearsay and suspicion."

In upholding the right of the commission to summon witnesses, Judge Knox held in part:

Witnesses Must Testify.

"So far as I can see there was no constitutional barrier to the grant to the commission of the power to use compulsory process in its lawful investigations. Petitioner, of course, must not abuse the process, but with this restriction I am satisfied that it can be used in an 'investigation' which has not ripened into a proceeding under Section 5 of that act. 'Respondent's' objections to the subpoenas duces tacum will be sustained, and those that were interposed to the pertinent and competent questions propounded to the individual witnesses will be overruled."

The proceeding was directed primarily at A. E. Smith, controller and assistant secretary of the company, but it included Ralph B. Weagin, vice president; Benjamin Brewster, general auditor; C. E. McBride, accountant; E. P. Summerson, secretary; Stanley J. Quinan, in charge of publicity, and William N. Lewis, accountant.

Samuel C. Coleman, chief of the civil division of the United States Attorney's office, said that within a few days he would consult with the other attorneys concerned in the case for the purpose of deciding whether there would be an appeal.

JOHN ACOSTA KILLED.

Four With Former Yale Football Player Hurt in Georgia Crash.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., July 18 (AP).—John C. Acosta, 30 years old, former Yale football player, was killed and four persons who were riding with him injured in an automobile accident near Haverly, Ga., tonight, according to reports received here.

The injured were Colonel and Mrs. R. C. Truck, W. G. Kennedy and Mrs. Frank G. Russell. The extent of their injuries had not been determined.

The accident occurred as Acosta, who was driving the car, swerved sharply to avoid hitting another automobile parked on the roadside without lights, members of the party said. The Acosta car overturned.

Mr. Acosta was graduated from Yale in 1921.

FIGHT ON FARE RISE TO RESUME IN COURT

Transit Board Asks Untermyer to Press Case That Was Halted by Federal Writ.

TO SUE FOR MORE CARS

Action Also Will Seek to Force Interborough to Lengthen Subway Platforms.

ELEVATED FARE PLEA UP

The Transit Commission decided yesterday to resume litigation to prevent the Interborough Rapid Transit Company from increasing its subway fare and compel it to run additional cars and lengthen subway platforms. On Aug. 1 at 10:30 A. M. the Transit Commission will hold a hearing on the Interborough petition for a 10-cent fare on its Manhattan elevated lines.

At its regular weekly meeting the Transit Commission referred to its special counsel, Samuel Untermyer, the pending suits brought in the State courts last year by the commission to prevent the Interborough from breaking its contract by increasing its subway fare. The commission is requesting Mr. Untermyer to expedite their prosecution. The suits were halted by the action of the company in obtaining Federal injunctions restraining their prosecution. The injunctions were quashed following the United States Supreme Court decision against the Interborough in its 7-cent fare fight.

When the Transit Commission several months ago issued an order requiring the Interborough to lengthen station platforms the company asked for time in which to decide whether it would comply. The commission announced yesterday that it would give the Interborough until Aug. 8 to file its answer.

In the meantime the commission instructed its chief engineer, Colonel William C. Lanoaster, to bring up to date the data relating to the need for additional cars on the Interborough system and to report to the commission at its meeting next Wednesday.

The order requiring the lengthening of platforms and the operation of additional cars formed the basis of the Interborough's suit in the Federal District Court for an increased fare. While the suit was pending the Interborough obtained injunctions in the Federal court which prevented the Transit Commission from enforcing its orders.

The Transit Commission, while requesting Mr. Untermyer to resume the litigation, also instructed him to sue to recover from the Interborough money which the commission and the city contend is due the city under the terms of the Interborough's operating contract.

The Interborough's petition for a ten-cent fare on its Manhattan elevated lines was filed with the commission several weeks ago. The road complained that the five-cent fare is inadequate and asked permission to charge 10 cents on the Manhattan elevated lines pending determination of its application.

At the hearing on the ten-cent application the full commission, consisting of William G. Fuller, chairman, and Commissioners Leon G. Godley and Charles G. Lockwood, will sit. The commission will be represented here by its counsel, George E. Stiver, and Mr. Untermyer.

The commission denied the application of the Third Avenue Railway system for a rehearing on its revised tariff schedules, in which it sought an increased fare on the Steinway line in Queens.

Chairman Fuller will preside at a hearing at 10 o'clock on the morning of Aug. 2 on the condemnation of the Third Avenue elevated shuttle connecting with the East Thirty-fourth Street ferry and Lexington Avenue. The action is in response to a resolution by the Board of Estimate requesting the Transit Commission to approve of abandonment of the spur.

C. E. JENNINGS HELD IN JURY TAMPERING

Ex-Deputy Boxing Commissioner, Arrested in Rochester, Linked in Irondequoit Inquiry.

Special to The New York Times.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., July 18.—Clarence E. Jennings, politician and former deputy boxing commissioner, was arrested today on a charge of embracery (jury tampering), on the second day of Supreme Court Justice Stephen G. Callaghan's investigation into alleged jury fixing in two recent Irondequoit fraud trials, both of which ended in disagreements. His wife released on $1,000 bail. Hearing was set for tomorrow.

Jennings's arrest followed testimony by Joseph G. Florack, impaneled for the first jury, who told Justice Callaghan and Guy E. Moore, special prosecutor, that Jennings had uttered the word "hang" as he passed him in the court house during recess while the jury was being selected. The jury was completed before Florack was summoned.

Under questioning, Florack said he considered the word was a suggestion to cause a disagreement. He also said he was aware that improper use that attempts to influence juries were common in Monroe County.

Florack was questioned after Dr. Alexander Walker had named him as an "approached juror." Dr. Walker at first refused to divulge Florack's name and was fined $250 and committed to jail for thirty days for contempt of court. He was released after disclosing the name.

KING CONTINUES GAINS.

Prince of Wales and Duke of York Call on Father at Palace.

LONDON, July 18 (AP).—Announcement that King George had maintained his progress since the effects of the operation of Monday morning was made tonight after the usual visit to Buckingham Palace of his physicians.

His Majesty was visited today by his sons, the Prince of Wales and the Duke of York.

UNITED AIRCRAFT ACQUIRES SIKORSKY

Terms of Merger Withheld, but $8,000,000 Is Reported to Be Involved in Deal.

BRIDGEPORT PLANT RUSHED

1,200 to Be Employed There in Making Big Amphibians—All Executives to Keep Posts.

The United Aircraft and Transport Corporation has added the Sikorsky Aviation Corporation to the list of aircraft manufacturing and transport companies under its control. The merger was announced yesterday jointly by F. B. Rentschler, president of the United, and Arnold C. Dickinson, president of the Sikorsky company, after several weeks of negotiation.

The terms of the transaction were not made public and officials of both companies refused to add to the short official announcement made at the United offices. Neither confirmation nor denial could be obtained of the report that about $8,000,000 was involved in the deal.

The Sikorsky company, which is widely known for its twin-motored amphibians, or "amphibians," as the company spells it, and the large planes which have been the specialty of Igor Sikorsky both before and after coming to America, has just opened a new factory at Bridgeport, Conn.

The company will probably continue to operate its College Point factory in Queens until Jan. 1. Mr. Dickinson said.

"We have more than 200 men engaged in the actual construction of planes in the new Bridgeport plant and have on our books more than six months' capacity business ahead," he declared, and added that when in full swing the Bridgeport plant would employ more than 1,200 men.

The officers and personnel of the Sikorsky Company will not be changed both Mr. Dickinson and Mr. Rentschler declared.

Mr. Sikorsky, the chief designer for the company, built more than seventy multimotored bombers for the Russian Government during the war. In 1917 he went to France, where he started construction of big planes for the French Government, and in 1919 he came to America. At first he concentrated here on twin-engined biplanes. Early in 1927 he turned out his first twin-motored amphibian at the then newly opened College Point plant. At present he is working on a giant multi-motored flying boat in which it is reported the United States Navy is interested.

An experimental small sport model amphibian is also under way in the Sikorsky plant.

The United Aircraft and Transport Corporation is a holding company sponsored by the National City Company of New York and is comprised of the Pratt & Whitney Aircraft Company of Hartford, builders of the Wasp and Hornet air-cooled engines; the Chance Vought Corporation of Long Island City, builders of the Vought Corsair; the Boeing Airplane Company, the Pacific Air Transport, the Boeing Air Transport, the Stout Airlines, operating between Chicago, Detroit and Cleveland; the Hamilton Metal Plane Company and the Hamilton Aero Company of Milwaukee. The company also recently acquired a substantial interest in the Aviation Corporation of the Americas, which owns Pan-American Airways.

Officials of the United refused to confirm or deny reports yesterday that the company is about to acquire the Stearman Company of Wichita, builders of sport planes, fast mail planes and cabin biplanes.

United Aircraft, through the Boeing interests, is surveying a passenger line between Seattle and Juneau, Alaska, and by Oct. 1 plans to open a twenty-hour passenger service between Chicago and San Francisco, which eventually will be continued to New York.

CANADIANS COMPLETE TUNNEL THROUGH ANDES

It Will Enable Rail Transportation to the Capital of Antioquia, in Colombia.

Special to The New York Times.

MONTREAL, July 18.—A railroad tunnel more than two miles long and about 4,000 feet above sea level has been driven through the Andes Mountains near Medellin, Colombia, by Canadian contractors and engineers.

The fact that the tunnel had been "holed through" after three years' work was announced yesterday to Charles E. Fraser, president of the Fraser Brace, Ltd., the Canadian contractors, in a cable message from Joseph C. Hilton, formerly of Yarmouth, N. S., the engineer who has been in charge of the work.

Next month, the president of the Montreal company said, cars will pass through the new tunnel, and this method of transportation will supersede an auto truck system now in use, while the old mule trains which for centuries transported merchandise over the mountain crest will be discarded.

The tunnel pierces the central range of the Andes in the department of Antioquia. This range splits the department, the capital of which is Medellin. Passengers and merchandise from the capital have had to be carried over mountains through La Quiebra Pass, with several loadings and unloadings.

The departmental government called for bids on the work of piercing the range three years ago and, in the face of stiff competition from European and other firms, the Montreal contractors secured the work. Among difficulties encountered was the construction of a small hydroelectric plant, operating at 1,400-foot head, to furnish power for air compressors.

Despite the difficulties and the remoteness of the job, the Canadians came through with a construction record which has gratified the Colombians, according to the word sent to Mr. Fraser.

Jewish Soldiers to Get Furloughs.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 18.—To give soldiers of Jewish faith an opportunity to participate in the observance of high holy days (Rosh ha-Shonah), which begin at sundown Friday, Oct. 4, and continue until sundown, Sunday, Oct. 6, and the observance of the Day of Atonement (Yom Kippur), which begins at sundown, Sunday, Oct. 13, and continues until sundown, Monday, Oct. 14, Secretary Good today directed all commanding officers to grant furloughs to members of that faith. The furloughs are to be for such time as is necessary to permit the men to be at their homes or at places where the observances are held.

COOLIDGE VIEWS LOBBYING AS EVIL

Unchecked It Would Double Cost of Government in Two Years, He Writes.

CALLS CONGRESS TOO MEEK

"President Comes More and More to Stand as Champion of Rights of Whole Country," He Says.

Organized minorities led by skilful lobbyists are expensive to the government, according to Calvin Coolidge. Unchecked, they would double the cost of government in two years, he writes in the August American Magazine.

They also have given a too meek Congress a reputation for inefficiency while the President has been gaining in popular respect by a more fearless attitude, he says.

"It is because in their hours of timidity the Congress becomes subservient to the importunities of organized minorities that the President comes more and more to stand as the champion of the rights of the whole country," Mr. Coolidge asserts.

"Organizing such minorities has come to be a well-recognized industry at Washington. They are oftentimes led by persons of great ability, who display much skill in bringing their influences to bear on the Congress. They have ways of securing newspaper publicity, deluging Senators and Representatives with petitions and overwhelming them with impresations that are often decisive in securing the passage of bills.

"While much of this legislation is not entirely bad, almost all of it is excessively expensive. If it were not for the rules of the House and the veto power of the President, within two years these activities would double the cost of the government."

Mr. Coolidge suggests a more effective party loyalty as a means of combating the importunities of the organized minorities. He argues that the President should not be left alone to bear party responsibility while members of Congress, influenced by too much praise and too much abuse, drop party lines in critical times to the ultimate disparagement of the political party as an instrument of government.

Although Presidents are being driven toward the exercise of dictatorial powers there is more danger of arbitrary action in Congress where responsibility is divided, he adds, concluding with the statement: "It has therefore become increasingly imperative that the President should resist any encroachment upon his constitutional powers."

CLYNES EXPLAINS BAN ON TROTSKY'S VISIT

Home Secretary Tells Commons It Would Be Difficult to Oust Him if Troublesome.

LONDON, July 18 (AP).—Permission for Leon Trotsky, Bolshevist leader exiled in Constantinople, to enter England was refused because of the difficulty the British Government might have in forcing his departure if his presence ever became embarrassing, Home Secretary Clynes said in the House of Commons this afternoon.

"The government's view is that, if Trotsky were to come here, persons of mischievous intentions would unquestionably seek to exploit his presence for their own ends, and if in consequence he became a source of grave embarrassment, the government could have no certainty of being able to secure his departure," Mr. Clynes explained.

As to the question of the right of asylum for political refugees, which some members of the house, chiefly liberals, have raised in connection with Trotsky's case, the Home Secretary said the country had the right of granting such asylum when it saw fit.

"But on the other hand, no alien has the right to claim asylum in this country if it would be contrary to the interests of the country to receive him," he continued.

One of the Home Secretary's questioners gave notice that the subject would be raised again for debate.

In some circles in Britain it has been felt that the manner of Trotsky's application for admission to England was ill-advised. He made the request immediately after the Laborite Government came into power, expressing his sympathy for the new administration.

REALTY DEALER CLEARED.

Thomas Stanley Absolved in Theft of $30,000 Securities.

Thomas Stanley, a real estate dealer staying at the Hotel Manger, was exonerated yesterday in the Tombs Court and discharged by Magistrate Vitale in the theft of $30,000 in securities from W. E. Hutton & Co., brokers, at 52 Wall Street, last September. At the same time the magistrate held Joseph F. Maxwell, 40 years old, a former employe of the brokerage, of 104 Hoyt Street, Brooklyn, in $5,000 bail, after Maxwell had pleaded not guilty. A hearing was set for next Thursday on a charge that he participated in the theft.

Stanley was arrested last Monday in another brokerage when he offered to sell $25,000 of the stolen securities. He protested that he had received them from a man as collateral on a short-term loan. Maxwell subsequently was arrested, and it was brought out yesterday that he resigned from Hutton & Co. a short time after the disappearance of the securities.

CALLS TELEPATHY SUCCESS

Dr. Says Radio Tests Proved "Unusually" Accurate.

Thought transference by radio is not a myth, according to the National Broadcasting Company, which announced yesterday the results of the test conducted a week ago last night by Dunninger. According to this authority, more than 85 per cent of the listeners who participated in the experiment received accurately at least one of the three thought broadcasts which opened the psychic series known as the "Ghost Hour" over WZ's network.

Dunninger contends that this experiment has established impressive grounds for further telepathy tests. "It is extremely significant," he said, "that it was by the aid of radio that the new record was established. No one is positive by what means radio waves reach the listener, and perhaps in its rays will be found a clue to the understanding of telepathy.

"A sealed envelope containing a note of the three thoughts I would attempt to transmit was placed in the hands of Reinald Werrenrath before the first broadcast," Dunninger continued, "and this was not opened by the test committee in the New York studios until 'Roxy,' the chairman, read the contents in the second 'Ghost Hour' broadcast. Out of more than 2,000 letters sent in from radio listeners, more than 85 per cent were accurate in at least one of the three thoughts I tried to project.

Only 2.5 per cent of the reports were completely accurate, but Dunninger considers even this unusual when 2,000 replies are viewed as merely a cross-section of the potential audience.

NEW HAMMERSTEIN PLAY.

Producer Expects to Start "Madeleine" as Second Offering.

Arthur Hammerstein's second production of the season, after "Just the Other Day," will be "Madeleine," the producer announced yesterday.

Otto Harbach and Oscar Hammerstein 2d will collaborate on the book and lyrics. Sigmund Romberg will compose the music.

The show will go into rehearsal after the New York première of "Just the Other Day" on Sept. 16.

JERSEY WOMAN DENIES POLITICAL MISRULE

Mrs. Berry, Republican Leader, Lays Party Discord to Her Predecessor.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., July 18.—Another chapter in the controversy between Mrs. Helen M. Berry of Essex County, vice chairman of the Republican State Committee, and her predecessor, Mrs. Lillian F. Feickert of Union County, was written today, when Mrs. Berry reiterated her charge that Mrs. Feickert is responsible for the failure of Republican women in New Jersey to gain greater recognition from the party leaders.

The dispute began a few week ago, when Mrs. Feickert commented pointedly on the absence of women from a recent Republican conference at Seagirt. She accused Mrs. Berry and Mrs. Margaret D. Baker of losing the gains made in the early years of women suffrage, notwithstanding that they had more money to spend for political purposes.

It was denied by Mrs. Berry that she and Mrs. Baker had any such sums as were available to Mrs. Feickert. In addition she asserted she had been handicapped by bad feeling engendered by the policy of Mrs. Feickert. Whatever is to be accomplished by the women, she said, will be by cooperation and not by dissension.

No. 642 Stromberg-Carlson, Art Console, uses three UY-224, one UY-227, one UX-245 and one UX-280 Radiotrons. Built-in Electrodynamic Speaker. Price, without tubes

SCREEN GRID RADIO with "LINEAR" POWER DETECTION
Essential for Clear Tone from the New Broadcast Modulation

100% Modulation, the improved method of transmission being adopted by leading Broadcast stations, has necessitated improved detection. This improved detection is needed not only to take full advantage of the fine tonal quality now made possible by the improved transmission, but to avoid the distortion which is present if ordinary detection is used.

In these new Stromberg-Carlsons the ingenious employment of three totally shielded screen grid tubes and a heater type detector makes possible this new kind of detection—"Linear" Power Detection.

This Improved detection, coupled with Stromberg-Carlson's infinite refinements of design, gives new grandeur and magnificence to the celebrated Stromberg-Carlson Tone.

And not only in tone do these new Screen Grid Stromberg-Carlsons mark advancement. They also are more sensitive, giving you more distant stations; more selective, enabling better separation of stations; more beautiful, challenging the admiration of your guests. These Receivers are designed primarily for the home—to give in the widest sense the kind of radio receiver that is desired by the home.

No. 641 Treasure Chest, similar operating unit, less tubes and Speaker $155

Listen Wednesday Evenings to the Concert Ensemble of the Stromberg-Carlson Orchestra, over the National Broadcasting Company's Blue Network and Associated Stations.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Steel Shares Moderately Higher as Grains Decline—Brokers' Loans Up $58,000,000.

An expansion of $58,006,000 in brokers' loans, to a new maximum for all time; strength in the steel issues on the Stock Exchange and a high degree of irregularity in the grains and cotton were the outstanding developments in a day of market movements characterized by strong cross currents. Nevertheless, there appeared no signs of acute weakness in any direction and such declines as occurred, both in stocks and in commodities, were moderate ones.

After such a long and violent upswing as the grains and many utility and railroad stocks have enjoyed, it was to be expected that speculative traders would cast about for an excuse to liquidate their holdings for profit-taking purposes. In the case of securities, this was apprehension over the brokers' loan account; for wheat and corn, it was the realization that the advance had probably been too rapid and that the technical position of the markets had been weakened. At any rate, it was to be noted that such liquidation as developed was absorbed in satisfactory fashion. Wall Street has about quit trying to guess the extent of expansion or contraction in brokers' loans, because it has been so far wrong on the forecasts. Therefore, any immediate market effect that the current inflation may have is problematical. This week's total of $5,813,000,000 exceeds by $20,000,000 the former maximum, established on May 20, and represents a gain of just over $500,000,000 in this loan account over the year's low mark of June 12. Probably it may be said that the recent boom in the railroad shares has been to a great extent responsible for the week's growth in loans, and it forms a further item of evidence that the public interest in securities of this sort is country-wide. Banking opinion on the dangers inherent in a tightly inflated brokers' loan account has not changed, but there is evident a disposition on the Stock Exchange to gloss over the gains and to judge the declines as incentive for jubilation. A glance at the rates being paid for banking accommodation throughout the country does not indicate any radical change in the money situation.

There was a good deal of grain sold yesterday and this pressure, mainly for profit taking purposes, naturally unsettled the market and halted the advance, temporarily at least. Yet the crop news was not better than on the previous day and especially pessimistic views as to the outlook on the Canadian side particularly accompanied the moderate decline. The far distant months were in demand in cotton. An influence of the near-by wheat movement was the request for Canadian dollars in New York. The rate on Montreal moved up a full quarter cent, to the year's best price. This fluctuation is doubtless to be attributed to arrangements for grain shipments. Foreign interests are reported to have been big buyers of wheat on the recent bulge.

Steel stocks attracted most interest on the Stock Exchange, and their movement did not get under way until late in the day, or until the money rate had moved down to 7 per cent from 8. It is worthy of note that it is the very best class of stocks of all sorts which are in demand on the Exchanges, at present, and that shares of mediocre calibre, or based on industries not fully sharing in the country's present prosperity, are listless and almost entirely neglected.

SHELL OIL OFFICIALS MEET.

Discuss Plans to Det City With Gasoline Stations in Month.

Within a month numerous gasoline stations operated by Shell Eastern Petroleum Products, Inc., a subsidiary of the Royal Dutch-Shell Oil Company, will dot New York City, it was said at the first meeting and dinner of the officials of the Shell local and national subsidiaries yesterday afternoon and evening in the Hotel Commodore. About two hundred officials, dealers and other interested business men were present. They were told that quality and service were to be the determining factors for making the invasion of the metropolitan area a success.

W. J. Files, vice president and manager of sales of the Shell Union Oil Corporation, the American branch of the Royal Dutch-Shell group; E. E. Overton, national manager of bulk sales; H. W. Boynton, national distribution manager; T. S. Marshall, national advertising manager; P. W. Beifsnider, New Jersey manager; T. E. Crowe, Assistant Corporation Counsel, who represented Mayor Walker, and William L. Day, manager for New York City, who was chairman, made addresses.

FORD ON PLANE MOTORS.

Says Present Type of Engine Is Not Adequate—Works on Diesels.

An article by Henry Ford, in the current issue of the American Magazine, declares the present type airplane engine to be inadequate and reveals that his research department is concentrating on the Diesel engine as the most promising type.

Mr. Ford said in his article:

"Today there is no such thing in existence as an airplane engine. What we call airplane engines are really automobile engines in all their fundamental principles. Some of our experiments at Dearborn may help discover what the airplane engine should be. At present we are giving our attention to the Diesel engine. The outlook is fairly promising.

"The young mind, and every other mind, must get together to produce the airplane engine of the future. No one knows now just what it will be like, but you can be pretty sure that it will have four characteristics: first, slow speed; second, reliability; third, perfect balance; fourth, it will use fuel that will be four or five times more powerful than our present fuel."

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

News, Comment and Incident, On the Stock Exchange and In the Financial Markets.

Although there were some rather violent movements in the stock market yesterday, traders as a rule were awaiting the announcement of the brokers' loan account after the close, and as a result, the volume of business on the Stock Exchange dropped sharply to less than 4,000,000 shares. It was the second slowest day of the month. The list was shot through with irregularities, but such declines as developed were not large, generally amounting to a point or so. On the other hand, some of the steel and specialty issues were strong most of the day. United States Steel and Bethlehem were leaders of this group. Other shares in which appreciation was established were Johns Manaville, Radio, American Can, Fox Films, American Smelting and Refining and Anaconda. Money came from the interior faster than the demand mopped it up, and the result was a decline in the call rate from 8 per cent to 7. There will be considerable interest today in the attitude of the market toward the fresh expansion in brokers' loans and the fact that these now are ranging into new high ground.

Over the Top.

The total of brokers' loans, which had been teetering on the verge of a new record two weeks, broke through it yesterday. The figures given out by the Federal Reserve Bank show brokers' borrowings amounting to $5,813,000,000, a rise of $58,000,000 from last week's level and $20,000,000 above the old high record made on March 20. Yesterday's figures caused no surprise. It had been expected generally that the loans would show a sufficient increase to top the old level. Much of the irregularity displayed by the stock market was ascribed to Wall Street's well-known aversion to record levels in such disturbing items as these loans.

Rail Issues Take Turns.

The railroad issues are taking turns in making advances into new territory, it was noted in trading circles yesterday. The general onrush of the rails, started late last week, has ceased for the time being at least, but, although reactions in the rails are well distributed, individual issues continue to make headway. Yesterday it was Southern Pacific's turn and that company's stock advanced to a new high of 148, while other rail issues for the most part declined.

***

A Mystery Explained.

The reason why American Telegraph and Cable sells at $27 a share and pays $5 a year annually in dividends lies in the original lease by which this company has been operated by Western Union Telegraph Company since May, 1882. The two cables of A. T. & C. were laid at a cost of about $7,000,000, and under the lease agreement Western Union was to pay a rental of 5 per cent on a capital of $14,000,000 for fifty years, or actually 10 per cent on the cost of the property. The lease will expire in May, 1932, and in view of the age of the cables and their obsolescence, contrasted with the types laid during the last few years by Western Union, it is certain that an entirely different set of terms will be provided if any new lease is made or if the property is bought. The $5 dividend therefore will last less than two more years, hence the low value of the shares. The 22,194 shares owned by Western Union will be written down to $10 each by the company at the expiration of the lease.

Another Credit to Germany.

Announcement yesterday that a New York banking group has arranged to extend a $7,000,000 credit to the Berlin Communications Company, and a London group a similar amount, is in line with the policy of German public utility and industrial concerns, as well as the German Government itself, to finance current requirements through short-term financing pending a strengthening of the bond market sufficiently to permit the flotation of long-term bonds. As has been the case with all the German credits arranged since the signing of the Young Reparations agreement, no public financing is involved.

Light Trading in Bonds.

Bond transactions on the Stock Exchange yesterday were the lightest this month, amounting to only $10,321,000, which is more in line with the usual midsummer trading. The market was rather colorless. Even trading in the active American Telephone and Telegraph convertible 4½s tapered off considerably. Railroad bonds, which have been moderately active this week, closed irregular, and United States Government bonds were again generally lower. The announcement by the Treasury that tenders were received from holders of the Treasury 3½s for the sale of notes to the sinking fund in excess of $75,000,000 at 98 was taken to mean that holders do not anticipate any great uplift of prices in the near future. Curiously enough, however, the holdings of United States Government bonds by the twelve banks of the Federal Reserve System this week show a net increase of more than $17,000,000.

More Electrification.

It was remarked in railroad circles yesterday that while the submission of bids for electrification of part of the Lehigh Valley marked progress in the use of this power on the railroads it also showed that the carriers still had a "show me" attitude. The Lehigh Valley is now studying the figures placed before it by the electrical companies and weighing them with what it would cost to operate the hilly section of the line involved with powerful steam locomotives.

***

Federal Reserve Statement.

Last night's combined statement of the twelve Federal Reserve Banks showed a somewhat more encouraging picture than had been shown in the previous two weeks. Member banks made some progress in cutting down discounts, this item falling by $69,000,000 to $1,063,700,000. The steady reduction in portfolio which has been forcing member banks to increase their borrowing over the past few weeks was halted. Bills rose $1,662,000 and government securities, $16,971,000.

MONEY.

Thursday, July 18, 1929.

Further relaxation came into the call loan market yesterday afternoon, carrying the rate down to 7 per cent. The period of credit strain is now generally considered over and present rates are expected to hold for a time. Time loans were unchanged during the day.

WATERBURY GAS CO. JOINS U. G. I. SYSTEM

Winsted Company's Directors to Decide Today on Taking Similar Action.

RAPID EXPANSION IN STATE

Big Corporation Expected Soon to Have $118,300,000 Chain There —Obstacles to Plans.

The United Gas Improvement Company, through pending transactions, will soon have in Connecticut a power and gas system which was valued at $118,300,000 at the end of 1928, and whose gross earnings last year were $17,960,000, it was learned yesterday when reports that the Connecticut Electric Service Company had acquired control of the Waterbury Gas Light Company were confirmed. Connecticut Electric Service has also submitted a bid for the Winsted Gas Company, on which the directors will act today.

The Connecticut Electric Service Company was merged recently into the Connecticut Electric Securities Company, in which United Gas Improvement has a substantial majority, thereby simplifying the holding structure for most of its properties in the State. United Gas Improvement also controls the Connecticut Gas and Coke Securities Company, which owns the New Haven Gas Light Company.

The Gas and Coke system is linked with the Koppers interests in Connecticut by means of its purchase of gas from the Connecticut Coke Company. United Engineers and Constructors, Inc., the U. G. I. engineering subsidiary, has built a sixty-five-mile steel pipe line from New Haven to Hartford, serving these cities and towns and cities between them, through which Koppers gas is distributed to United Gas Improvement subsidiaries as well as to independents.

Rapid Expansion Recently.

Expansion of the Philadelphia utility's holdings in Connecticut has been particularly rapid in recent months. A few weeks ago it purchased control of the Northern Connecticut Power from friendly interests which are reported to own the Central Connecticut Power and Light Company at the present time.

At the end of June, Connecticut Electric Service merged a number of its subsidiaries to simplify further the structure of the system, the companies combined being the Eastern Connecticut Power Company, the Gaylordsville Electric Company, the Kent Electric Light and Gas Company and the Uncas Power Company. The Ousatonic Water Power Company and the Connecticut Light and Power Company and subsidiaries are other Connecticut Electric Service properties.

The Waterbury Gas Light Company was obtained through the purchase of the controlling interest of large holders of the stock, including Walter B. Lasher and his associates, who will retire from the company. One share of Connecticut Electric Service stock was offered for each two shares of Waterbury Gas Light, and similar terms will be made to the minority stockholders. The company has assets of $4,759,262 and earned $1,097,328 in 1928. It supplies Waterbury, Naugatuck, Plymouth, Terryville, Thomaston and Watertown with gas.

The directors of the Winsted Gas Company are expected to approve the Connecticut Electric Service offer at today's meeting. The company is seventy-five years old, serves Winsted and Winchester with gas and electricity and is capitalized at $500,000. A meeting of its 100 stockholders will be necessary to ratify the deal.

Leading Companies Held Aloof.

The Hartford Electric Light Company, which is the principal holder in Connecticut Power Company, and the United Illuminating Company of New Haven, both of which occupy strategic positions in the State, have refused offers from all comers for many years.

The Hartford Electric group recently sold its Millerton Electric Light Company to the Central Hudson Gas and Electric Company, with which it is interconnected, thereby setting the State line as the dividing point between the two systems. The Hartford company lies in the path of the Northern New Jersey-New York Connecticut-Rhode Island-Boston transmission line which has been proposed by engineers. The New Haven company has across the projected shore line transmission system between New York and Boston, which the same authorities have recommended as part of an Eastern superpower system.

The present Connecticut Electric Service system has an important series of hydroelectric and steam generating establishments serving many of the principal industrial cities of the State, as well as extensive transmission lines distributing power throughout its territory. A new plant under construction at New Milford will be one of the leading hydroelectric plants in the State when completed.

The United Gas Improvement properties and the independent companies nearby participate in the Connecticut Valley Power Exchange, which extends through Massachusetts, Vermont and New Hampshire. From the past development of the U. G. I. system, however, it is regarded as evident that further properties in the State are desirable and that a growth of its holdings is probable.

PUBLIC UTILITY NOTES.

The Community Water Service Company has acquired, through the Greenwich Water and Gas System, Inc., a subsidiary, the water properties serving Dedham, Hingham, Scituate and Cohasset, Mass. The appraised value of these properties is $4,905,600, and gross earnings exceed $405,000 annually. Assets of the Greenwich Water and Gas System, Inc., are more than $19,300,000 and annual gross earnings exceed $1,450,000.

The Koppers Gas and Coke Company of Pittsburgh, Pa., has increased its authorized capital from 400,000 to 850,000 shares of no par value. Practically the entire present issue is owned by the Koppers Company of Delaware.

Thirty-Five Year 6% Gold Debentures, Series A
With Common Stock Option Warrants, Series of 1929

Each $1,000 debenture will be accompanied by Option Warrants, Series of 1929, entitling the holder to purchase 15 shares of the Common Stock Class A of the Corporation as such stock may be constituted at the time of purchase at any time up to and including January 1, 1930 at a price of $12.50 per share; thereafter and up to and including January 1, 1933 at a price of $15 per share; thereafter and up to and including January 1, 1938 at a price of $20 per share, on which last named date the rights to purchase represented by such Option Warrants, Series of 1929, shall expire.

Dated January 1, 1928 Due January 1, 1963

Interest will be payable semi-annually January 1st and July 1st. Principal and interest will be payable in United States Gold Coin of the standard weight and fineness existing on January 1, 1928, at the office or agency of the Corporation in New York City. Redeemable as a whole, or in part, at the option of the Corporation, at 107½ and accrued interest on any interest payment date on 60 days' notice.

TRUSTEE: BANKERS TRUST COMPANY, NEW YORK

The Corporation has agreed to pay interest on these Debentures without deduction for any United States Federal Income Tax up to but not exceeding 2% per annum. The Corporation has also agreed to refund on proper application the Pennsylvania 4 mills tax and the Massachusetts Income Tax not exceeding 6% per annum on income derived from the Debentures as provided in an indenture supplemental to the debenture agreement.

Messrs. L. K. Thorne and Giuseppe Toeplitz summarize their letter as follows:

Business Italian Superpower Corporation, organized under the laws of Delaware, owns substantial interests, but in no case a majority of the stock, in practically all of the important electric power and light companies and in the principal telephone company in the Kingdom of Italy.

With the modern adaptation of electricity to practically every line of industry, Italy has started on a remarkable development of her hydro-electric resources. Since 1922 the kilowatt hour output has more than doubled, although as yet only about one-third of the available power has been developed.

The assets applicable to the Thirty-Five Year 6% Gold Debentures, Series A, due 1963 as shown by the books of the Corporation on June 30, 1929, and after giving effect to the present financing, will exceed $37,000,000. This amount is equal to more than $1,660 for each $1,000 Debenture presently to be outstanding.

Earnings Earnings for the twelve months ended June 30, 1929 show a balance applicable to interest on the Thirty-Five Year 6% Gold Debentures, Series A, presently to be outstanding, of more than 1.85 times the annual interest charges thereof.

Management Italian Superpower Corporation is represented on the Boards of Directors of the majority of the companies in which it has investments. The Corporation thus brings to the electric power and light industry in Italy the benefit of the advice and experience of both the Italian and American members of its Board of Directors, two groups who have been prominently identified with and conspicuously successful in the operation, finance and development of the electric power and light industry in Italy and in the United States, respectively.

These Debentures are offered when, as and if issued and received by us and subject to approval of proceedings by counsel at 91 and accrued interest, to yield about 6.65%

BROKERS' LOANS SET NEW HIGH RECORD

Federal Reserve Reports Total of $5,813,000,000, Rise of $58,000,000 in Week.

END OF CREDIT POLICY SEEN

AID FOR MARKET EXPECTED

Bankers Here Predict Authorities Will Soon Take Steps to Relieve Strain.

Stock brokers' loans yesterday surpassed their highest records. The report of the Federal Reserve Board showed an expansion of $58,000,000 in this account in the week, bringing the funds advanced on security collateral to a total of $5,813,000,000. This was exactly $20,000,000 greater than they ever had been before, the previous high point being the $5,793,000,000 of March 20.

More than $500,000,000 of this total has been added to the loan account in the last five weeks, since railroad and public utility stocks have flared up in the market and since the country as a whole has once more turned its attention to the stock market. The year's low point was $5,284,000,000, which was the total reported both five and six weeks ago. Borrowings by brokers have now reached a point, too, where they are $144,000,000 above the level at which they stood on Feb. 6, when the Federal Reserve Board issued its warning against the expansion of speculative credits. Yesterday's figure of $5,813,000,000 represents an increase of $1,619,000,000 in brokers' loans in the past year, the total having stood at $4,194,000,000 on July 18, 1928.

For the past two weeks the old high record for brokers' borrowings has been teetering on the verge of eclipse. A rise of $227,000,000 announced the week before last carried the loans' total to within $24,000,000 of the old top. Last week the figures slid off $14,000,000, averting a new high total, but leaving the loans within striking distance of a record. Last night's figures pushed through the old high with $20,000,000 to spare.

Collapse of Reserve Policy Seen.

The advance in speculative borrowing to the highest figures ever seen, a little more than five months after the announcement of the Federal Reserve Board's campaign to restrict stock market borrowing, signalizes, in the opinion of Wall Street bankers, the collapse of the Reserve's much discussed "new technique" to control the uses to which Reserve credit is put.

The Federal Reserve Board, local bankers say, has "taken its licking" at the hands of the stock market, and no further measures to restrict credit are looked for, despite the expansion in loans. On the contrary, several well-informed bankers are looking now for the Reserve to take steps to relieve the credit strain brought on by its campaign against stock market loans. With the approach of the crop-moving season and the normal expansion of business demands for credit, it is predicted confidently that the Reserve will completely abandon its efforts to restrict credit and will take active steps to bring about lower rates in the money market.

It is still a little early, one banker said yesterday, to see in the slight rise in Reserve holdings of bankers' bills and government securities an indication of the long-awaited turn in Reserve policy. Within two weeks, he explained, the obscurity surrounding credit conditions as a result of the recent mid-year demands and the issuance of the new-size currency will have cleared up, and it will then be time enough to appraise the situation. At that time bankers expect to see a change in the open market operations of the Federal Reserve. To withhold credit any longer from the market in the attempt to deflate security borrowings might have a disastrous effect upon business, it is declared.

Detailed Figures.

The increase in lending to brokers shown in last night's statement came exclusively in the accommodation advanced by out-of-town banks and non banking lenders, classified in the Reserve's statement as "others."

Local member banks cut down their loans by $65,000,000. Despite this reduction in loans, the New York City banks were unable to reduce their indebtedness to the Reserve Bank by any great amount. That figure stood at $325,000,000, against $341,000,000 last week, a decline of $16,000,00.

Following are the detailed figures on stock and bond collateral loans made to brokers and dealers by reporting member banks in New York City:

Loans on Securities to Brokers and Dealers.
(In millions of dollars.)

	July17, 1929.	July10, 1929.	July18, 1928.
For own account	1,136	1,201	820
For out-of-town banks	1,676	1,624	1,587
For others	3,003	2,930	1,787
Total	5,813	5,755	4,194

Of this week's figures, $5,446,000,000 consisted of demand loans, against $5,360,000,000 last week, and $367,000,000 represented time loans, against $387,000,000 a week ago.

The total of bills discounted at the Federal Reserve Bank of New York fell off $16,394,000 in the week. Bill holdings expanded $3,968,000 and the government security portfolio went up by $17,606,000.

$69,241,000 Drop in Discounts.

For the twelve banks of the Reserve System, a decline of $69,241,000 in discounts was shown. Bills went up $1,662,000 and government securities $16,971,000. The result was a net decline in the amount of Federal Reserve credit in use of $51,118,000 in the past week. Federal Reserve note circulation dropped off somewhat from the high figures of a week ago, reflecting a return to more normal conditions now that much of the curiosity concerning the new-size bills has worn off. This decline in note circulation, accompanied by an advance of about $28,000,000 in gold reserves, sent the reserve ratio up from 73 per cent a week ago to 73.8 per cent.

BOARD MAKES NO COMMENT.

Handling of Credit Expected to Be Left to Banks in the System.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 18.—There was no development today to indicate that the Federal Reserve Board contemplated action in regard to speculative activities in stocks, despite the fact that the brokers' loans as reported by New York member banks rose to a new peak at $5,813,000,000, or $20,000,000 above the record established on March 20.

Governor Young of the Reserve Board is away from the city and none of the members here was willing to comment for publication on the latest development in the credit situation. So far as could be learned, the policy, for the present at least, will be to leave the handling of the speculative credit largely in the hands of the New York and other Reserve banks and member banks.

There appeared in some quarters to be satisfaction that, despite the new peak established by brokers' loans, the loans by New York member banks for their own account had been decreased by $64,000,000 and that borrowings from the New York Federal Reserve Bank had been reduced by $16,000,000 to $325,000,000.

Six members of the board, Messrs. Mellon, Pole, Platt, James, Miller and Hamlin, were in the city today, but it is understood that two or more will be absent next week and that the board's affairs may be handled temporarily by an executive committee.

The fact that a large portion of the heavy increases in brokers' loans during the last few weeks has resulted from the financing of new securities appears to have tempered any concern that may have been felt over the new peak reported today. The jump of $58,000,000, as compared with last week's total, however, was recognized as chiefly the result of the increased activities in the stock market.

PLANS OF H. O. STONE & CO.

Formation of Eight Companies for Division of Activities Proposed.

Plans for changes in the corporate construction of H. O. Stone & Co. by the formation of eight companies to carry on the business ramifications of the present company are contained in a letter to stockholders, calling a special meeting for Aug. 1 to consider the proposal. The limited charter powers of the present company and its ever widening range of activity are given as the reasons for the proposed change.

The companies recommended to be formed are H. O. Stone & Co, a Delaware corporation, to act as a holding corporation for seven subsidiaries, as follows: H. O. Stone Securities Company, to engage in general securities business; H. O. Stone Subdividers, Inc., to carry on subdivision work already started; H. O. Stone Management Company, to carry on the real estate and brokerage and management business of the present company; H. O. Stone Assets Company, primarily a holding company but also to assist in second financing; H. O. Stone Finance Company, to handle stock issues and matters of finance; H. O. Stone Investment Company, primarily a holding company; H. O. Stone Investment Trust, to be a common law trust to acquire and hold real estate and other assets applicable to the H. O. Stone business.

ASKS RETURN OF OLD BONDS

International Creditors' Committee Reports Appeal to Germany.

The International Committee of Creditors and Bond Holders of Paris has sent a letter to the president of the Reichsbank and to German Ministers of Finance and Foreign Affairs alleging that pre-war German bonds sent to German authorities in support of claims for payment have not been returned nor has payment been made, according to a copy of the letter made public here yesterday by the International Creditors Association of German Pre-War Currency at 25 Beaver Street.

The letter requests that proper steps be taken "to have all bonds, the application for the exchange of which has been rejected, returned immediately to their lawful holders, with the coupons and coupon exchange slip appertaining thereto, unless the holders have manifested their desire of having these bonds exchanged for bonds not redeemable by drawings. It is added that this "request is addressed to you to avoid the necessity of the institution of legal proceedings."

SOVIET HONORS AMERICANS.

"Star-Spangled Banner" Played for Tourists First Time Since War.

MOSCOW, July 18 (AP).—For the first time since the World War "The Star-Spangled Banner" was played here tonight in a public dining hall as a compliment to the ninety-nine Americans now on a tour of inspection of Soviet Russia.

Among those who responded to the toasts by the Soviet Department for Western Trade, which was the host, were Albert Ottinger, former Attorney General of New York State, and H. V. Kalter orn, associate editor of The Brooklyn Daily Eagle.

Speakers of Soviet trade organizations stressed the growing need of Russia for American engineers, capital and brains. The American speakers praised the warmth of the welcome given them by the Soviet Government and people and declared that the peoples of the two great republics were nearer understanding today than ever before.

LEHIGH GETS BIDS ON ELECTRIFICATION

Offers Submitted by General Electric and Westinghouse for 75 Miles.

BROWN BOVERI FIGURING

Cost of Project Between Mauch Chunk and Wilkes-Barre Put at $7,000,000 to $10,000,000.

The Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company and the General Electric Company have submitted bids for the electrification of seventy-five miles of the Lehigh Valley Railroad's main line between Mauch Chunk and Wilkes-Barre, Pa., it was learned yesterday. The American Brown Boveri Company is figuring on a bid for the project. It was estimated that the cost of the electrification would be between $7,000,000 and $10,000,000.

The three electrical companies recently completed surveys of the division which it is proposed to electrify. G. H. Foster, vice president of the Lehigh Valley, and his staff are now examining the figures of the General Electric and Westinghouse organization with a view to comparing the cost of operation under an electrical system with the cost as it is under steam operation.

Other Roads Electrifying.

The Lackawanna is about to begin installation of electric equipment on its lines through nearby New Jersey. The Reading is electrifying in the Philadelphia area. It is part of a system, which includes the Central of New Jersey, and the electrification of the entire system from Philadelphia to New York is predicted.

Last year the Pennsylvania announced a program for electrifying from here to Philadelphia, and eventually to Pittsburgh and Washington. The New York Central has made an electrical survey of its line from Croton to Buffalo.

One problem which Mr. Foster and his staff are considering is whether electrification on his line shall be with direct or alternating current. The Pennsylvania is using alternating current, and it is expected that the New York Central may do likewise. The Lackawanna, however, decided on direct current, which is the form of electricity used in the subways, on the line of the New York Central from this city to Croton and on the Long Island Railroad.

Mountain Territory Involved.

The section of the Lehigh Valley which it is proposed to electrify runs through mountain territory, and freight trains are moved over it with three-cylinder locomotives. Trains change engines at each end of this operating division under steam operation, and the substitution of electricity for steam on this section would not involve more stops than are made now.

Representatives of the electrical companies have told Mr. Foster that the use of electricity on this division would make possible the movement of more and longer trains at greater speed than is possible with steam. They have also submitted figures to show that the maintenance of electric locomotives would be considerably below the same charges for steam equipment. The Lehigh Valley is making a close study to determine whether the use of present or even more powerful steam equipment would enable the road to continue its present schedules without making a large capital outlay for electrical equipment.

The Lehigh Valley could finance the proposed electrification with ease, as its earnings are substantial and its corporate surplus exceeds $63,000,000.

ERIE BORROWS $8,370,000.

Railroad Accepts Bid for Equipment Trust Certificates.

Subject to the approval of the Interstate Commerce Commission, the Erie Railroad yesterday accepted the high bid of 94.847 made by the First National Corporation of Boston, Harrison, Smith & Co. and Kean, Taylor & Co. for an issue of $8,370,000 4½ per cent equipment trust certificates, due in from one to fifteen years.

Proceeds will be applied toward the purchase of new equipment costing about $10,551,000.

Great Northern Seeks 12 Engines.

The Great Northern Railway is in the market for twelve 4-8-4 locomotives, according to Iron Age. The Texas Pacific will purchase five mountain-type engines and the Burlington is considering the purchase of twenty-five locomotives. The Detroit & Toledo shore line will buy six Mikado locomotives.

STUDIES SEWING MACHINES.

Head of Soviet State Trust Here to Learn American Methods.

E. I. Efimov, chairman of the board of Gosshveymashina, the Soviet State sewing machine trust, is in the United States with three engineers of Gasshveymashina, studying the methods of the sewing machine industry in this country.

At the office of the Amtorg Trading Corporation, where he is making his American headquarters, Mr. Efimov said yesterday that Russia would produce 450,000 sewing machines this year and that this number would not supply the demand. He reported a production of 250,000 machines last year and 60,000 five years ago. Plans are being made for an annual output of 1,000,000 machines by 1933.

Equitable Trust Approves Merger.

Stockholders of the Equitable Trust Company at a special meeting yesterday approved the agreement of the merger of the Seaboard Bank into the trust company. The increase in the capital stock of the trust company from $30,000,000 to $46,500,000 was also approved under the plans of the merger, which were announced on July 2.

History and Business

The Hercules Motors Corporation, incorporated under the laws of Ohio in 1923, is engaged in the manufacture of four-cylinder and six-cylinder internal combustion engines for trucks, buses and industrial uses. Starting originally with the production of a heavy duty four-cylinder engine for truck service, the Company in recent years has been continually developing industrial outlets for its product so that at the present time approximately 60% of the Company's output, compared with less than 16% in 1924, is for agricultural and industrial use. Through its reputation for quality of product and efficiency of service, the Company has built up a list of over 200 customers, including such concerns as:

John Deere & Co.
Chicago Pneumatic Tool Co.
Minneapolis Threshing Machine Co.
Nichols & Shepard
Diamond T Motor Car Co.
Indiana Truck Company
Autocar Company
Advance Rumely Company
Marion Steam Shovel Co.

Plant

The plant, located at Canton, Ohio, is of modern concrete and steel fireproof construction. Employees number approximately 1,000.

Earnings

In each of the past six years, sales have shown an annual increase. Net earnings after depreciation and Federal Taxes for the past three and one-half years, as certified by Messrs. Ernst & Ernst, have been as follows:

6 mos. end. June 30th 1929	Calendar Year 1928	1927	1926

The books of the Company have been kept on a conservative basis, all development expense having been written off. The substantial increase in earnings in 1928 and 1929 has been due largely to the increased field resulting from the development of the Company's six-cylinder motors, which were developed in 1927, together with the increasing demand for the Company's product as a result of its reputation for reliability.

Assets

Balance Sheet as of June 30, 1929, certified by Messrs. Ernst & Ernst and adjusted to present financing, shows Current Assets of $2,492,224, including $472,318 Marketable Securities and Cash on Hand compared with Current Liabilities of $594,414. An appraisal of the Company's plant, made September 15, 1928, by the American Appraisal Company, was $700,000 in excess of depreciated book value of the plant. Net Tangible Assets, taking plant at the book value, as of December 31, 1928, amounted to $2,825,131. The Company is amply supplied with working capital to provide for an increased volume of business and in addition $350,000 has been set aside in a special fund for necessary plant expansion.

Management

The management will continue in the hands of those responsible for the Company's recent growth. The Board of Directors is composed of the following:

CHARLES BALOUGH, President
R. W. GALLAGHER, Pres. East Ohio Gas Company
GORDON M. MATHER, Pres., Mather Spring Co. and Director of Willys-Overland Co.
EDWARD A. LANGENBACH, Chairman, The McCaskey Register Co., and Director Union Trust Co. of Cleveland.
H. H. TIMKEN, Chairman, Timken Roller Bearing Co.

BILLS OUTSTANDING INCREASE $5,880,394

Report for June Indicates Declining Trend in Acceptance Volume Has Ended.

GAIN IN CREDITS ABROAD

Council Reports They Are Chiefly Responsible for Change—Rate Regarded as Firm.

Evidence that the seasonal movement in the volume of bankers' acceptances outstanding has passed the low point in its decline and turned upward was contained in the survey of the American Acceptance Council, as of June 29, released last night.

The total volume of bills outstanding on that date was $1,113,049,246, a gain of $5,880,394 over the figure for May 31, and $86,883,951 higher than the volume for the same date in 1928.

Commenting on the results shown in the survey, Robert H. Bean, executive secretary of the council, says:

"Examining the types of acceptance credits that are used and the comparisan of the total of each with the previous report, it is seen that the greatest gain is in credits based on goods stored abroad or shipped between foreign countries. This volume increased $20,789,968 during the month and is now within $3,500,000 of the highest level reported.

"Import credits remained at about the same total as in May, but export credits declined $12,900,000 to $368,000,000, the lowest point since September, 1928.

"Domestic shipments took only $14,000,000, while warehouse secured credits declined $7,300,000 to $87,814,000, a loss that was almost exactly absorbed by a gain in credits to create dollar exchange."

"It is significant that this year's increased use of bankers' acceptance credits for seasonal requirements comes fully two months ahead of 1928, when the lowest total was reached on Aug. 31, at $952,000,000.

"A considerable part of the average increase in acceptance financing since the first of the year, as well as the growing volume at this time, is largely the result of the prosperous condition of business in this country and the tremendous production records that have been set up in the major industries, resulting in unusually large credit demands. Also the careful adjustment of rates to keep acceptance credit costs attractive to borrowers has been a strong influence in maintaining our dollar acceptance prestige.

"The present rate of 5¼ per cent bid, 5⅛ per cent asked, on maturities up to ninety days appears to be about the rate that will produce this comfortable result, and it is not likely that the acceptance business for the next few months will be handled at more than a ⅛ per cent lower cost.

"If, as appears probable from the present report, the acceptance business is at the opening of a new season, the conditions could not be more promising, both with respect to the desire of the banks to make full use of their acceptance facilities and a bill market in the most favorable position for several years to absorb and distribute whatever volume is created."

WEEK'S GOLD MOVEMENT.

$14,188,000 Imported, $4,997,000 Earmarked, $79,000 Exported.

Movements of gold at the port of New York in the week ended July 17, as announced last night by the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, consisted of imports of $14,188,000 and exports of $79,000, leaving a net gain to this market of $14,109,000.

Another increase in gold earmarked for foreign account was shown in the statement. This amounted to $4,997,000 and was believed to be for the account of France or Germany. Since gold earmarking is virtually equal to gold exports, the surplus of gold imports shown for the week may be considered as reduced by the amount of the earmarking, bringing the gain to this market down to $9,112,000.

Of the amount imported, $9,274,000 came from Argentina, $4,872,000 from England and $42,000 chiefly from Latin-American countries. Exports consisted of $69,000 to Mexico and $10,000 to Trinidad.

BUILDING GAINS IN CANADA.

National Railways Official Tells of New High Record in West.

Building construction in Western Canada has reached a new high record, according to S. J. Hungerford, vice president of the Canadian National Railways. He said that building activity was marked in all Western cities, but particularly in Saskatoon and Regina, Sask.

The Canadian National is building a large hotel in Saskatoon. It is also pushing construction of the Hudson Bay Railway, a branch to the Sheritt-Gordon mine in Northern Manitoba and the branch to the Flin Flon mining development. The Canadian National is placing three new vessels in service on the coast of British Columbia with accommodations for 240 passengers each.

MARKETS IN LONDON, PARIS AND BERLIN

FRENCH STOCKS DEPRESSED

LONDON, July 18.—The Stock Exchange today again experienced a lack of business. Conditions were quiet, with the dull tendency due to fears of gold withdrawals and the latest news from China. Gilt-edge securities were still weak in anticipation of further withdrawals of gold from the Bank of England. The war loan was £100⅝.

In the foreign market Chinese bonds were rather heavy, owing to the severing of official relations with Russia, but the price changes were small. The 5 per cent issue of 1912 was prominent at £45. Japanese bonds also were affected.

One of the best features of the industrial section was provided by Columbia Gramophone, which spurted to £13 9-16. Shipping shares were steady, Royal Mail recovering to £60 after opening lower at £59. Cables and Wireless issues were not so firm, the 5½ per cent preference easing to 95s and the B ordinary to 88⅛s. There was a sharp reaction in Imperial Chemical from 35s to 34s 3d and the deferred eased to 13s 7½d.

Rubber declined ¼d to 10⅝d a pound and shares were dull in sympathy. Oils were still under the influence of the American output figures. Mexican Eagle was flat at 15s 1½d. In the Rhodesian mines division Bwana was offered at 21s and N'Changa at £3 5-16.

The cædit supply was plentiful in Lombard Street, the day-to-day loans charge decreasing to 4¼ per cent in the afternoon, while at the close balances were obtainable at 4 per cent.

French Market Still Dull.

PARIS, July 18.—After a fairly steady opening, a new depression developed on the Bourse today and a selling wave affecting nearly the whole market soon resulted. Bank of France stocks fell off 500 francs from the day's high and Sues dropped 350.

Dos to political uncertainties that prolong themselves indefinitely, the Bourse seems now to be affected quickly by any unfavorable movement, while it takes some time for it again to recover confidence, and trading remains at a minimum.

Rentes, however, resisted the tendencies of the remainder of the list and in some cases today even showed an improvement. They closed as follows: 3s, 75.25; 1918 4s, 91.70; 1920 amortizable 5s, 125.75; 1920 6s, 108; 1927 amortizable 6s, 111.

German Market Weak.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, July 18.—Today's Boerse was greatly depressed, due to the trouble between Russia and China, which caused general nervousness. Significantly, Deutsche Waffen, manufacturers of arms, advanced a number of points to 65. Even A. E. G. shares, which at first were resistive, yielded later to the general decline. M. Briand's speech on the Rhineland evacuation and tightness of the money market were further depressing factors.

The mining market was considerably weaker. Phoenix, United Steel and Kloeckner dropped more than three points and Essen Lignite four points. Schubert & Salzer of the machinery lost ten points, Polyphon eased to 396, Glazed Textiles to 392 and North German Lloyd and Hapag dropped two points each.

Reichsbank shares lost five points and Dye Trust weakened to 226. Toward the close several stocks recovered part of their losses.

JAPANESE EXPORTS GAIN.

Amount to 1,016,000,000 Yen in First Half of 1929.

Japanese exports totaled 1,016,000,000 yen during the first six months of 1929, it was announced yesterday by the commercial secretary of the Japanese Embassy. The unfavorable balance of trade was 282,000,000 yen, though exports were 73,000,000 yen greater than in the corresponding period of last year. Exports of silk goods, raw silk and wheat flour increased, as did imports of raw cotton.

The report declares that the money market in Japan is showing an easy trend, and the conversion of old bonds has been stimulated by the low interest. Industry in general has curtailed production in the recent depression. With the establishment of the new Cabinet the yen advanced and the bond market recovered.

The proportion of the bank's reserve to liabilities is 43.86 per cent.

Last week the bank's ratio was 41.93 per cent, two weeks ago it was 33.01. The percentage for June 13 of 57.97 per cent was the highest of the year and the highest reported in any week since Sept. 24, 1913. The lowest this year was 24.26 on Jan. 3. The highest percentage in 1928 was 55.13 on Sept. 13, which was then the highest since 1914; the lowest was 21.95 on Jan. 4.

The statement, compared with the corresponding week one and two years ago, is as follows:

Other securities	37,293,294	50,240,562	48,610,271

The gold holdings of June 13, £164,211,400, were the lowest reported by the Bank of England this year; the smallest were £149,917,446, on Feb. 5. The gold holdings of Sept. 12, 1928, £176,584,362, were the largest in the history of the Bank. At the end of April, 1925, when British gold payments were resumed, they stood at £155,742,064. They increased to £164,500,162 on Aug. 5 of that year and declined to £143,711,895 on Jan. 20, 1926, the lowest figure since gold resumption.

The Bank of England's official discount rate remains at 5½ per cent, to which it was advanced from 4½ per cent on Feb. 7.

Statistics showing that foreign trading zones have been established by sixteen commercial countries in thirty-four ports and that twenty-three additional zones have been proposed or authorized in eight different countries were forwarded to the Senate Committee on Finance by the Merchants Association yesterday.

FRENCH GOLD RESERVE INCREASES IN WEEK

PARIS, July 18 (AP).—The weekly statement of the Bank of France shows the following changes in francs:

Gold	increased	11,000,000
Sight balances abroad	increased	14,000,000
Bills discounted at home	decreased	221,000,000
Bills bought abroad	increased	27,000,000
Advances	decreased	60,000,000
Circulation	decreased	257,000,000
Current accounts	decreased	155,000,000

With the above changes for the week, yesterday's statement of the Bank of France, which covers the actual position of a week ago, compares as follows with those of the two preceding weeks and the week ended June 30, 1928, when revaluation of the franc was put into force. Items in the table are in millions of francs:

	July 18, 1929.	July 11, 1929.	July 4, 1929.	June 30, 1928.

The gold reserve reported two weeks ago was the largest in the history of the bank. The largest holdings prior to revaluation of the currency in 1928 were on Sept. 2, 1920, when they were 5,590,670,890 francs at the old valuation, or 27,953,300,000 according to the present franc value. The note circulation of last week was the highest ever recorded. Prior to the stabilization decree, the highest point reached by the bank's note circulation, which was then held at about the present franc valuation, was 60,884,546,000 francs on May 10, 1928. A year ago it was 60,161,702,000.

The French bank's official discount rate remains at 3½ per cent, to which it was reduced on Jan. 10, 1928.

CREDIT FOR BERLIN TRANSIT

A credit of $7,500,000, which will run for one year, has been extended to the Berlin Communications Company by a banking group consisting of Kuhn, Loeb & Co., the Guaranty Company, the International Manhattan Company, the J. Henry Schroder Banking Corporation and the Chemical National Company. A credit of similar amount has been arranged for the company in London. It is strictly a banking transaction and will not involve public financing.

The Berlin Communications Company was organized in 1928 as a holding company to consolidate companies owning and operating the elevated, subway, street railway and omnibus systems of Berlin, with assets of more than $150,000,000. All of the stock of the company is owned by the city of Berlin.

CANADA TO REDEEM $60,000,000 BONDS

Will Pay Cash on Aug. 1 to Retire 1919 Loan, Says the Canadian Pacific's Review.

DEBT REDUCED $92,000,000

Dominion's Finances Improve in Past Year and First Quarter of New Year.

The issue of $60,000,000 Dominion of Canada 5½ per cent bonds, which was marketed in July, 1919, by a syndicate headed by J. P. Morgan & Co., and which will mature on Aug. 1, will be paid in cash by the Dominion Government, according to the weekly trade review of the Canadian Pacific Railway. In this connection, it is stated that credits to miscellaneous and banking accounts amounted to $170,180,000, which were mainly cash, at the end of June, compared with debits of only $1,826,000.

Maturities of the Dominion's bonds will be heavy during the next eight years. Next year $65,000,000 will fall due, $77,931,000 in 1931, $73,335,000 in 1932 and in 1933 $446,658,000 and in 1934, $535,377,000. The heavy 1933 and 1934 maturities are those of the 1918 and 1919 Victory loans.

"It is quite probable that maturities up to 1925 will be redeemed in cash, but no doubt there will be refunding of the larger sums in part at least," says the review. "The next large amount which falls due is that of the Victory loan of 1917, which is payable in 1937, and, with war loans of the same year, amounts to $326,466,000. There are in addition maturities to the amount of something over $700,000,000 due between 1940 and 1960.

Reduction of Dominion Debt.

"The net debt of the Dominion of Canada at the end of June was $2,151,522,000. A year earlier it stood at $2,244,142,000, so that within the year there has been a reduction of approximately $92,000,000. The gross debt at the end of June was $2,697,-$19,000 and showed a decline of $24,-000,000 for the year. In the meantime active assets had risen by $68,-000,000, thus providing the larger contribution to the reduction of the net debt.

"The reduction in the gross debt during the year previous to June was due chiefly to the retirement of funded debt. At the end of June the funded debt of the Dominion was $2,358,041,000, as compared with $2,397,422,000. At the end of the last calendar year Canada had a small temporary loan of $201,000, but this was paid off in January and no entries now appear in the public accounts under this heading.

"In addition to the reduction in the funded debt during the year there was a decline also in the liability of the government savings banks of some $3,000,000. On the other side of the ledger there was an increase of $6,000,000 in the circulation of Dominion notes, of $10,-000,000 in the liabilities on account of government annuities, insurance and superannuation funds, and $1,000,000 each in trust funds and postoffice liabilities. On the balance the reduction in the gross liabilities of the Dominion during the year was $24,000,000.

Increase in Revenue.

"The June statement of Dominion accounts covers the first quarter of the present fiscal year and indicates a moderate increase in revenues with very little increase in expenditures. The grand total expenditures for the corresponding period of the previous three months was $80,669,000, as compared with $78,415,060 for the fiscal year. Ordinary expenditures were up by less than $500,000, the increase being due to larger expenditures on railways and canals and an advance made by the government to the Canadian Government merchant marine.

"Revenues for the three months were $144,652,000, as against $131,-122,000 in the three months ended with June, 1928. Of this increase of approximately $13,000,000, $12,000,000 were derived from taxes and the balance chiefly from interest on investments and increase in postoffice revenue. The largest increase in tax revenues was in income tax, which rose from $47,485,000 to $56,596,000. There were increases also in customs revenues and to a small extent in taxes on liquor and tobacco. The sales tax revenues fell off owing to a reduction in the rate made at the last session of Parliament.

"The reduction of taxation parallel with the reduction of debt is the declared policy of the Canadian Government."

Greater Gains with Lesser Risks

Credit Foncier International, Inc., is an investment trust whose portfolio consists principally of prime first mortgages so thoroughly diversified that the investor's money is spread over many sound mortgages. The entire loss of any one mortgage would be a matter too small for real concern; yet the world's experience is that loss through mortgages averages below 1%, which is negligible. On the other hand mortgage company profits are unusually attractive.

You can purchase this Company's Units, consisting of one share of Cumulative First Preferred Stock, paying 7% dividends regularly and one share of Common, which enables you to share in the profits.

BOND TRADING LIGHT IN A DULL MARKET

Transactions Totaling Only $10,312,000 Are Smallest for Any Day This Month.

CONVERTIBLES IRREGULAR

Move In Sympathy With Stocks—Government Issues Decline—Rails Fairly Active.

Trading in the listed bond market was very dull yesterday compared with the recent activity. Total transactions amounted to only $10,312,000, the smallest total this month. Convertible bonds closed irregular in sympathy with stocks, including rail issues, which have been generally favored this week. Liberty and Treasury issues were again lower, following the announcement by the Treasury that holders of more than $75,000,000 of the Treasury 3½s were willing to sell their bonds to the Treasury at 98. The fourth Liberty 4¼s showed the only gain in this group, advancing 8-32ds, with the balance of the list off 1-32 to ½.

In the convertible group Alleghany 5s lost fractionally, American Telephone and Telegraph 4½s were down 1½ points, Atchison 4½s were off 1½ and International Telephone and Telegraph 4½s off ½. Public Service Corporation of New Jersey convertible 4½s stood out, with a net gain of 10 points, compared with a gain of slightly more than 2 points for the stock.

Railroad bonds continued moderately active, with final prices irregular. Southern Pacific 4½s, with warrants, were up fractionally, as were Southern Railway 5s. New Haven convertible 6s duplicated the previous high at 132, closing at 131½, up half a point. St. Paul adjustment 5s were active and fractionally higher.

Foreign loans were inclined to be dull and net changes for the day were relatively unimportant. Saarbruecken 6s dropped 5¼ points to a new low at 80¾ on small trading.

MUNICIPAL LOANS.

Announcements of Awards to Bankers and New Offerings to Be Made.

Chicago, Ill.

Negotiations for the purchase of the issue of $40,725,000 City of Chicago Board of Education 6 per cent anticipation warrant notes by a group headed by Halsey, Stuart & Co. may be completed this week and the issue offered to the public on Monday, according to advices received here yesterday. The negotiations received a temporary check last week when the Chicago City Council took exception to the depositary arrangements. It is understood that the 6 per cent rate will stand and that the maturities, which range from May 15, 1930, to Oct. 15, 1930, will remain unchanged.

Cook County, Ill.

Award of a new issue of $500,000 Cook County (Ill.) Forest Preserve District 4 per cent bonds, Series N, maturing serially from Dec. 1, 1929 to 1948, has been made at a price of 95.73. The successful syndicate is composed of the Harris Trust and Savings Bank, the First Union Trust and Savings Bank, the Continental Illinois Company and the Northern Trust Company, all of Chicago. The second highest bid was 95.31 by a group headed by the National City Company, and the third, 95.03, by the Detroit Company, Inc., and associates. A syndicate headed by the Guaranty Company of New York bid 94.64.

Pittsfield, Mass.

Award of an issue of $329,000 Pittsfield (Mass.) 4½ per cent bonds, due serially from July 15, 1930 to 1949, has been made to R. L. Day & Co. at a price of 101.46. The bonds are issued for school, sewer, paving and water purposes.

Jacksonville, Fla.

The city of Jacksonville, Fla., will be in the market on July 29 with a new issue of $193,000 4½ per cent bonds. The issue will consist of $143,000 street bonds, due June 1, 1934, and $50,000 sidewalk bonds, due June 1, 1933 to 1935.

Passaic County, N. J.

No bids were received by Passaic County, N. J., on the issue of $975,000 bonds, due July 1, 1930 to 1948, because of the interest rate, which was limited to 4½ per cent. Last December the county was successful in marketing an issue of $2,954,000 one to forty years' hospital 4½s at a price of 101.562.

Los Angeles, Cal.

Details on the $3,700,000 City of Los Angeles bonds to be sold on July 23, received here yesterday, indicate that the $2,200,000 harbor improvement bonds will mature on Oct. 1, 1929 to 1968, and are to be bid for as not to exceed 4½, and the $1,500,000 funding bonds will mature on Oct. 1, 1929 to 1948, with the interest rate limited to 5 per cent.

Cumberland, Md.

Townsend Scott & Son, Baker, Watts & Co. and Nelson, Cook & Co., all of Baltimore, have announced that they have received the award of an issue of $125,000 City of Cumberland (Md.) 4½ per cent hospital bonds, due Aug. 1, 1959. The price paid was 99.89.

BOND FLOTATION.

Italian Superpower Corporation.

A new issue of $4,000,000 Italian Superpower Corporation of Delaware thirty-five-year 6 per cent debentures, series A, will be placed on the market today at 91, to yield 6.65 per cent, by a syndicate comprising Bonbright & Co., Inc.; Field, Glore & Co., and the Banca Commerciale Italiana Trust Company. The issue will carry common stock option warrants.

The corporation has been organized under the laws of Delaware to own substantial interests in practically all of the important power, light and telephone companies in Italy. All of the stocks owned are on a cash dividend basis. The report of earnings of the company for the twelve months ended on June 30 shows a balance available for interest on the $22,500,000 of 6 per cent debentures to be presently outstanding, of more than 1.85 times the annual interest charges.

SPEEDS KOLSTER FINANCING

California Approves Plan for Conversion of Preferred Stock.

The Corporation Department of California has authorized the Kolster Radio Corporation to issue 31,250 transferrable warrants to holders of 250,000 shares of preferred stock offered to common stockholders in the ratio of one preferred share for eight common shares held at $45 a share, it was announced yesterday. The preferred is convertible into common stock share for share until 50,000 shares have been converted, thereafter share for share plus $5 up to 75,000 shares, and thereafter share for share plus $10.

The company is reclassifying its stock to cut the authorized common stock from 1,500,000 to 1,000,000 shares, and setting up 150,000 preferred shares. There are 523,829 common shares now outstanding, of which 23,829 have waived rights to preferred.

$6,000,000 Bond Issue Placed.

Private placing of an issue of $6,000,000 Fifth Avenue and Forty-third Street Building Corporation twenty-year first mortgage bonds was announced yesterday by Lawrence Stern & Co. The issue was taken by an insurance company at par. The bonds will bear interest at 5½ per cent to 1939, and thereafter to maturity at 5 per cent. The mortgage is secured by a closed first lien on the land and thirty-seven-story Lefcourt National Building at the northeast corner of Fifth Avenue and Forty-third Street.

NEW STOCK ISSUES.

Corporation Shares to Be Offered to the Public for Subscription.

Hercules Motors.

A block of 150,000 shares of Hercules Motors Corporation capital stock will be offered today by Hornblower & Weeks at $30 a share. Of the amount offered, 125,000 shares have been purchased from individuals, as that only 25,000 shares represent new financing by the company. Application will be made to list the shares on the Chicago Stock Exchange. According to the bankers, the directors intend to place the stock on a $1.80 annual dividend basis.

The company was organized in 192[illegible] to manufacture motors for trucks and industrial uses. Of the total output, 60 per cent is for agricultural and industrial purposes, against 16 per cent in 1924. Net earnings for 1928, after depreciation and Federal taxes, amounted to $492,948, and for the first six months of 1929, $636,671.

May Radio & Television.

A new issue of 60,000 shares of May Radio & Television Corporation common stock will be offered soon by J. L. Thompson & Co. The company, which was organized to acquire D. W. May, Inc., the May Radio Corporation, the May Distributing Corporation and the Winthrop Holding Company, is capitalized at 120,000 shares of common stock, of which 110,000 are to be outstanding. According to the bankers, it is planned to place the stock on a $1.50 annual dividend basis. Proceeds from the new financing will enable the company to extend its operations to various Eastern cities.

Grand Central Surety.

A new lease of 25,000 shares of Grand Central Surety Company capital stock will be marketed soon by the company and by the State Capital Corporation. The company, which has been charted in this State to do a general surety and re-insurance business, will start with an initial paid-in capital and surplus of $375,000, consisting of an authorized capitalization of 25,000 shares, of $10 par value, and surplus of $125,000.

TRUST TO GIVE RIGHTS.

Power and Light Securities Plans 25% Increase in Stock.

Trustees of the Power and Light Securities Trust have authorized a 25 per cent increase in stock with rights for shareholders of July 22 to buy one new share at $80 in the ratio of one new share for each four shares outstanding on that date. Capitalization as of June 30 comprised 60,600 shares of beneficial interest and 80,000 warrants which entitle the purchase at any time of one share at $75. The new offering will increase new shares outstanding by at least 15,150 shares and by as many more as will be required to care for shares issued before July 22 through the exercise of warrants.

Earnings for the year ended June 30, including profits from the sale of securities and after deduction of expenses and reserves, were $287,882, against $70,687 in the preceding like period, or $6.33 a share against $8.37.

Securities carried on the balance sheet of June 30 at $3,144,705 had a market value on that date of $4,643,480, a gain of 47.8 per cent. Securities owned comprise largely electric operating and holding companies' stocks.

Vick Corporation Stock Offered.

The Vick Chemical Corporation is offering common stock of the Vick Financial Corporation to wholesale and retail distributers of its products at $10 a share. It made a similar offering of its own stock in 1925 and distributed shares at a face value of about $1,000,000 at $41 to $45 a share. Any owner, director or manager of a wholesale or retail house handling the products may subscribe for not more than 500 shares and each employe of such a house may subscribe for not more than 100 or less than 10 shares. Time payments may be arranged.

RESERVE BANK POSITION.

Range of Important Items in 1929 Compared With Preceding Years.

Yesterday's statement of the twelve Reserve banks showed that total gold holdings for the system were at the highest of the year to date. No other important item in the system reached a new high or low point.

The following table shows the highest and lowest points reached thus far in 1929 and in a series of years past. All figures except ratio of reserve are in thousands of dollars.

SEAT PRICES SOAR ON BOTH EXCHANGES

Rise of $42,000 to $455,000 Is Reported for Membership on "Big Board."

3 HIGH RECORDS FOR CURB

Successive Sales at $215,000, $222,000 and $225,000 Pass Recent Peak of $200,000.

Memberships in the New York Stock Exchange and the New York Curb Exchange were sold yesterday at wide advances from recent prices. A membership on the Stock Exchange was sold for $455,000, or $42,000 more than the price paid in the last previous transaction. While yesterday's price is not a record, the difference between it and that of the preceding sale was unusually large.

Three successive sales established as many high-price records for seats on the Curb. The first sale announced was at $215,000, the second at $222,000 and the third and last at $225,000. The previous record, established early in the week, was $200,000.

Another former telephone clerk is to become a member on the Stock Exchange, it was announced yesterday. He is Charles Davis, a clerk for Arthur Bramwell, who was an employe of the Exchange from 1916 to 1921.

The New York Stock Exchange announced the following membership changes or proposed changes:

Proposed transfer of membership: Edward J. Duffy to Edward J. Duffy Jr., Kean, Taylor & Co.; consideration nominal.

Proposed transfer of membership ex-rights, Morton D. Hutzler to Bertram F. Brummer, Salomon Brothers & Hutzler; consideration nominal.

Applications for membership by transfer of rights: Henry C. Kaplan, Kenneth M. Seggerman, Sylvester P. Larkin, Morton S. Webster (Salomon Brothers & Hutzler), and Charles Davis.

Memberships transferred ex-rights: Robert H. Gibson to Clifford E. Gibson, R. H. Gibson & Co., Cincinnati; Winthrop Burr, deceased, to Clarence F. Avery, Gould, Avery & Co., and Henry E. Butler to Kenneth A. Wood, J. C. Dunn & Co.

Members elected on transfer of rights: Herbert George King, Arnold & Co.; Edmund Rhodes at Newborg & Co., and Frank G. Tallman Jr., at J. R. Williston & Co.

Distributors Group to Expand.

Distributors Group, Inc., the membership of which consists of forty representatives of twenty investment companies in principal cities of the country, will hold its mid-year meeting today in the offices of Lee, Stewart & Co., 63 Wall Street. An expansion program will be submitted to the meeting for approval, according to Thomas F. Lee, president of Lee, Stewart & Co. and executive vice president of the Group.

GLOBE UNDERWRITERS REPORTS ON HOLDINGS

Its Assets in Various Companies Total $15,267,918—Capital and Surplus $6,966,882.

The Globe Underwriters Exchange, Inc., a holding company for insurance stocks, issued yesterday through Paine, Webber & Co. a report of its investments. It includes in its purposes the interchange of business among companies in which it is interested, the investment of funds and the provision of capital.

Among the companies in which Globe Underwriters has invested are the Iduna group of three German organizations which deal in fire, casualty and life insurance; the Skandinavien Fire and Casualty Insurance Company of Stockholm, the second largest company of its kind in Sweden; the Savannah Fire Insurance Company of Savannah, Ga., and the Home Insurance Company of the Carolinas, Charleston, S. C., both under the management of S. Lewis Johnson, and the Republic Insurance Company of Dallas, Texas.

The holding company reports total assets of $15,267,918, and capital and surplus of $6,966,882. The report says that it is the object of the company to coordinate the control of insurance companies without, however, displacing local managements or concentrating the operation of companies into one headquarters with identical officers and directors.

ASKS AID IN INSURANCE WAR

Dunham Wants Companies to Deal Only With Licensed Agents.

Cooperation of insurance companies to the extent of refusing business except from agents whom they know are licensed in the campaign in Connecticut to rid the State of unlicensed agents is asked in a statement issued by Insurance Commissioner Howard P. Dunham. Mr. Dunham said three convictions had been obtained under the State law requiring agents to be licensed by the State Insurance department.

"Unless a man is lacking in intelligence or is too lazy to prepare himself for the business," said Mr. Dunham, "there is no great difficulty about obtaining a license. A company makes applications for its agents who present themselves for examinations at the office of the insurance department. By not accepting business until they are certain that licenses are in the possession of the applicants, these companies can aid us materially in dealing with the unlicensed agent menace."

Form New Insurance Company.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, July 18.—Announcement was made today of the forming of the Great Eastern Fire Insurance Company, with Frederick H. Hurdman as chairman of the board and Allan C. Stevens as president. The home offices are to be in the new People's Bank Building. The entire capital stock has been subscribed and the company will begin business about Sept. 1.

BANKS IN PHILADELPHIA IN $49,000,000 MERGER

Directors of Central National and American National Vote for Consolidation.

PHILADELPHIA, July 18 (AP).—A $49,000,000 merger was voted today by the directors of the Central National Bank and the American National Bank and Trust Company of this city.

The consolidated institution will be known as the Central National Bank of Philadelphia. Archie D. Swift, president of the Central National, will head it. Total resources of the two institutions on June 29 were $49,084,429.

Acquires Detroit Creameries.

National Dairy Products, Inc., has acquired the Detroit Creameries, Inc., under a plan of merger announced on June 18, more than 75 per cent of the stock of the latter having been deposited to be exchanged for shares of National Dairy on the basis of two and a half for one. The acquired company, which has its main plant in Detroit, operates in Michigan. It controls the Pontiac Dairy Company of Pontiac, the White Ice Cream Company of Flint, the Williams Ice Cream Company of Saginaw and the Wilson Ice Cream Company and the Carlisle Ice Cream Company of Port Huron. Its capital stock is 1,200,000 shares of $10 par value.

SILVER OUTPUT REPORTED.

Production in United States and Canada Reduced in June.

Silver production in the United States in June was 5,003,000 fine ounces, compared with 5,080,000 ounces in May, making the half year's total 30,527,000 ounces, and the monthly average 5,088,000.

Canada produced 1,148,000 ounces in June, 1,560,000 in May and 8,297,000 in the half year, for an average of 1,382,000 monthly.

Peru produced 1,978,000 ounces in June, 1,901,000 in May, and in the half year 10,784,000, making a monthly average of 1,797,000 ounces.

Australia produced 730,000 ounces in June, 680,000 in May and 4,114,000 in the six months, with a monthly average of 686,000 ounces.

The last figures available from Mexico give production in March as 6,855,000 ounces, which compares with 7,190,000 in February and 9,241,000 in January.

Burma produced 623,000 ounces in May and 625,000 ounces in April.

The last figures from Bolivia gave 219,000 ounces as the production for March, 639,000 for February and 547,000 for January.

Ratify the Cyanamid Merger.

Reorganization of the Kalbfleisch Corporation with the American Cyanamid Company through the consolidation of the assets of the Kalbfleisch Corporation with the assets of the American Cyanamid Company has been ratified by shareholders of both companies. It is planned to have the reorganization completed before the end of July. No change in management is contemplated.

90,814 CARS UNSOLD BY AUTO RETAILERS

DEMAND IS REPORTED GOOD

Survey of Entire Industry Indicates Seasonal Call Is Greater Than in Other Years.

An accumulation since Jan. 1 of 90,814 unsold motor vehicles in the stores of General Motors retail dealers is indicated by a report of sales issued yesterday by Alfred P. Sloan Jr., president of the General Motors Corporation. The report shows that in June, for the sixth consecutive month, sales to dealers exceeded sales by dealers to users. Sales to dealers in the first six months of the year totaled 1,171,868 vehicles and sales by dealers totaled 1,081,054.

Sales to dealers in June totaled 200,754, against 186,160 in June 1928, but sales by dealers decreased from 206,239 in June, 1928, to 194,705 in June, 1929. The output of General Motors cars in June was 8,900 daily.

Divisions' Sales to Dealers.	1929.	1928.	1927.
January	127,580	125,141	99,367
February	115,118	140,232	124,628
March	227,207	197,321	161,910
April	220,717	197,597	149,057
May	220,277	207,325	173,182
June	200,754	186,160	155,525
Dealers' Sales to Users.
January	104,488	107,278	81,010
February	138,370	132,029	102,025
March	205,318	193,706	146,275
April	225,303	209,367	180,106
May	214,870	224,091	171,364
June	194,705	206,239	159,701

According to Automotive Industries, while the production of automobiles has receded from the record figure of a few weeks ago, manufacturers report that the demand for new automobiles continues to exceed the seasonal demand of other years. In its weekly review, the magazine says:

"Never in the history of the automotive industry has there been such a prolonged peak demand for motor cars as has existed this year. When sales mounted to new records during the Spring selling season there was a feeling in some quarters that the buying rush would reflect itself in a sharp decline later in the year. Thus far the predicted decline has been gradual, with no indication of a sharp change for some time to come. Ford and Chevrolet continue at unprecedented production rates, while most of the other manufacturers are making necessary reductions in schedules.

"A survey of the country indicates that stocks of new low-priced cars are at a minimum, and in many sections purchasers have to wait for delivery of certain body types. With employment and general business conditions good, indications are that motor-car sales will continue in advance of the seasonal experience of some previous years."

CHANGES IN CORPORATIONS.

Metropolitan Fire Insurance Co. Elects Two to Board.

Among the changes in the offices of corporations and banks announced yesterday was the election of two new directors by the Metropolitan Fire Insurance Company. The new directors are John Cropp of Hamburg, Germany, and George E. Roosevelt of Roosevelt and Sons.

Arthur Reynolds was elected a director of International Harvester Company, to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of R. P. Lamont, and J. P. Wilson was elected consulting counsel.

Edward E. Loomis, president of the Lehigh Valley Railroad, and Roland L. Redmond were elected directors of the Fulton Trust Company, to succeed the late Howard Elliott and Frederick de P. Foster.

W. F. Roeber was appointed assistant manager of the National Council on Compensation Insurance. He will serve temporarily as acting general manager.

ADDS FIVE NEW DIRECTORS.

General Theatres Equipment, Inc., Now Has Ten on Its Board.

Five additional directors were added to the board of General Theatres Equipment, Inc., yesterday. They are W. C. Michel, vice president and treasurer of the International Projector Corporation, who will occupy similar positions with the new company; W. E. Green, vice president of National Theatre Supply Company; O. E. Koegel, general counsel for the company; S. R. Burns, vice president and secretary of International Projector Corporation, and Charles W. Higley, director of International Projector Corporation.

This makes the directorate consist of ten members, a representative from each of the five banking houses which underwrote the merger being added on the same day that H. L. Clarke of Chicago became president.

U. S. Finishing Plans Stock Split.

A stockholders' meeting of the United States Finishing Company is to consider a split of the stock of the corporation on a basis of three shares for one, has been called for Aug. 14. No dividend rate for the new stock was announced. The directors said the policy of retiring the bonds of the company would be continued. The bonds outstanding total $767,000 of the total issue of $2,000,000.

PRICE RECESSION MARKS DAYINWHEAT

At the Day's High Point Values Soar More Than Three Cents, Then Slump.

CANADIAN NEWS BULLISH

Corn Prices Move Up Sharply, but React at the Last and Close Is Lower.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, July 18.—At the high point today wheat was up 2¾ to more than 3 cents, with July $1.46⅝, September $1.51¼ and December $1.57. The close was up at $1.41¼ for July, $1.48¼ for September and $1.51¼ for December. Price recessions in other market were about the same as in Chicago.

A Kansas City trader reports that about 10,000,000 bushels of wheat have been sold in that market to come to Chicago. In Kansas City they are buying the new wheat, drying it, and hedging by sales of futures in Chicago and other markets.

The advance in wheat and all grains from the low point around June 1, as applied to the United States visible supply of grains, represents an aggregate profit of $125,000,000, of which $53,000,000 is in wheat, $35,000,000 in corn, $20,000,000 in rye and $15,000,000 in oats.

The Canadian Government crop report issued late today is considered about as bullish as the estimates of private crop investigators who have been out on the road for two weeks. Drought and high temperatures have seriously damaged the wheat crop in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta. In numerous sections the reports say the crop is almost a failure and rains would do little good.

Crop Expert B. W. Snow, who returned today from a three weeks' close investigation in Western Canada, reduces his crop estimate on Spring wheat there to 300,000,000 bushels, against 325,000,000 bushels earlier in the week.

Other crop experts who have made very low figures say their returns are not out of line. The situation in North Dakota and Montana is unfavorable.

Bullish crop news continues the basis for active buying by the general public and by professionals, with higher prices made than heretofore, with sharp reactions.

Corn prices moved up sharply but met local selling and a reaction, the close being at net losses of 1¾ to 2 cents, with July at $1.01, September $1.03½ to $1.03⅝, or 2 cents under the early top. December touched $1 and closed 97½ to 97⅝.

Foreigners, easterners and local interests were free sellers of rye, one trader being credited with unloading about 1,000,000 bushels early. New high levels were reached, with an advance of 1 to 2½ cents, with a reaction and a net close 1¼ to 1½ cents lower, September $1.13⅝, December $1.10⅝ to $1.20.

Primary receipts of wheat, 2,728,000 bushels; last year 2,134,000 bushels. Corn 567,000 bushels; last year 644,000 bushels. Wheat shipments this year 1,749,000 bushels; last year 1,600,000 bushels; corn shipments 460,000 bushels; last year 650,000 bushels.

CHANGES IRREGULAR IN COTTON PRICES

Weather Reports Lift Quotations, but Profit-Taking and Wheat Cause Reaction.

FOREIGN MARKETS HIGHER

Manchester Issues Unexpectedly Large Estimate of Consumption of American Staple.

With Oklahoma and Texas reporting intense heat, fears that rains might not arrive in time to avert damage caused another active cotton market yesterday. Under a large volume of business on the Cotton Exchange here prices advanced in the early trading, but the rapid rise of more than a cent pound and a reactionary wheat market brought out sufficient contracts to cause irregular, nervous price changes, and the market closed with a gain of 1 to a loss of 7 points on the day. There also were private advices from eastern sections of the cotton belt that weevil infestation was heavy as a result of frequent showers in the last six weeks.

Prices for American, Egyptian and Indian cotton advanced sharply abroad and Manchester reported an estimate that world's consumption of American cotton would approximate 15,400,000 bales during the season ending on July 31. Although the trade has been looking for between 15,000,000 and 15,500,000 bales, these figures were somewhat higher than had been expected in view of textile conditions in Great Britain and Germany. Lint production last year was 14,250,000 bales, the balance being taken from the 5,250,000 bales carried over from previous seasons.

WHOLESALE PRICES SHOW SLIGHT RISE

DOLLAR'S BUYING POWER UP

Worth 103.7 Compared to 100 in June, 1926—Farm Products Prices Higher.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 18.—Information for June collected in representative markets by the Bureau of Labor Statistics of the Department of Labor and made public officially today shows that there was a slight reaction from the recent downward trend of wholesale prices in that month. The bureau's weighted index number stands at 96.4 for June, compared with 95.8 for May, an increase of more than ½ of 1 per cent.

Compared with June, 1928, however, with an index number of 97.6, a decrease of 1¼ per cent is shown. Based on these figures, the purchasing power of the dollar in June, 1929, was 103.7, compared with 100 in the year 1926.

Fuel and lighting materials led in price increases from May to June, with advances reported for California and Kansas-Oklahoma crude petroleum, fuel oil and gasoline. Prices of anthracite coal also advanced slightly. The net increase in the group as a whole was nearly 2% per cent.

Among farm products there were price increases for corn, wheat, beef steers, calves, lemons, oranges and onions, resulting in a net increase of 1 per cent for the group. Decreases were reported for hogs, sheep and lambs, live poultry, hay and wool. Foods also increased in average price, with higher quotations for flour, cornmeal, lard and certain meat products. The net increase for the group was 1¼ per cent. Hides and leather products likewise increased in price in the month, as did also cattle feed and certain other items in the group of miscellaneous commodities.

In all other commodity groups prices in June averaged lower than in May. Cotton textiles, silk and rayon and woolen and worsted goods all showed a net decrease in price, as did a few items among iron and steel products and non-ferrous metals.

Prices of lumber and brick averaged somewhat lower than in May, this being true also of chemicals and drugs and house-furnishing goods. Raw materials and finished products showed minor price increases from May to June, while semi-manufactured articles showed a small decrease. Non-agricultural commodities, taken as a whole, were slightly higher.

Of the 550 commodities or price series for which comparable information for May and June was collected, increases were shown in 103 instances and decreases in 140 instances. In 307 instances no change in price was reported. The great importance of articles showing price advances, together with steep increases in certain items, was responsible for the net increase in the general price level.

Comparing prices in June with those of a year ago, as measured by changes in the index number, the bureau stated that metals and metal products were considerably higher, while building materials and fuel and lighting materials were somewhat higher. In all other groups prices in June were lower than in the corresponding month of 1928, ranging from less than ½ of 1 per cent in the case of house-furnishings goods to over 3 per cent in the case of farm products and almost 12¾ per cent in the case of hides and leather products.

HIGH RATE OF ACTIVITY IN BUSINESS INDICATED

The rate of business activity in the United States, measured by The Annalist Index of Business Activity, was higher in the second quarter of 1929 than in the preceding quarter back to the third quarter of 1923. In April the index rose to the highest level since the busines boom of 1923, and in May a further advance carried it up to 108.4 (revised).

The first June statistics to be made public, those on pig iron production and steel ingot production, made it appear for a time that June would show a further advance, but later reports showed that there had been declines, allowing for seasonal variation, in cotton consumption, freight car loadings, automobile production and bituminous coal production, so that the combined index for June (preliminary) is 107.2.

If further evidence of the high rate of activity in the second quarter is needed, it may be noted that the adjusted index of electric power production by all public utility plants in the United States rose sharply from 103.9 for April to 105.3 for May, the latter figure being the highest attained by the electric power index, with the exception of one month, back to October, 1920. The one exception was May, 1923, when the index peaked at 105.8.

Table I summarizes for the last three months the movements of the combined index and of the ten component series, each of which has been adjusted for seasonal variation, long-time trend and variations in cyclical amplitudes before being combined into The Annalist Index of Business Activity. Table I also shows the combined index by months back to the beginning of 1925.

MARKETS TO GET DATA ON JERSEY PRODUCE

New Federal and State Service to Estimate Daily Shipments of Fruits and Vegetables.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 18.—A new information service on estimated daily shipments of fruit and vegetables by New Jersey producers will be started tomorrow as an experiment for the benefit of shippers and receivers by cooperative agreement between the New Jersey Department of Agriculture, the New Jersey State Agricultural College and the Bureau of Agricultural Economics of the United States Department of Agriculture.

Daily reports giving the estimated amount for the next day's market of New Jersey tomatoes, peaches, peppers, early apples, string beans, sugar corn and cucumbers moving to Newark and New York City markets will be posted at about 6 P. M. on bulletin boards in the Newark jobbing market, and in the Washington Market in New York.

The information will be gathered from commercial express trucking companies and is expected to represent about 60 per cent of the total truck shipments to these markets. The volume will be reported in carlot equivalents. The experiment will be conducted for three months, at least, to ascertain whether it is possible to provide satisfactory information for the trade by estimating probable supplies for the following day's market.

ENLARGES HOLDING ON THE EAST SIDE

Hoffman Development Corporation Adds Apartment House to Its 34th St. Plot.

NOW CONTROLS 106 FEET

Other Scattering Deals Involve Housing Properties in Manhattan—West Side Sales.

The six-story apartment house at 310 and 312 East Thirty-fourth Street has been purchased by the Hoffman Development Corporation, F. Burrall Hoffman, president, it was announced yesterday. The corporation owns 304, 306 and 308 East Thirty-fourth Street and with yesterday's purchase now controls a plot 106 by 98 feet. The property acquired yesterday is 42 by 98 feet and was sold by Solomon Offner and others. The property has been assembled because of the proposed removal of the Thirty-fourth Street "L" spur, according to the Burgoyne Hamilton Company, broker in the transaction.

Helen Van Norden, represented by Robert D. Elder, has bought the property at the southwest corner of Third Avenue and Fortieth Street, fronting 24 feet on the avenue and 80 feet on the street. The brokers in the transaction were Butts & Malloy. The same purchaser acquired 1,223 Third Avenue, 16 by 110 feet, through Stephen G. Tiston, broker.

Yetti Mandell, sold to Ruth I. Glanz the five-story tenement 221 East Eighty-eighth Street subject to an $18,000 mortgage. Samuel Sason and Arthur Lichtner negotiated the sale.

Seward W. Ehrich bought 686 Second Avenue, northeast corner of Thirty-seventh Street, a four-story building with stores, on a lot 24 by 64 feet. This purchase gives Mr. Ehrich a plot of about 21,000 square feet running from Thirty-seventh to Thirty-eighth Street and including 125 feet on Second Avenue. The brokers in the latest purchase in this plot were Charles M. De Rosa & Co.

A three-story dwelling, 20 by 73 feet, at 1,300 Madison Avenue, adjoining the northwest corner of Ninety-second Street, has been sold by Pauline M. Mandelbaum to the Terrace Improvement Corporation, Philip H. Seaman, president.

The Kobro Realty Corporation purchased from the Paul S. Bolger estate the five-story dwelling at 131 East Fifty-fifth Street, adjoining the northwest corner of Lexington Avenue.

James J. Nolan sold to the Maljac Realty Corporation 749-751 Columbus Avenue, adjoining the southeast corner of Ninety-seventh Street, two five-story tenement houses with stores, 50 by 100 feet.

Nehring Brothers sold for the Burton estate 829 Columbus Avenue, a five-story apartment house with two stores on the east side of Columbus Avenue 75 feet south of 101st Street. This is the first sale of the property in forty-three years. The purchasers are Malatsky Brothers.

Leasehold Loan of $150,000.

The Herald Square Realty Corporation, Max N. Natanson, president, has borrowed $150,000 from the Marvel Holding Corporation on its leasehold of the old Herald Building site, between Broadway and Sixth Avenue, Thirty-fifth to Thirty-sixth Streets, the fee of which is owned by the trustees of the estate of William de Forest Manice. The principal is payable at 6 per cent. $60,000 on March 15, and $90,000 on July 15, next year.

$750,000 Seventh Av. Apartment.

Plans were filed yesterday with the Manhattan Building Bureau by Farrar & Watmough for an eighteen-story apartment house to be erected on the southwest corner of Sixteenth Street and Seventh Avenue. The structure will occupy a plot 100 by 103.8 feet and is estimated to cost $750,000.

Blum, penthouse and duplex, to Lawrence Jacobs; at 210 East Seventy-third Street to Miss Evangeline Hood; and at 978 Park Avenue, building just completed for Edgar Ellinger, builder, to Mrs. William Pardee, represented by Pease & Elliman.

COOPERATIVE BUYERS.

Walter Reid Wolf of the Farmers Loan & Trust Company bought a duplex in the new cooperative apartment house being erected at 1,021 Park Avenue, northeast corner of Eighty-fifth Street, on the site of the old Stettinius home. The building is being erected by Anthony Campagna, who was represented in the sale of this apartment by Pease & Elliman, brokers. Donald W Brown, Inc., acted as broker in the sale of the lease.

Douglas L. Elliman & Co. sold to a corporation executive an apartment consisting of seven rooms and three baths on the fourteenth floor in 40 Fifth Avenue, the new 100 per cent cooperative building now under construction at the southwest corner of Eleventh Street by the Calvin-Morris Corporation.

The Quinsigamond Corporation announced the sale of a cooperative garden apartment at Jackson Heights, in Hampton Court, to Mrs. Silva Schrot. Apartments have also been sold in the Georgian Court to the Gregoire Apartments and George C. Fydlis in Linden Court.

The William H. May Company sold a seven-room apartment in the cooperative building on 66th Street, adjacent to the Seamen's Church Institute.

A plot of four lots on the north side of West 196th Street, adjoining the parcel of sixteen lots on Broadway purchased last Fall by the Jewish Memorial Hospital from the August Kilpatein estate, has been added to the hospital's holdings, it was announced yesterday. The latest purchase is to be improved with a nurses' home in conjunction with the new hospital, which is to be nine stories high.

Charles B. Meyers, architect, is preparing plans for both buildings. The structures are to cost about $2,000,000. The last parcel purchased is 100 by 130 by 121 feet and adjoins the main hospital site on the south. Vols & Maas, brokers, negotiated the deal.

BRONX PROPERTY DEALS.

Vacant Plots Sold—Fordham Road Store Is Leased.

The plot, 75 by 100 feet, on the south side of East 236th Street, twenty-five feet west of Barnes Avenue, has been sold by Samuel Bleustein to Harry A. and Morris Geller for development.

A. B. Braun bought from A. Kushner the blockfront, 200 by 100 feet, on Pugsley Avenue, between Quimby and Horton Avenues, through the Adams-Rubinstein Company as brokers.

Tankoos, Smith & Co. have leased for the Bickford Lunch System, Samuel L. Bickford, president, to the Schulte Cigar Stores Company for a long term of years at a rental aggregating approximately $400,000, the large corner store and basement, approximately 25 by 60 feet, in the property at the southwest corner of Fordham Road and Webster Avenue, opposite Rogers's Department Store.

Forty-second St. Building Leased.

George A. Bowman, Inc., has leased to the Aviator Rail, Inc., Julius Deiott, president, for the estate of Mitchel Lehman, 245 West Forty-second Street, a modern four-story building on a plot 18 by 100 feet. After extensive alterations the Aviator Rail will occupy the entire building for restaurant purposes. This property is between the new buildings now in course of construction in which Lofts, Inc., have just made a long lease, and the new hotel and bus terminal now being erected; also directly opposite the old American Theatre which the Bethlehem Engineering Corporation contemplates demolishing to make way for a skyscraper. According to the brokers the lease is for twenty-one years.

ALLEN ST. LAND SOLD BY CITY FOR $152,000

Auction Nets $738,400 for Parks and Playgrounds—Many Parcels Retained.

The narrow and irregular blockfront on the east side of Allen Street, between Stanton and East Houston Streets, was sold at auction in the Aldermanic Chamber of the City Hall yesterday by the city for $152,000, the upset price. One other parcel, a plot in the Bronx, which went for $15,800, brought the total of the morning's sales to $167,800. The aggregate sum added to the park and playground fund through the two-day auction was $738,400.

The 1 per cent auctioneers' fee gave Joseph P. Day and Senator Thomas F. Burchill $3,692 each.

The Schulte interests, represented by Irving Rosenbaum and S. S. Breslin of the Berk-Bres Realty Company, became the owners of the Allen Street property after bids for the twelve separate parcels failed to equal their offer for the entire tract. The same interests bid $146,100 for the property on Wednesday. The land was put up again after that sum had been rejected by Controller Charles W. Berry.

James Pesce bought the corner property fronting 302.24 feet on Pierce Avenue and 367.37 feet on Sackett Avenue in the Bronx, for the upset valuation, $15,800. Some thirty-five parcels were passed due to the absence of bids equal to the appraised value, and one went back to the city after the successful bidder failed to make payment. The total number of properties sold was twenty-one, divided as follows: Manhattan, seven, $304,650; Brooklyn, five, $92,450; the Bronx, nine, $307,800, and Queens, one, $33,500.

STATEN ISLAND SALES.

E. Sharum, Operator, Buys 154 Lots in New Dorp.

A tract of 154 lots in New Drop has been purchased by E. Sharum, operator, from Louisa Pinto. The lots are mostly 20 by 100 feet each and are on Richmond Road, Willard Avenue, Morton Street, Ardsley Street, Litchfield Street and Natick Street, at Richview Park. There is an old ten-room house on the property.

Albert A. Willshaw bought a plot of ground at Shore Acres, Fort Wadsworth, on which he plans to erect a dwelling for his own occupancy. Cornelius G. Kolff was the broker.

West End Avenue Sale Pending.

Negotiations are pending for the sale of 777 West End Avenue to an investing syndicate. The property, which consists of a twelve-story apartment house, occupies a plot 75.8 by 100 feet on the southwest corner of Ninety-eighth Street.

New Rochelle Flat Is Sold.

L. Franklin van Zelm sold for the Lois Holding Corporation the four-story brick apartment house at 17 Coligni Avenue, New Rochelle. The apartment house contains 18 apartments and was held for $140,000.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 19.—The disturbance that was over Ontario Wednesday night has moved eastward to the Gulf of St. Lawrence, and a trough extends southwestward to the middle gulf coast. Pressure is low also over the Hudson Bay-Strait region, the interior of Texas, and from British Columbia and Alberta southward to the Gulf of California. The southwestern area of high pressure has spread eastward and southeastward over the Plains States, the Upper Mississippi Valley and the upper lake region, and pressure is relatively high in the vicinity of Bermuda.

The temperature has fallen in the lake region, the Ohio and Upper Mississippi Valleys, the Northern Plateau region and the North Pacific States, but the weather continues abnormally warm in portions of Texas, Montana and Alberta (Medicine Hat, Alberta, reporting a maximum of 102 degrees, and Abilene, Texas, 104 degrees).

Generally fair weather will prevail Friday and Saturday east of the Mississippi River except for local thunder showers Friday in the Southern Appalachian region and the Southern Atlantic States.

The temperature will be lower Friday as far south as Kentucky and North Carolina, and the weather will remain cool Saturday in the Middle Atlantic and North Atlantic States, while there will be a reaction to somewhat higher temperature Saturday afternoon as far east as the Appalachian Mountains.

Coupner-Wise Weather Conditions.

In the following record of observations at United States Weather Bureau stations yesterday the temperatures given are the highest during the twelve hours from 8 A. M. to 8 P. M. and the lowest during the preceding twelve hours, from 8 P. M. to 8 A. M.; the barometer reading and condition of weather are those recorded at 8 P. M. and the rainfall is for the twenty-four hours ended at 8 P. M.

LEGAL NOTICE.

NEW YORK SUPREME COURT—FIRST JUDICIAL DISTRICT.—In the matter of the application of the BOARD OF TRANSPORTATION OF THE CITY OF NEW YORK, acting for and on behalf of The City of New York, pursuant to Chapter 4 of the Laws of 1891 and the several statutes amendatory thereof and supplemental thereto, relative to acquiring an estate in fee simple absolute in certain real property on the southerly side of Liberty Place and a permanent, perpetual and exclusive underground right, easement and right of way for the construction, maintenance and operation in perpetuity of a rapid transit railroad situate at the southeasterly corner of Nassau and Ann Streets, in the Borough of Manhattan, City of New York.

PUBLIC NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that it is the intention of the Corporation Counsel of The City of New York, pursuant to the provisions of Chapter 4 of the Laws of 1891 and the several statutes amendatory thereof and supplemental thereto, to make application to the Supreme Court of the State of New York, First Judicial Department, at a Special Term, Part I thereof, to be held in and for the County of New York at the County Court House in the Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, on the 22nd day of August, 1929, at the opening of court on that day or as soon thereafter as counsel can be heard thereon, to have the compensation which should justly be made to the owners of and all persons interested in the real property, rights, terms, privileges, franchises or easements sought to be acquired for the purposes of the rapid transit railroad in the above proceeding, ascertained and determined by the Supreme Court without a jury. The City of New York, in and by this proceeding, seeks to acquire whatever the same has not been heretofore acquired by The City of New York, an estate in fee simple absolute free from all liens and encumbrances and any and all rights, terms, interests, privileges, franchises and easements whether of owners, abutting owners or others in and to certain real property hereinafter described; and also seeks to acquire a permanent, perpetual and exclusive underground right, easement and right of way in certain other real property hereinafter described for the construction, maintenance and operation in perpetuity, free of interference and right of interference of a rapid transit railroad in accordance with the route known as Route 43, Section No. 1, which said route was adopted by the Public Service Commission for the First District on the 17th day of May, 1918, and was approved by the Board of Estimate and Apportionment of The City of New York on the 31st day of May, 1918, and approved by the Mayor of said City of New York on the 6th day of June, 1918, and requisite consents of the owners of real property abutting on said route duly secured in writing on and prior to March 15, 1913, representing sufficient assessed valuation and amount according to the assessment roll for the Borough of Manhattan, County, City and State of New York for the year 1912, that being the assessment roll last confirmed prior to the approval of the public authorities to validate said route in accordance with law, and which rapid transit railroad is further described in a contract for the operation thereof dated March 19, 1913, between The City of New York acting by the Public Service Commission for the First District and the New York Municipal Railway Corporation, known as Contract No. 1.

The City of New York is to acquire for the purposes of the construction, maintenance and operation of a portion of the aforesaid rapid transit railroad, whatever the same has not been heretofore acquired by The City of New York for rapid transit purposes, an estate in fee simple absolute, free from all liens and encumbrances and any and all rights, terms, interests, privileges, franchises and easements, whether of owners, abutters or others, in and to all that certain tract, piece or parcel of land, with a building or parts of building and other improvements thereon, and all amoluments pertaining thereto and any interest in and to Liberty Place, bounded and described with any other easements pertinent thereto shown upon the map or plan accompanying a memorandum and of which said memorandum is a duplicate original, to be filed

WALTER BELL LEFT $1,000,000 ESTATE

Stock Broker's Widow and Son Receive Majority of Sum—$10,000 to Charities.

MILLS ESTATE $500,000

Former Supreme Court Justice Bequeathed Most to Family—O'Brien Will Disposes of $26,000.

Most of the estate of more than $1,000,000 left by Walter E. Bell, vice president of the stock brokerage firm of Harris, Forbes & Co., passes to his widow, Jane Bell, of 1,115 Fifth Avenue, and their son Roland of 55 East Eighty-sixth Street by the terms of his will, filed yesterday in Surrogates' Court. Each receives $20,000 outright, a life estate in $200,000 and half the residue after the payment of other bequests aggregating about $240,000. The widow gets her share of the residue in a life trust fund, while the son gets his outright.

The son's wife, Helen, received $10,000 and their twin daughters, Nancy and Patricia Ann, were named beneficiaries of $25,000 trust funds. They will inherit the principal at the age of 25. Mrs. Helen Bell and the children will eventually share the $200,000 funds.

The only bequests not made to relatives were two of $5,000 to the Children's Aid Society and the New York Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children.

To his sisters, Grace and Adah M. Bell of Spokane, Wash., the testator bequeathed $10,000 each and equal shares in the income of a $125,000 trust fund. Mrs. Mary B. Burns, another sister, also of Spokane, gets $10,000.

Janie C. Michaels, a cousin, of Los Angeles, receives $1,000 cash and a life estate in $10,000. Small amounts go to a brother-in-law and his two children. The testator, a native of Cheboygan, Mich., died last Saturday at the age of 56.

Baseball Secretary Left $26,000.

The will of Joseph D. O'Brien, former secretary of the New York Giants and former president of the Toledo club of the American Association, was entered for probate yesterday, showing he left all of his $26,000 estate to his widow, Gene, of 551 West 157th Street. Following his retirement from baseball three years ago he had engaged in the insurance business here. His death at the age of 54 occurred on May 29, when he swallowed accidentally a fatal dose of poison from a bottle labeled rhubarb and soda.

Miss Bondy's Will Aids Charities.

Five New York benevolent institutions receive $1,000 each under the will of Miss Sophie Bondy of 255 West Eighty-fourth Street, which was offered for probate yesterday. They are the Hospital for Joint Diseases, Hebrew Orphan Asylum, Hebrew Infant Asylum, Lebanon Hospital and the Home for Aged and Infirm Hebrews.

The testament gives $5,000 to Johanna Samuels, a friend, of 280 West 106th Street, $250 each to two other friends and divides the residuary estate of undetermined value between Miss Bondy's sisters, Mrs. Bertha Goshinski of New Orleans and Mrs. Carrie Simon of 201 West Eighty-seventh Street.

Isaac N. Mills Left $500,000.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., July 18.—The will of former Supreme Court Justice Isaac N. Mills, who died Sunday at his home in Mount Vernon, was filed for probate here today. The value of the estate is estimated at $500,000.

Trust funds of $50,000 and $75,000 respectively are established for Nona Mills Hardy, a daughter, and the widow, Mrs. Clara M. Mills. The remainder of the $75,000, in the event of the widow's death, is to be distributed among the three other children, Le Roy N. Mills, Priscilla Alden Mills Van Cott, and Nathaniel.

Each of the five grandchildren receives $10,000. The residue of the estate is to be divided equally among three of the children, Nathaniel, Le Roy and Priscilla.

PLANS HARBOR FESTIVITIES.

San Francisco Invites Governor of Hawaii to Affair Aug. 22.

Special to The New York Times.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 18.—When Captain Andrew Townsend took the Matson liner Maui out for Honolulu yesterday, he carried with him an invitation from the Board of Harbor Commissioners to Governor Lawrence M. Judd of Hawaii to attend the San Francisco Harbor Day celebration here on Aug. 22.

The Panama Mail liner Guatemala, sailing today, is carrying a party of twenty bound for Havana to attend the speed-boat races. The Guatemala, under command of Captain A. C. Paulsen, will call at Mexican and Central American ports, as well as Cuba, on her way to New York.

S. Giraud, Attaché for French Indo-China, and Henry S. Waterman, American Consul at Saigon, have reported the immediate need of the ports of Saigon and Haiphong for refrigeration service.

Vera Cruz Saloons on Strike Against Double Alcohol Tax

MEXICO CITY, July 18 (AP).—An attempt to make dry the State of Vera Cruz by doubling the taxes on establishments selling alcoholic liquors has led to a serious situation there. Governor Alberto Tejeda and a committee of proprietors of liquor establishments have come here to present both sides of the case to President Emilio Portes Gil.

Saloons and grocery stores have been closed in a State-wide protest against the new tax. The few remaining open have been boycotted by the wholesale supply firms, including ice companies. The latter even refused to deliver ice to homes.

BUSINESS MEN JOIN IN LIGHTERAGE FIGHT

Jersey Corporations and Chambers to Aid in Battle Against Free Carrying.

WILL MEET NEXT MONDAY

Discrimination to Industries Is Charged—Data to Be Gathered to Reveal "Situation."

The traffic managers of about thirty New Jersey industrial and commercial corporations and chambers of commerce will organize an advisory committee to work with the New York-New Jersey Business Associates in advancing the fight to abolish free lighterage of freight in New York Harbor, it was announced yesterday.

This group, which will be known as the New Jersey Traffic Advisory Committee, will work to clear up such instances of discrimination against New Jersey in the harbor freight-handling situation as can be found and help devise means to eliminate them. The Business Associates group is preparing technical data to be used when the plea for a separate charge for lighterage is taken to the Interstate Commerce Commission.

In organizing the industrial and commercial interests the New Jersey contestants have followed the lead of the New York group, which brought together most of the shipping companies that use the New Jersey piers and obtained from them a declaration in favor of continuance of free lighterage.

Norman P. Titus, general manager of the Business Associates, who announced yesterday that the traffic managers would be organized at a meeting next Monday afternoon in the auditorium of the Newark Chamber of Commerce, said:

"The lighterage case is of such importance to the entire State that it is highly essential to coordinate all the industrial interests as well as representative Chambers of Commerce in the movement. Realization of the importance of this feature has been emphasized by the recent decision of the Interstate Commerce Commission in the iron-and-steel case, which will operate greatly to the disadvantage of New Jersey.

"Furthermore, the impending decision in the Eastern Class Rate case makes it clear that powerful forces are in operation to the detriment of the commercial life of New Jersey. The issue confronting New Jersey is most serious and it seems highly important that the interests of the State be thoroughly coordinated. Therefore we have decided to enlist the cooperation of leaders in the industrial traffic life of New Jersey."

The New Jersey interests will bring the issue before the Interstate Commerce Commission in the form of a request that the rate for the shipment of freight on the railroads whose lines end in New Jersey cover the transportation up to the time the freight leaves the car. The railroads now include in the service the lighterage of this freight to all parts of the port district, in full car lots or in broken lots. The New Jersey group is willing to permit the free lighterage of car lots but demands that an extra charge be made for transfer of smaller volumes of freight by water.

TWO LINES TO QUIT MIDNIGHT SAILINGS

Cunard and Loyd Sabaudo Vessels Will Leave Earlier—Time of Passage to Be Cut.

The Cunard and Lloyd Sabaudo steamship lines yesterday announced that they would discontinue the sailing of their ships at midnight. The Conte Biancamano of the Lloyd Sabaudo Line will leave at 12:01 A. M. tomorrow on her last trip to Gibraltar, Naples and Genoa on the present schedule, and the Cunard Line will discontinue the practice in its service to Cherbourg and Southampton with the sailing of the Aquitania Sept. 11.

The French Line, which recently announced that it would change its schedule, will have its last midnight sailing at 12:01 A. M. tomorrow, when the France leaves its pier at West Fifteenth Street for Plymouth and Havre.

The Bocengaria and the Aquitania will sail hereafter at 10 A. M. on Wednesday, and the Lloyd Sabaudo ships will sail Saturday at noon. The French Line ships will sail Friday evening. The Lloyd Sabaudo Line has experimented three months with midnight sailing and found it unsuccessful. Colonel M. Serrati, general manager of the line, said:

"The twelve-hour earlier start afforded by the Friday night sailing proved to be a doubtful advantage in the case of our ships, which are fast enough to develop sufficient speed to leave on the later schedule and still land passengers at Naples on the same day as when leaving on the earlier schedule. Our ships will now sail Saturday at noon, thus giving business men an extra half day in their offices and eliminating much of the difficulty caused by the immense crowds that gather at midnight sailings of all the popular lines."

The Cunard Line pointed out that its ships will land passengers at Cherbourg in the forenoon and at Southampton late in the afternoon of the sixth day out. The new schedule will cut the time of passage ten to twelve hours. The Cunarder Mauretania will sail July 24 at 5 P. M., Aug. 16 at 12:01 A. M. and thereafter at 11 P. M.

Doubt Story of Steamship Fire.

TAMPA, Fla., July 18 (AP).—Reports that a large steamer was burning late yesterday in the Gulf of Mexico off Sarasota, Fla., were discounted here today. Officials of the Collier Line reported that one of their tugboats left here yesterday southbound with a heavy tow of barges and that reflections on the sky from open furnace doors and the smoke from the boilers might have caused the mistake. The Gulf radio station picked up no distress signals during the night.

The ZERO hour has struck for Knocking Motors .. TIDE WATER ANNOUNCES TYDOL ETHYL ZERO KNOCK RATING GASOLINE

You can thank the amazing success of Hi-test TYDOL for Tide Water's latest gasoline achievement—the new TYDOL ETHYL with a zero knock rating.

Announced last November, as a high-test, anti-knock, super-power gasoline at no extra cost, Hi-test TYDOL literally took motordom by storm.

New TYDOL pumps sprang up like mushrooms. Increased TYDOL demand taxed to the utmost capacity Tide Water's huge refinery facilities. Demonstrating that car owners are quick to recognize a definite improvement in motor fuels.

Now Tide Water engineers have succeeded in combining the proven qualities of Hi-test TYDOL with ETHYL, the undisputed leader of anti-knock compounds . . . resulting in another and still greater super-fuel. A de luxe companion fuel to Hi-test TYDOL, with a certified knock rating of zero.

Why pay a 3 cent premium for motor fuels that show a knock rating of 5, 8 and 9. (See table at right.) The Midgley (Bouncing Pin) Indicator, the official gauge for measuring anti-knock quality, shows that the new TYDOL ETHYL has an unvarying and a positive knock rating of zero. Meaning K. O. and good-bye to all knocks in knocking motors.

Bring on your high-speed, high-compression and carbonized motors. Bring on your long, hot stretches of roadway, broiling under the summer sun. Bring on the hills, the mud, the sand.

The new TYDOL ETHYL will breeze you through with the powerful thrust of a flying comet . . . without a knock in a whole day's journey.

TYDOL ETHYL is a fuel for the car owner who demands the very best . . . and will take no substitutes. And why should he? For this zero knock rating gasoline costs only 3c a gallon more than ordinary gasolines; and often less than the cost of premium gasoline with high knock ratings.

Make a 10 gallon test

The next time you need gasoline drive up to a TYDOL ETHYL pump and try out ten gallons of this modern fuel. It will only cost you 30c more than 10 gallons of ordinary gas.

No more . . . perhaps less . . . than you have been paying for other premium gasolines.

But in any event, 30c is a small amount to gamble to prove to yourself just what a zero knock rating gasoline will do in your own car. Tide Water Oil Sales Corporation, 11 Broadway, New York City.

KNOCK RATING OF 6 PROMINENT PREMIUM GASOLINES

These 3 cent premium gasolines were tested on the Midgley (Bouncing Pin) Indicator according to an established standard scale over a period of 6 months, from November, 1928, to May, 1929, with the following results:

	MINIMUM KNOCK RATING	MAXIMUM KNOCK RATING	AVERAGE KNOCK RATING
Fuel A	6	10	9
Fuel B	5	13	8
Fuel C	0	5	2½
Fuel D	3	7	6⅝
Fuel E	3	5	4⅛

YOUR TYDOL DEALER NOW OFFERS YOU—

1. The same Hi-test TYDOL . . . Hi-test TYDOL will continue to be the leader of non-premium gasolines — unchanged in quality or price.
2. The new TYDOL ETHYL . . . a de luxe, super fuel with a zero knock rating, at only 3c more a gallon.
3. VEEDOL Motor Oil . . . Made 100% from Pennsylvania and other paraffine base crudes . . . the choice of famous aviators.
